Truman Sees Danger In Any Defense Slash

"False Economy" To Trim Program

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—President Truman said today it would be "false economy" to cut the nation's multibillion-dollar defense buildup in order to reduce taxes.

Without mentioning Soviet Russia by name, the President said the United States is confronted by "a potential enemy that is very hostile and very powerful."

"And that potential enemy," he said, "is putting a far greater proportion of his national product into the building of military strength, year after year, than we are."

Ike Promises Budget Cuts

Addressing the Alumni Association of the Armed Forces Industrial College, the President did not say whether he was opposing the budget reductions promised by President-elect Eisenhower. The latter declared during the campaign that sizable savings can be made in the spending for national security " and these savings can be made without reduction of defensive power."

Truman scoffed at unnamed critics who say the defense program is too big for this country to carry. He said they use such words as "national bankruptcy," "economic collapse" and "the crushing tax burden."

"Dangerous Talk"

"I say to you very seriously that our present defense mobilization program does not even approach the limit of what our country could do if we had to," Truman said.

"Nevertheless, there has been a great deal of talk about the country's so-called inability to continue a defense program of the magnitude of this one.

"That is very dangerous talk, because it could conceivably lead this country to a decision to cut back the defense program to a point below the minimum needs of our national security."

The industrial college, before which Truman spoke, is at nearby Ft. McNair. It provides special training for members of the armed forces and civilians in problems of defense production and supply.

DiSalle Named Stabilization Administrator

Ex-Price Director Succeeds Putnam

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—President Truman today brought Michael V. DiSalle back into the government as economic stabilizer to help maintain a "strong" anti-inflation program until the new Republican administration takes over on Jan. 20.

DiSalle made it clear that he feels controls over prices and wages will be necessary to ward off threats of inflation for some time to come. The former price director added that he is sure the new congress will study the situation carefully before deciding to abandon the program.

Will Succeed Putnam

DiSalle probably will be sworn in Monday to succeed Roger L. Putnam. Putnam resigned as economic stabilizer today to return to his private business in Springfield, Mass. DiSalle, in his new post, will have direct supervision over prices and wages.

In a letter to DiSalle, Truman said "we both feel strongly that the stabilization program is a vital part of our defense mobilization and our national security under the present economic conditions in which that program must operate." He added that DiSalle's service as reorganizer of the Office of Price Stabilization should be of great help in keeping the controls program going.

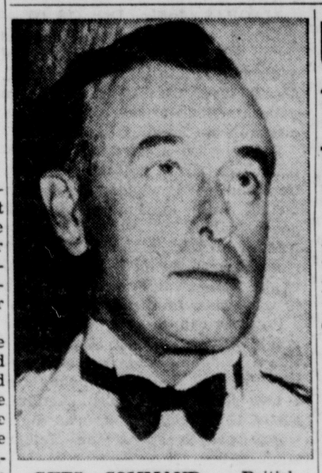

Joint News Conference

Immediately after the announcement, administration stabilization leaders held a "united front" news conference presided over by Defense Mobilizer Henry Fowler.

Fowler said the purpose of the joint meeting was to make clear that the price and wage control program will be maintained.

Besides DiSalle, Fowler and Putnam, others present were Joseph H. Freehill, who was sworn in as new director of the Office of Price Stabilization; and Charles C. Killingsworth, new head of the Wage Stabilization Committee.

U. S. Considers 100 Million Loan To Hard-Hit Iran

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Well-informed sources said today the United States is willing to put up 100 million dollars to back a plan for settling the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

These officials reported the American government is ready to advance as much as 100 million into Iran's treasury as emergency financial aid if Iran and Great Britain agree to cooperate in ending their long and bitter quarrel over nationalization of British oil properties in Iran.

The money would be used to help restore Iran's financial equilibrium. The strategic Middle Eastern country has been losing more than five million dollars a month in oil revenues since the British closed down their refineries and pulled out.

Iran Denied Loan Last Year

When Iran's premier, Mohammed Mossadegh, was in Washington a year ago he was reliably reported to have asked the United States for 120 million dollars in financial aid to prevent his country from becoming "paralyzed through lack of funds."

Last March the American government crisply told Iran it must come to terms with British before there is a chance of any substantial American aid.

A loan to help Mossadegh meet running expenses, the government said at that time, could not be justified "when Iran has the opportunity of receiving adequate revenues from its oil industry without prejudice to its national aspirations."

"Voluntary Accord" Sought

Now, it is reported President Truman has instructed Secretary of State Acheson to start exploratory discussions for a "voluntary agreement" between American oil interests and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company for a resumption of the flow of oil from Iran.

Acheson was said to have taken up the question with Anthony Eden, the British foreign secretary, at the conference of North Atlantic Treaty nations in Paris. British cooeration apparently is as important as Iran's acquiescence if the plan is to succeed.

Directs State, Justice Depts. To Draft Plan

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—President Truman has ordered that a plan be drawn to provide a maximum guarantee that disloyal Americans are not employed by the United Nations, Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery announced tonight.

McGranery told newsmen Truman had ordered the State and Justice Departments and the Civil Service Commission to collaborate in working out the plan.

The attorney general said Truman issued the directive as a result of the recommendations made to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie by a panel of three international lawyers, but gave no other details.

Screening Criticized

The lawyers recommended that disloyal Americans in the U. N. be fired and any other U. N. employes, whether Americans or not, be dismissed if they were guilty of subversive activities of espionage against the U. S.

The State Department's screening of American personnel hired on the U. N. staff was subject to hot criticism recently in a presentment from a special federal grand jury in New York. The State Department replied that it had warned the U. N. in a number of cases.

Meanwhile, at the U. N. today India and Canada asked Lie to go slow in firing U. N. staff workers until the General Assembly has had a chance to lay down a general policy on the issue of subversives.

29 Americans Dismissed

Thus far 29 Americans have been dismissed from the U. N. as a result of the Communist investigation, largely as a result of refusing to answer questions as to whether they ever had Communist affiliations.

There has been some criticism of Lie within the U. N. for announcing that he would handle subversive cases on the basis of the recommendation by the panel.

Lie's reply to the request of India and Canada was that he already has enough authority to act under the U. N. Charter and staff regulations.

Asian Expert Denies Lying At Red Probe

Accused Of Seven Counts Of Perjury

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—A federal grand jury indicted Owen Lattimore today on seven counts of perjury. He was accused, among other things, of testifying falsely that he had never been "a sympathizer and promoter of communism and Communist interests."

The charges against the Far Eastern specialist arise from his testimony before the Senate's internal security subcommittee last spring.

Lattimore, director of a school of international relations at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, was grilled by the senators for 12 days about Communist connections and what influence he wielded on America's postwar policy in the Far East.

"I am, of course, innocent," Lattimore said at the office of his attorney here, where he was informed of the indictment.

"Lied" About Seven Matters

The grand jury, after going over the record of the Senate hearing with government prosecutors, charged that Lattimore lied about seven "material" matters. The jurors reported:

1. That he testified he had never supported communism, whereas he "had been a sympathizer and promoter of communism and Communist interests."

2. That he testified falsely he did not know until 1950 that Dr. Ch'ao Ting Chi was a Communist. Chi was a man Lattimore worked with at the Institute of Pacific Relations who was accused by the subcommittee of being a Red agent.

3. That he swore that he did not know until the late 1930s that a person who used the pen-name of "Asiaticus" was a Communist, knowing this testimony to be untrue. "Asiaticus" contributed to "Pacific Affairs," a magazine Lattimore edited for the institute.

Other Accusations

4. That he swore falsely that, aside from Russian contributions, he had never published articles in "Pacific Affairs" by persons whom he knew to be Reds.

5. That he testified he lunched in 1941 with a Soviet ambassador in Washington after Hitler's invasion of the Soviet Union, whereas the fact was that he met the ambassador before the invasion occurred and while Russia and Nazi Germany were still allies.

6. That he swore that he never handled the mail of Lauchlin Currie, an aide of the late President Roosevelt. The grand jury said there is evidence that he did so on occasions when Currie was away from Washington.

7. That he testified he visited the Chinese Communist headquarters at Yenan in 1937 without making any advance arrangements. The grand jury said this was untrue, that in fact he did make advance arrangements.

Lattimore will be arraigned in U. S. District Court here at 10 a. m. EST on Friday.

Ike To Take No Part In Deciding Senate Leader

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—One of President-elect Eisenhower's closest advisers said today the general will stay strictly on the sidelines in the selection of the Republican leader of the Senate.

The statement came from Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, after a luncheon conference with Eisenhower.

He said Eisenhower not only will take no part in deciding the question of the floor leader, but will keep hands off in the whole matter of the organization of the Senate. Carlson asserted:

"There isn't going to be any contest . . . They (GOP senators) are going to sit around a table and work it out."

The question of who will be Senate majority leader acquired special importance recently when Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio sharply criticized the appointment of Martin P. Durkin, Chicago labor union leader, as secretary of labor.

Eisenhower also saw Durkin today, but they did not discuss either Taft or the Taft-Hartley Act, Durkin told reporters.

Another visitor to the President-elect was Sidney Holland, prime minister of New Zealand.

'Copters Remove Last Of Broken Ship's Crewmen

LEGHORN, Italy, Dec. 16 (AP)—Four U. S. Navy helicopters starred today in the last act of a drama of the sea, removing the last of 39 crewmen from a broken, storm-swept U. S. supply ship to safety after 36 tense hours of rescue operations.

The helicopters snatched the final 13 of the crewmen from the wave-lashed decks of the Grommet Reefer and flew them to shore. Breeches buoy and small boat operations earlier had rescued 23 of their fellow sailors, and three others swam ashore.

'Copters Come From Carriers

True to the tradition of the sea, the last to leave the 3,800-ton Navy refrigerator ship was her skipper, Capt. Henry P. Saukant of Brooklyn, N. Y. A helicopter set him down in safety just 36 hours after the ship, battered by gusts of wind up to 110 miles an hour, crashed on the rocks in Leghorn Harbor and broke in two.

The 39 crew members, all civilians, were in good health. Fervently muttering prayers of thanks, they took hot baths and tumbled into beds in the U. S. Army hospital here to rest. Some were treated for exposure.

Skipper Last To Leave

The four helicopers which arrived for the climactic stage of the rescue came from the U. S. aircraft carriers Midway and Leyte. The helicopters circled the stern of the wrecked vessel, 200 yards offshore. Each helicopter hovered briefly over the severed stern, lowered a seat and pulled it upward with a man aboard. The blades whirred and the helicopter flew its prize to a Leghorn soccer field. One by one, each man was carried ashore.

The Grommet Reefer, carrying 176 tons of Christmas foodstuffs to U, S. servicemen in Europe, hit the rocks at 2 a. m. Monday. As the vessel broke in half, the crewmen hastened to the stern and huddled there.

White Christmas Seen In This Area By Weatherman

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The weather man's guess is that it will be a white Christmas generally north of a line from the Texas Panhandle to Virginia.

A long-range forecast issued today said:

"The Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook for mid-December normals to mid-January calls for temperatures to average below seasonal normals east of the Continental Divide except for near normal in the northern tier of states from the Dakotas eastward to New England. Warmer than normal conditions are indicated west of the Continental Divide.

"A white Christmas is likely over most areas north of a line from the Texas Panhandle to Virginia."

Sabres Destroy Four Red MIGs

SEOUL, Wednesday, Dec. 16 (AP)—Sabre jet pilots clashed 13 times with Communist MIGs high above Northwest Korea Tuesday and shot down at least four Red jets, probably destroyed another and damaged one, the Fifth Air Force announced.

At times the roaring chase exceeded the speed of sound as Sabres and MIGs met in the thin air almost nine miles up.

Announcing the action, the Air Force said it was investigating a claim that still another MIG was destroyed. Any Allied planes lost will be announced in a weekend summary.

While the air battles raged Allied fighter-bombers swept North Korea in low-level attacks on Red supply and troop installations.

Three large caves housing Communist troops were sealed tight by the bombers, entombing an unknown number of Reds, pilots claimed.

Ground fighting along the frigid 155-mile front was the lightest in several days.

Gambler Tax 'Ridiculous,' Court Is Told

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Supreme Court was told today that it is as ridiculous to put a federal occupation tax on gamblers as it would be to levy one on prostitutes.

Jacob Kossman, Philadelphia attorney, said the tax represents an unconstitutional attempt by Congress to use the federal taxing power to police crime in the states.

He held the high court should uphold a decision by U. S. District Judge George A. Welsh in Philadelphia that the law is invalid. Judge Welsh threw out a case against Joseph Kahriger, who had been accused of failing to buy a tax stamp.

Robert L. Stern, special assistant to the attorney general, argued on the other hand that the gambling tax act was a proper exercise of federal taxing power. Stern said six other U. S. District Courts have sustained the law.

Attorney Kossman asserted:

"This is the darnedest tax law ever passed in this country. It even exempts purely social or friendly types of betting from taxation. And who can tell what's a friendly bet?"

The gambling tax law requires certain types of gamblers to buy a $50 tax stamp each year, register their names and all persons associated with hem, and pay a 10 per cent tax on the amount of money taken in bets.

War Correspondents See No Early Truce

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Five American war correspondents agreed in a recorded radio broadcast from Tokyo tonight that there are no prospects for a truce in Korea in the near future.

The correspondents also were in agreement that, with the stalemate in truce talks, an all-out offensive by United Nations troops in Korea would "best be understood by the Communists."

But they questioned whether the U. N. forces have the capacity now to bomb Manchurian bases, whether Chinese Nationalists troops should be used in Korea, and whether an ultimatum to Russia in the U. N. would be effective.

Red Cross Charges UNC Abuses POWs

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 16. (AP)—The International Red Cross released correspondence today in which it charged the U. N. Command in Korea with violating the Geneva Conventions on war prisoners by using force and withholding food and ater on Koje Island.

The letters included replies by Gen. Mark Clark, the U. N. commander, who said "the control measures x x x have been necessary and are fully justified."

German Reds Seize U. S. Army Sergeant

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP)—A U. S. Army sergeant was seized by East German police today when he stepped about two feet over the border into the Soviet zone.

The sergeant was in charge of six Germans who were erecting signs to mark the American sector border. When he stepped back to check the correct placement of a sign, five police suddenly approached with leveled guns and arrested him, German witnesses said.

The Army has started negotiations for his release. The sergeant's name is being withheld temporarily.

Crippled Ship Reaches Port

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—The Navy cargo ship Vela's engine went dead and left her helpless in a gale off Newfoundland today, but she later got up enough power to crawl into port.

For a time the 2,600 ton vessel, Navy-owned but manned by a civilian crew of 45 men and 10 or 15 officers, was drifting without power in a 45-knot gale, with gusts up to 75 knots. In her path was a wild, rocky stretch of Newfoundland coast.

But the crew later got the engine going so the Vela could proceed at about three knots, and she arrived tonight and anchored in Cape St. Mary's harbor.

The Military Sea Transport Service said the Navy ship Redbud ould proceed to St. Mary's to give the Vela any aid needed.

Siamese Twins Reported 'Fine' After Separation

CLEVELAND, Dec. 16 (AP)—Two-day-old girls who were Siamese twins for the first three hours of their lives were "doing fine" today in separate incubators.

Doctors at Mt. Sinai Hospital drew the curtain of anonimity about them when their rare case became known today, but said "they're doing fine. They're eating and performing normally."

The twins were separated by surgery. At birth they were joined by a short band of flesh at the point where the chest and abdomen meet. The three doctors who participated in the case emphasized that the operation was possible because no vital organs were concerned.

Japanese Police Probe Spy Case

TOKYO, Wednesday, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Foreign Office disclosed Tuesday that police were working on a bizarre international syp case which the Japanese press said involved an official of the Russian mission here.

While police made one arrest, the Foreign Office said Japan lacked the power to do much about the ring unless U. S. security secrets were involved. Japan has no espionage law.

National rural police arrested Masao Mitsuhashi, a Japanese radio engineer and former soldier. Police said he told them he was paid for spying by Russia, but secretly worked for U. S. counter-intelligence agents.

He was quoted as saying he sent coded messages to Russia and North Korea three times each month, but only after showing them to agents of the U. S. Counter Intelligence Corps (CIO).

Police seized a U. S. type radio transmitted at Mitsuhashi's home. They said he had been in touch with a radio station with call signals near the big Siberian port of Vladivostok.

Another facet of the case involved Wataru Kaji, leftist writer who raised a furor in the Japanese Diet last week with charges that he was held prisoner by U. S. agents for more than a year.

The Foreign Office said "there seems to be some connection" between Kaji and the spy ring.

CIO's New President Undergoes Surgery

DETROIT, Dec. 16 (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, newly elected president of the CIO, was operated on at Harper Hospital today for the removal of his gall bladder.

Afterwards the CIO United Auto Workers union issued a statement quoting the operating surgeon, Dr. H. C. Saltzstein, as saying the operation had gone "smoothly." No complications are expected, it was said.

Today's Chuckle

He was a rather noted chief of police and someone asked him if it were true that he was brought up in a tough neighborhood.

"Tough?" said the Chief. "Why it was so tough in our neighborhood, a cat with a tail was a tourist."

NATO Navy Post To Mountbatten

PARIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Atlantic Allies today named British Adm. Earl Mountbatten boss of the Mediterranean sea lanes, but left the powerful American Sixth Fleet independent in that sea under U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney.

Prodded by Prime Minister Churchill, proud of British naval traditions, the Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization acted to:

1. Set up a brand new command in the Mediterranean with the mainly defensive role of guarding the Allied lifelines between Gibraltar and Suez.

2. Placed it initially under Mountbatten, 52, a World War II hero who is a second cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, but specified that he must be subordinate to the supreme Allied commander in Europe, U. S. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

3. Left the U. S. Sixth Fleet as the naval arm of the Naples-based Southern European Command headed by Carney, who also reports directly to Ridgway. The primary wartime job of this fleet would be to support land operations.

Frenzied, Singing Red POWs Charged Guards In Mutiny

PONGAM ISLAND, Korea, Dec. 16 (AP)—U. S. soldier guards told today how they quelled an uprising Sunday by 4,500 Red prisoners, who roared Communist songs in a glassy-eyed trance heedless of a storm of gunfire.

Before order was restored after 55 furious minutes, 84 prisoners had been killed or mortally wounded in the deadliest riot of all those that have broken out in prison compounds this year. Another 118 prisoners and two American and three South Korean guards were injured.

"They brought it on themselves," Lt. Col. George P. Miller, camp commander, said. "They tested our strength and lost."

Miller told visiting correspondents the uprising was an attempt at a mass breakout. The plot had been discovered when a note from a prisoner was intercepted recently, he added.

This small island off the southwest coast of Koje Island—scene of bloody prison riots last February—houses 9,200 pro-Communist North Koreans. But only six compounds housing 4,500 prisoners took part.

Sentenced To Hang

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Dec. 16 (AP)—Lott Glover, 24, Negro, was sentenced today to be hanged for the murder of James Alfred Becraft, 49, in a Beltsville filling station robbery last January.

Polk's Great-Niece Dies

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 16 (AP)—Miss Prudence Polk, 89, great-niece of President James K. Polk, died at her home today after a short illness.

Big Theft Investigated

EL MONTE, Calif., Dec. 16 (AP)—One of the biggest thefts in years, was being investigated today by government agents.

Stolen yesterday from the Whittier Narrows Dam site were three storage sheds, one chicken house, two pumps and a 20 gallon pressure tank.

Pace 'Admonishes' Gen. Pick In African Air Base Fiasco

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, and two engineer colonels have been rapped on the knuckles by Secretary of the Army Pace in connection with the huge North African air base construction job which congressmen sharply criticized.

The secretary, in a letter dated Nov. 4 and made public today by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), informed the Senate preparedness subcommittee that he had "admonished" the three officers.

The investigating group, headed by Sen. Johnson, had reported widespread waste, confusion and corruption in the multimillion dollar Moroccan operation. It had said there was extensive drunkenness, loafing and looting, and the building itself was poor.

It had called on Pace to take for what it called his failure to give the committee the full story in testimony about the projects. It had also recommended that he determine whether "disciplinary action" against any officers was warranted by performance on the job itself.

Pace replied that he had "admonished" Pick, along with Col. F. F. Frech, former division engineer in New York, and Col. George T. Derby, district engineer in Morocco when the bases were under rush construction.

Pentagon spokesmen said an admonition in such a situation is "in the nature of — but without the strength of—an administrative reprimand."

Flattop Keel Laid

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Navy Secretary Dan Kimball today laid the keel for a spanking new 60,000-ton supercarrier with a proud old name—the USS Saratoga.

"Another great weapon for the arsenal of democracy," he called it at the Brooklyn Navy Yard where the ceremony was carried out in bright, cold weather.

Weather Forecast

1. That he testified he had never supported communism, whereas he "had been a sympathizer and promoter of communism and Communist interests."

2. That he testified falsely he did not know until 1950 that Dr. Ch'ao Ting Chi was a Communist. Chi was a man Lattimore worked with at the Institute of Pacific Relations who was accused by the subcommittee of being a Red agent.

3. That he swore that he did not know until the late 1930s that a person who used the pen-name of "Asiaticus" was a Communist, knowing this testimony to be untrue. "Asiaticus" contributed to "Pacific Affairs," a magazine Lattimore edited for the institute.

Other Accusations

4. That he swore falsely that, aside from Russian contributions, he had never published articles in "Pacific Affairs" by persons whom he knew to be Reds.

5. That he testified he lunched in 1941 with a Soviet ambassador in Washington after Hitler's invasion of the Soviet Union, whereas the fact was that he met the ambassador before the invasion occurred and while Russia and Nazi Germany were still allies.

6. That he swore that he never handled the mail of Lauchlin Currie, an aide of the late President Roosevelt. The grand jury said there is evidence that he did so on occasions when Currie was away from Washington.

7. That he testified he visited the Chinese Communist headquarters at Yenan in 1937 without making any advance arrangements. The grand jury said this was untrue, that in fact he did make advance arrangements.

Lattimore will be arraigned in U. S. District Court here at 10 a. m. EST on Friday.

Ike To Take No Part In Deciding Senate Leader

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—One of President-elect Eisenhower's closest advisers said today the general will stay strictly on the sidelines in the selection of the Republican leader of the Senate.

The statement came from Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, after a luncheon conference with Eisenhower.

He said Eisenhower not only will take no part in deciding the question of the floor leader, but will keep hands off in the whole matter of the organization of the Senate. Carlson asserted:

"There isn't going to be any contest . . . They (GOP senators) are going to sit around a table and work it out."

The question of who will be Senate majority leader acquired special importance recently when Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio sharply criticized the appointment of Martin P. Durkin, Chicago labor union leader, as secretary of labor.

Eisenhower also saw Durkin today, but they did not discuss either Taft or the Taft-Hartley Act, Durkin told reporters.

Another visitor to the President-elect was Sidney Holland, prime minister of New Zealand.

'Copters Remove Last Of Broken Ship's Crewmen

LEGHORN, Italy, Dec. 16 (AP)—Four U. S. Navy helicopters starred today in the last act of a drama of the sea, removing the last of 39 crewmen from a broken, storm-swept U. S. supply ship to safety after 36 tense hours of rescue operations.

The helicopters snatched the final 13 of the crewmen from the wave-lashed decks of the Grommet Reefer and flew them to shore. Breeches buoy and small boat operations earlier had rescued 23 of their fellow sailors, and three others swam ashore.

'Copters Come From Carriers

True to the tradition of the sea, the last to leave the 3,800-ton Navy refrigerator ship was her skipper, Capt. Henry P. Saukant of Brooklyn, N. Y. A helicopter set him down in safety just 36 hours after the ship, battered by gusts of wind up to 110 miles an hour, crashed on the rocks in Leghorn Harbor and broke in two.

The 39 crew members, all civilians, were in good health. Fervently muttering prayers of thanks, they took hot baths and tumbled into beds in the U. S. Army hospital here to rest. Some were treated for exposure.

Skipper Last To Leave

The four helicopers which arrived for the climactic stage of the rescue came from the U. S. aircraft carriers Midway and Leyte. The helicopters circled the stern of the wrecked vessel, 200 yards offshore. Each helicopter hovered briefly over the severed stern, lowered a seat and pulled it upward with a man aboard. The blades whirred and the helicopter flew its prize to a Leghorn soccer field. One by one, each man was carried ashore.

The Grommet Reefer, carrying 176 tons of Christmas foodstuffs to U. S. servicemen in Europe, hit the rocks at 2 a. m. Monday. As the vessel broke in half, the crewmen hastened to the stern and huddled there.

White Christmas Seen In This Area By Weatherman

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The weather man's guess is that it will be a white Christmas generally north of a line from the Texas Panhandle to Virginia.

A long-range forecast issued today said:

"The Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook for mid-December normals to mid-January calls for temperatures to average below seasonal normals east of the Continental Divide except for near normal in the northern tier of states from the Dakotas eastward to New England. Warmer than normal conditions are indicated west of the Continental Divide.

"A white Christmas is likely over most areas north of a line from the Texas Panhandle to Virginia."

Sabres Destroy Four Red MIGs

SEOUL, Wednesday, Dec. 16 (AP)—Sabre jet pilots clashed 13 times with Communist MIGs high above Northwest Korea Tuesday and shot down at least four Red jets, probably destroyed another and damaged one, the Fifth Air Force announced.

At times the roaring chase exceeded the speed of sound as Sabres and MIGs met in the thin air almost nine miles up.

Announcing the action, the Air Force said it was investigating a claim that still another MIG was destroyed. Any Allied planes lost will be announced in a weekend summary.

While the air battles raged Allied fighter-bombers swept North Korea in low-level attacks on Red supply and troop installations.

Three large caves housing Communist troops were sealed tight by the bombers, entombing an unknown number of Reds, pilots claimed.

Ground fighting along the frigid 155-mile front was the lightest in several days.

Gambler Tax 'Ridiculous,' Court Is Told

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Supreme Court was told today that it is as ridiculous to put a federal occupation tax on gamblers as it would be to levy one on prostitutes.

Jacob Kossman, Philadelphia attorney, said the tax represents an unconstitutional attempt by Congress to use the federal taxing power to police crime in the states.

He held the high court should uphold a decision by U. S. District Judge George A. Welsh in Philadelphia that the law is invalid. Judge Welsh threw out a case against Joseph Kahriger, who had been accused of failing to buy a tax stamp.

Robert L. Stern, special assistant to the attorney general, argued on the other hand that the gambling tax act was a proper exercise of federal taxing power. Stern said six other U. S. District Courts have sustained the law.

Attorney Kossman asserted:

"This is the darnedest tax law ever passed in this country. It even exempts purely social or friendly types of betting from taxation. And who can tell what's a friendly bet?"

The gambling tax law requires certain types of gamblers to buy a $50 tax stamp each year, register their names and all persons associated with hem, and pay a 10 per cent tax on the amount of money taken in bets.

War Correspondents See No Early Truce

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Five American war correspondents agreed in a recorded radio broadcast from Tokyo tonight that there are no prospects for a truce in Korea in the near future.

The correspondents also were in agreement that, with the stalemate in truce talks, an all-out offensive by United Nations troops in Korea would "best be understood by the Communists."

But they questioned whether the U. N. forces have the capacity now to bomb Manchurian bases, whether Chinese Nationalists troops should be used in Korea, and whether an ultimatum to Russia in the U. N. would be effective.

German Reds Seize U. S. Army Sergeant

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP)—A U. S. Army sergeant was seized by East German police today when he stepped about two feet over the border into the Soviet zone.

The sergeant was in charge of six Germans who were erecting signs to mark the American sector border. When he stepped back to check the correct placement of a sign, five police suddenly approached with leveled guns and arrested him, German witnesses said.

The Army has started negotiations for his release. The sergeant's name is being withheld temporarily.

Crippled Ship Reaches Port

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—The Navy cargo ship Vela's engine went dead and left her helpless in a gale off Newfoundland today, but she later got up enough power to crawl into port.

For a time the 2,600 ton vessel, Navy-owned but manned by a civilian crew of 45 men and 10 or 15 officers, was drifting without power in a 45-knot gale, with gusts up to 75 knots. In her path was a wild, rocky stretch of Newfoundland coast.

But the crew later got the engine going so the Vela could proceed at about three knots, and she arrived tonight and anchored in Cape St. Mary's harbor.

The Military Sea Transport Service said the Navy ship Redbud ould proceed to St. Mary's to give the Vela any aid needed.

Siamese Twins Reported 'Fine' After Separation

CLEVELAND, Dec. 16 (AP)—Two-day-old girls who were Siamese twins for the first three hours of their lives were "doing fine" today in separate incubators.

Doctors at Mt. Sinai Hospital drew the curtain of anonimity about them when their rare case became known today, but said "they're doing fine. They're eating and performing normally."

The twins were separated by surgery. At birth they were joined by a short band of flesh at the point where the chest and abdomen meet. The three doctors who participated in the case emphasized that the operation was possible because no vital organs were concerned.

Japanese Police Probe Spy Case

TOKYO, Wednesday, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Foreign Office disclosed Tuesday that police were working on a bizarre international syp case which the Japanese press said involved an official of the Russian mission here.

While police made one arrest, the Foreign Office said Japan lacked the power to do much about the ring unless U. S. security secrets were involved. Japan has no espionage law.

National rural police arrested Masao Mitsuhashi, a Japanese radio engineer and former soldier. Police said he told them he was paid for spying by Russia, but secretly worked for U. S. counter-intelligence agents.

He was quoted as saying he sent coded messages to Russia and North Korea three times each month, but only after showing them to agents of the U. S. Counter Intelligence Corps (CIO).

Police seized a U. S. type radio transmitted at Mitsuhashi's home. They said he had been in touch with a radio station with call signals near the big Siberian port of Vladivostok.

Another facet of the case involved Wataru Kaji, leftist writer who raised a furor in the Japanese Diet last week with charges that he was held prisoner by U. S. agents for more than a year.

The Foreign Office said "there seems to be some connection" between Kaji and the spy ring.

NATO Navy Post To Mountbatten

PARIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Atlantic Allies today named British Adm. Earl Mountbatten boss of the Mediterranean sea lanes, but left the powerful American Sixth Fleet independent in that sea under U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney.

Prodded by Prime Minister Churchill, proud of British naval traditions, the Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization acted to:

1. Set up a brand new command in the Mediterranean with the mainly defensive role of guarding the Allied lifelines between Gibraltar and Suez.

2. Placed it initially under Mountbatten, 52, a World War II hero who is a second cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, but specified that he must be subordinate to the supreme Allied commander in Europe, U. S. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

3. Left the U. S. Sixth Fleet as the naval arm of the Naples-based Southern European Command headed by Carney, who also reports directly to Ridgway. The primary wartime job of this fleet would be to support land operations.

CIO's New President Undergoes Surgery

DETROIT, Dec. 16 (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, newly elected president of the CIO, was operated on at Harper Hospital today for the removal of his gall bladder.

Afterwards the CIO United Auto Workers union issued a statement quoting the operating surgeon, Dr. H. C. Saltzstein, as saying the operation had gone "smoothly." No complications are expected, it was said.

Today's Chuckle

He was a rather noted chief of police and someone asked him if it were true that he was brought up in a tough neighborhood.

"Tough?" said the Chief. "Why it was so tough in our neighborhood, a cat with a tail was a tourist."

Frenzied, Singing Red POWs Charged Guards In Mutiny

PONGAM ISLAND, Korea, Dec. 16 (AP)—U. S. soldier guards told today how they quelled an uprising Sunday by 4,500 Red prisoners, who roared Communist songs in a glassy-eyed trance heedless of a storm of gunfire.

Before order was restored after 55 furious minutes, 84 prisoners had been killed or mortally wounded in the deadliest riot of all those that have broken out in prison compounds this year. Another 118 prisoners and two American and three South Korean guards were injured.

"They brought it on themselves," Lt. Col. George P. Miller, camp commander, said. "They tested our strength and lost."

Miller told visiting correspondents the uprising was an attempt at a mass breakout. The plot had been discovered when a note from a prisoner was intercepted recently, he added.

This small island off the southwest coast of Koje Island—scene of bloody prison riots last February—houses 9,200 pro-Communist North Koreans. But only six compounds housing 4,500 prisoners took part.

Red Cross Charges UNC Abuses POWs

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 16. (AP)—The International Red Cross released correspondence today in which it charged the U. N. Command in Korea with violating the Geneva Conventions on war prisoners by using force and withholding food and ater on Koje Island.

The letters included replies by Gen. Mark Clark, the U. N. commander, who said "the control measures x x x have been necessary and are fully justified."

Flattop Keel Laid

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Navy Secretary Dan Kimball today laid the keel for a spanking new 60,000-ton supercarrier with a proud old name—the USS Saratoga.

"Another great weapon for the arsenal of democracy," he called it at the Brooklyn Navy Yard where the ceremony was carried out in bright, cold weather.

Pace 'Admonishes' Gen. Pick In African Air Base Fiasco

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, and two engineer colonels have been rapped on the knuckles by Secretary of the Army Pace in connection with the huge North African air base construction job which congressmen sharply criticized.

The secretary, in a letter dated Nov. 4 and made public today by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), informed the Senate preparedness subcommittee that he had "admonished" the three officers.

The investigating group, headed by Sen. Johnson, had reported widespread waste, confusion and corruption in the multimillion dollar Moroccan operation. It had said there was extensive drunkenness, loafing and looting, and the building itself was poor.

It had called on Pace to take for what it called his failure to give the committee the full story in testimony about the projects. It had also recommended that he determine whether "disciplinary action" against any officers was warranted by performance on the job itself.

Pace replied that he had "admonished" Pick, along with Col. F. F. Frech, former division engineer in New York, and Col. George T. Derby, district engineer in Morocco when the bases were under rush construction.

Pentagon spokesmen said an admonition in such a situation is "in the nature of — but without the strength of—an administrative reprimand."

McKeldin Backs Suspension Of Motor Vehicles Employe

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16 (AP)—Gov. McKeldin tonight backed up Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd in his decision to suspend a motor vehicles employe for "breaking" a censorship rule.

The governor declared that Mudd had "acted with propriety" in suspending Chief Investigator Edward Lyden for 30 days.

Earlier today, the $4,800-a-year investigator defended his action in explaining a complicated court case to newspapermen.

"I did nothing wrong," Lyden said. "My conscience is 100 per cent clear."

McKeldin supported Mudd's action and his rule for clearing information for the public through the commissioner's office.

Mudd said Lyden was suspended for describing for newsmen deceptions he said were practiced by a few used-car dealers with regard to the state's temporary auto license law.

Maryland Roads Program Backed By Council Group

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16 (AP) — A Legislative Council committee today cautiously approved a 568-million-dollar roads program for Maryland, but Democrats pounced on it to renew their attack on the McKeldin administration's system of paying state police costs.

The budget committee voted 5-2 to attach a clause that would draw state apropriations from general funds.

Gov. McKeldin two years ago put across a budget plan which put the police under motor vehicle funds. Democrats last session were unable to override the governor's veto of a measure to return to the old system and save the motor vehicle money for highway improvements.

Slightly more than two million dollars is involved in the current budget.

Only seven of the 10-member committee were present for its cleanup of proposed legislation, pending a final meeting of the full council tomorrow. The vote split according to party.

Senator Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) proposed the amendment. He said it would turn all available funds to roads construction and not to "investigators and private chauffeurs to drive people around."

The gigantic 12-year roads program moved along with reservations. Only House Speaker Luber (D-Balto 5th) and Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany County) voted against it. But all said they wanted only to get the project before the entire General Assembly next month.

These proposals also received budget committee aproval:

1. Change the rotational property assessment plan which goes into effect in 1954. Without amendment ,one-third of each county and Baltimore City will be reassessed each year, but new valuations will be held off the books until the three-year cycle expires. The committee voted to accept the new appraisals each year.

2. Increase maximum weekly workmen's compensation benefits from $32 to $40 and unemployment compensation from $25 to $30.

3. Prevent out-of-state retailers without a Maryland license from delivering untaxed liquors to homes within the state.

Meanwhile the Council's Judiciary Committee rejected a Sobeloff proposal to transfer Miners Hospital in Frostburg from state responsibility to a local agency.

Rioting Follows Gandhi Disciple's Death By Fasting

MADRAS, India, Dec. 16 (AP) — Political tension gripped Madras today after the death by fasting of a disciple of the late Mohandas K. Gandhi over refusal of the Indian government to create a new southern state on language lines.

Police were alerted as Communists capitalized on the incident. Communist-led rioters looted a freight train and made off with goods valued at $200,000 in the Andhra district. Police said the rioters were in complete control of the Vijayawada railroad station in the center of the Andhra area.

Potti Sriramulu, 51, died after going without food for 58 days. He was a leader of Andhra groups demanding that the government form a new state, to be called Andhra, out of 11 districts in Madras State whose people speak the Telegu language.

As Sriramulu's funeral procession formed, extra police guards were posted along a five-mile route through Madras outsikirts to a Hindu cremation grounds on the edge of the city. Political leaders of all parties organized demonstrations and mass meetings near the grounds. Rioting students in the Telegu-speaking areas of Northern Madras stopped trains and scrawled Andhra slogans on the cars.

The AEC said it was awarding the Reynolds Electrical and Engineering Company, El Paso, Tex., a contract calling for maintenance, minor construction and scientific structural services at the Nevada proving grounds beginning Jan. 1.

Orders Strike Ended

TOKYO, Wednesday, Dec. 17 (AP) —Japan's coal miners' union today heeded a government-imposed 50-day "cooling off" period and ordered 200,000 workers back to the pits without final settlement of wage demands.

The action ended temporarily at least a 57-day-old strike which had crippled Japanese industry and seriously depleted coal stocks.

There was no immediate indication what salary the miners would be paid.

The coal miners' federation is seeking an increase from $1.52 to $2.94 for an eight-hour day.

CHERBOUG, France, Dec. 15 (AP) —The Duke of Windsor said tonight neither he nor his Baltimore-born duchess will attend the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II next June 2, though he probably will be in England at the time.

The Duchess of Windsor told ship news reporters aboard the Queen Mary before sailing with the duke for a four-month stay in the United States that she would not accompany him if he goes to England during coronation week.

Prosecutor Suggests State Do Away With Death Penalty

TOWSON, Md., Dec. 16 (AP) — A Maryland prosecutor suggested today that the state consider abolition of the death penalty.

John E. Raine, Jr., state's attorney for Baltimore County, said his recommendation stemmed in part from Gov. McKeldin's commutation of Jesse Reid's death sentence.

Reid, 25-year-old Negro convicted of raping a 15-year-old white girl, was spared from the gallows last Wednesday, one day before the scheduled hanging. McKeldin commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

Earlier this year the governor took the same action in the case of Thomas Alexander Edwards, Negro sugar refinery worker condemned to death for the sensational Glen Burnie murders of John H. Mahlan and Mary Kline.

"I do not criticize Gov. McKeldin, who exercised his constitutional powers honestly and sincerely," said Raine, "but considering the facts of the Reid case, it seems to me that the commutation must have been based on opposition to capital punishment on moral grounds."

He noted that the case had been reviewed by the Maryland Court of Appeals and then was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, with neither court setting aside the death sentence.

The largest rural population in the United States is said to belong to the state of Texas.

John E. Raine, Jr., state's attorney for Baltimore County, said his recommendation stemmed in part from Gov. McKeldin's commutation of Jesse Reid's death sentence.

Reid, 25-year-old Negro convicted of raping a 15-year-old white girl, was spared from the gallows last Wednesday, one day before the scheduled hanging. McKeldin commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

Earlier this year the governor took the same action in the case of Thomas Alexander Edwards, Negro sugar refinery worker condemned to death for the sensational Glen Burnie murders of John H. Mahlan and Mary Kline.

"I do not criticize Gov. McKeldin, who exercised his constitutional powers honestly and sincerely," said Raine, "but considering the facts of the Reid case, it seems to me that the commutation must have been based on opposition to capital punishment on moral grounds."

He noted that the case had been reviewed by the Maryland Court of Appeals and then was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, with neither court setting aside the death sentence.

The largest rural population in the United States is said to belong to the state of Texas.

Principal address will be by Rabbi Samuel Umen of B'er Chayim Congregation. Following will be singing of Christmas carols and the benediction by the Rev. Adam Grim, pastor of Grace Methodist Church.

Carl Amtower is program chairman.

Monday, the Mayor and Council accepted an invitation to attend the event. Mayor Roy W. Eves will speak.

Dr. John Gorris, of Apalachicola, Fla., is credited with manufacturing the first ice in the United States, in 1851.

Prague And Peacemongers

The current "peace" conference at Vienna appears made to order for Communist propagandists who want to divert attention from the blatant anti-Semitism of the recent Prague trials of Czechoslovak Communists. By speeches and demonstrations protesting the scheduled execution next month of the American atomic spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the Reds could for the time being at least hide the sties in their own eyes. Similar demonstrations are scheduled by Communists in this country.

But the Communists may have miscalculated in choosing a site for the latest in their long series of peace pow-wows, as the London Economist points out. "As these poets and artists happily fraternize with the North Korean people's choir and the union of Uzbekistan dramatists," suggests the anonymous British editorialist, "let them remember how near they are to Prague. The Communist dove of peace has blood on its claws."

The reference is to the huge white "dove of peace" designed by French artist Picasso, which dominated the congress hall at the Peiping "peace congress" in October. The dove is the symbol of the Vienna meeting also.

The recent Communist peace congresses have by no means taken in all European left-wingers. Laborite Bevan of Great Britain on December 7 called the current Vienna congress "a fake, a clay pigeon." And anti-Communist French artists have displayed their own version of the Picasso dove—with the wings of a military plane and spouting cannon, and underneath the caption, "The dove which goes boum."

However, the frequency with which Moscow stages these international "cultural" conclaves must be taken as some clue to their effectiveness as propaganda. The first was the World Congress of Intellectuals at Wroclaw (Breslau) Poland, in August 1948. Since then meetings have been held under various designations and in various countries. One such, the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace, was held in New York in March 1949.

Many prominent American sponsors withdrew their names when the real purposes of that conference were disclosed. A group calling itself Americans for Intellectual Freedom staged a simultaneous anti-Communist rally.

U. S. atrocities in Korea and UN use of germ warfare were "cited" without dissent from the 14 American delegates at the Peiping congress. The State Department withdrew passports of delegates and said they might face legal action for use of passports in violation of stamped restrictions banning travel to Communist countries.

The State Department in April 1948 refused to issue a passport to a left-wing congressman to attend a Paris conference of adherents of the Greek (Communist) guerrillas. And on the return of Paul Robeson after telling a Paris Congress in 1949 that American Negroes would never go to war against Russia, the State Department lifted the Negro singer's passport. But Robeson, still hot for peace (Moscow style), is reported to have sent recordings of inspirational songs to be played at Vienna.

Europe's Fading Slump

There is some very good news—and it's all the better because it had not been expected this soon—in simultaneous news dispatches from several European capitals to the effect that Europe "is somewhat hesitantly conceding" that it may be on the road to general economic recovery.

The hesitation is more or less natural. Business men and economists and government officials are likely to react to hopeful developments, after a slump, along one pattern. They hate to be too optimistic, lest the rose suddenly fade out of the sky and leave everyone more disturbed and disheartened than ever.

Besides, the data on trade and industry now appearing in Europe cover the first six months of 1952 and they are in unhappy contradiction with current reports of reviving sales and factory output. They confuse the picture and also serve as a reminder that the present upward movement could quickly pause and reverse itself.

Nevertheless, signs of greater activity seem to be unmistakable. In France, Western Germany, Denmark and Switzerland production since the usual summer decline has increased more than seasonally, and this seems to have happened also in The Netherlands and in Sweden. Demand has risen in a number of lines, but most markedly in textiles, clothing, boots and shoes.

Italy and Belgium have had some improvement in textiles and other consumer goods industries, and Britain seems to be approximately in the same category. Recovery has been most noticeable in lines where output fell most sharply earlier in the year.

It looks as if Europe is pulling out of the economic doldrums.

First Flight At Kittyhawk

A 12-months' celebration of the 50th anniversary of the first flight of the Wright Brothers at Kittyhawk, N. C. on Dec. 17, 1903, opens today. General Doolittle is chairman of the national committee advising communities during the 12-month period on how to commemorate the 1903 flight.

In 1896, when Wilbur Wright at 29 and Orville Wright at 25 had established themselves as bicycle makers in Dayton, Ohio, they became seriously interested in flying. They obtained all scientific data on aeronautics that they could get in print and from personal interviews. They began to experiment intensively with box kites, then with kite-like gliders, and tested various wing designs in a home-made air tunnel.

In 1900 and again in 1902 the Wright boys conducted glider experiments on Kill Devil Hill, near Kittyhawk on the North Carolina seacoast, a site recommended by the U. S. Weather Bureau. In 1903 they were ready to try out the motor-powered heavier-than-air machine they had built, with its 12 h. p. motor they also had made.

Orville made the first flight, lying prone upon the center panel alongside the motor. The plane took off by means of a catapult arrangement, made a forward speed of 33 miles an hour against the wind, stayed aloft for 12 seconds, landed 120 feet from the take-off point. On the same day three more flights were made, the last of which lasted 59 seconds and covered 852 feet. Only five spectators were on hand, and only a handful of newspapers credited the story of the flights sufficiently to print it, but modern aviation had been born.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Improved Cure Of Syphilis

There has been a letdown in the campaign against syphilis and as a result many persons believe that the disease is on the wane. This is not entirely true. On the other hand, because of modern treatment, the disorder is not as terrifying as in day's gone by.

Some one has circulated the rumor that syphilis can be cured for $5. This is a slight exaggeration even tho the cost of medical care today is only a fraction of what it was in the past. Prior to the advent of penicillin, it took a minimum of five years to treat the condition. Such a prolonged undertaking was expensive and many patients spent $5 a week for months and years on injections containing bismuth or the arsenicals before they were out of the woods. Nowadays, 85 to 90 per cent of all victims of syphilis can be cured with a daily injection of penicillin for seven to eight days. Should relapse occur, the same regimen is used over again.

The ease and efficacy with which early cases are treated is becoming so well known that few afflicted persons hesitate to seek care. Consequently, syphilis of the brain and heart seldom will be encountered in the future. This is another change for the better because such complications were common at one time, with many institutional beds occupied by victims of general paresis and tabes dorsalis (locomotor ataxia). Syphilitic heart disease formerly ranked high among the agents affecting the old ticker.

When syphilis is acquired, the causative spirochete finds its way into the blood stream and a few weeks before the appearance of the initial lesion (chancre) the parasite sets up nests of infection throughout the body. In this respect the disease is well established by the time the patient becomes aware of the infection. If neglected, the chancre lasts two to three weeks and with its disappearance comes the secondary stage, with sores on the skin and mucous membranes.

These lesions heal ultimately even without treatment but the process is slow. During this interval the disease is extremely contagious. When the body has manufactured enough protective antibodies to chase the spirochetes out of the blood stream, cure follows in some instances. Other patients maintain a focus of infection somewhere in the body that never comes to life, hence does no harm. Many of these individuals have positive blood tests but have no recollection of a primary or secondary lesion. In a third group (25 per cent) the disease continues to smolder and in the pre-penicillin era, these were the men and women who went on to develop syphilis of the brain and heart.

The protective antibodies are known as reagins. The numerous syphilis tests now available aim at detecting these substances that circulate in the blood rather than to determine the presence or absence of the causative organisms. The results give indirect evidence of the presence of syphilis at some time during the life of the individual.

TOMORROW: Heart gains over 25 years.

FISSURED LIPS

B. V. writes: Could itching and cracking at the corners of the mouth be due to scabies?

REPLY

No. Scabies rarely attacks the face. The lesions you describe usually are traceable to a fungous infection or to a vitamin B deficiency. Other possible causes of cracking include sensitivity to cosmetics or drugs, and exposure to wind, cold, or sun.

VITAMINS AND SKIN ERUPTIONS

E. E. G. writes: Which vitamin deficiencies cause dermatitis of the hands and feet?

REPLY

Too little vitamin A may lead to rough skin; deficiencies in certain parts of the B complex may do the same. This is particularly true of niacin; a shortage may lead to pellagra in which the eruptions of the hands and feet look like gloves and boots. But allergy and ringworm infection are more frequent causes of skin outbreaks on the extremities.

INTERPRETING EKG

G. H. writes: Are the majority physicians able to read electrocardiograms?

REPLY

No. Special training is required, but after this is obtained any physician will be able to interpret the electrocardiogram in relation to the individual case.

NAILING IT DOWN

Mrs. L. writes: Some months ago after extensive hemorrhaging, I was given six transfusions. Then I shed all my finger and toe nails and now new ones are coming in. Could this nail trouble be due to the transfusions?

REPLY

This is a remote possibility, but the cause of your hemorrhages is a more important consideration.

Stevenson Beats Eisenhower To White House; Corruption Issue To Focus Spotlight On Department Of Justice In Ike's Administration

WASHINGTON—At the big White House farewell dinner which President Truman gave for his cabinet, Gov. Adlai Stevenson stood in the reception line alongside the President, shaking hand with the guests.

Spying Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ives, his brother-in-law and sister, Adali said:

"Welcome to the White House. I told you I'd get here before Eisenhower."

"I always knew we'd get to see Adlai in the White House," shot back his sister to President Truman. "But we hoped it would be for more than one evening."

New Justice Department

Most important spotlight in the entire Eisenhower administration will be focused on the Justice Department after Jan. 20. Because of the corruption issue, what Justice does, how it prosecutes, who it appoints will be watched more carefully than any other department.

As a rebuilder of American morale, Justice will also be all-important. For the American public badly needs a restoration of confidence in honesty of government.

One unfortunate byproduct of exposing corruption is that everything about government is dishonest, and no government official is to be trusted. Young men who once wanted to serve in government, shun such service. Conscientious officials already in government become ashamed of their profession.

This is the kind of atmosphere which eventually rots any democratic system, eventually would make for communism.

Present Attorney General James McGranery, after getting off to a slow start, is now doing a good job of cleaning up corruption spots. But much more important is the personnel which will run the Justice Department under Eisenhower.

The man who will pick the personnel and manage it under new Attorney General Brownell is William Rogers, former counsel for the Senate Investigating Committee, now to be deputy attorney general. A Republican who got crime-busting experience under Dewey, Rogers came to Washington when the Republican controlled the Senate in 1946. Taking over direction of the old Truman Committee, he did such a good job that the Democrats continued him when they rewon control of Congress in 1948.

And it was Rogers, working under a Democrat, fair-minded Sen. Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who exposed a lot of Democratic influence peddling—the deep freezes of General Vaughan, the five-percenters, and confirmed this column's exposes, such as the operations of John Maragon and the scandals of the Tanforan race track.

Rogers not only is honest, but he is diligently honest. Having been practicing law for the past three years, he recently informed his law clients that he could handle no more court arguments for them, not even prior to Jan. 20. Since he does not take office until Jan. 20, there appeared to be nothing wrong with his continuing private law practice until that date.

However, Rogers feared that if he appeared in court, some judges might be influenced by the fact that in the future he will pass on their promotions; so he leaned over backwards, gave up all court appearances.

This is the young Republican who is on the lookout for diligently honest Republicans dedicated to public service, the kind recruited in the Roosevelt administration to operate the Justice Department and U. S. attorney's offices throughout the country.

Upon his operation will partly depend restoration of confidence in government.

New Taft-Hartley

The man who will have a great deal to say about the hottest potato in the new Congress—revision of the Taft-Hartley Act—is a 51-year-old Pennsylvanian, Congressman Sam McConnell, who says:

"I've never ducked a hot potato in my life and I don't intend to start now."

As chairman of the House Labor Committee, McConnell, a Republican, is bound to come into conflict with fellow Republican Bob Taft, who wants to do his own rewriting of the Taft-Hartley Act. McConnell, on the other hand, thinks it better to junk the entire act, write another one.

"We ought to have a simple, understandable law that makes sense to the man in the street," says McConnell. "If that means a completely new bill, then we ought to have a new bill."

McConnell's father was a Methodist minister. McConnell himself is a Presbyterian with a deep religious conviction against unfairness to any group, whether it be a labor union or a racial minority. He favors a "voluntary" FEPC program, administered by a federal commission with power to expose and recommend against employment discrimination because of race, color, or creed.

The Pennsylvanian is against the "compulsory" approach, believes public opinion is sufficient to deal with cases of job bias, provided they are exposed by a federal commission. He got a voluntary FEPC bill through the House in the 81st Congress, only to have it shelved by the Senate. McConnell will try again in the next session.

Still another hot potato will be federal aid to education, which created a religious ruckus in the last Congress. McConnell is opposed to full federal aid to education, but plans to put up a battle for school aid to needy and defense areas, as well as federal funds for school construction.

"I'm against anything that would impose government controls on our schools," says the Pennsylvania congressman, "but will do everything in my power to give every youngster in the United States a decent, safe and healthy school to learn in, as well as decently paid teachers.

"You can't please everybody," McConnell says. "Some folks in my district didn't like it when I took it upon myself, as a Republican, to get the Federal Mine Safety Bill through the last Democratic Congress. But I figured that preventing mine tragedies by stricter inspection was more important than whether people like me or disliked me."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign Policy Association

In its search for a pattern of interlocking relationships among organizations active in influencing the American people concerning its foreign policy, the McCarran Committee noted the very close cooperation between the Institute of Pacific Relations and the Foreign Policy Association. Time after time, before this committee of the Senate, the name of the Foreign Policy Association was entwined with that of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Here is a typical piece of evidence which indicates the intimacy:

"Exhibit No. 1247

April 8, 1942

Mr. Edward C. Carter,
Institute of Pacific Relations,
129 East 52d Street,
New York, New York.

Dear Mr. Carter:

Thank you for your letter about our Headline Book, 'Russia at War.' I sympathize entirely with your questions on the subject and I am really alarmed at the amount of distrust or, to put it more mildly, questioning of Russia that I find here.

"I think we have done a good job of promoting Mrs. Dean's pamphlet through the regular channels. I had in mind that your work with Russian Relief might have suggested certain new areas of interest which the pamphlet might help consolidate.

Sincerely yours,
ANNE H. JOHNSTONE,
MRS. ANNE HARTWELL JOHNSTONE,
Education Secretary"

Unfamiliar With Details

Most organizations of the type we are now discussing are managed not by their directors, who are usually very busy men and women, but by the paid staff who take on managerial authority and usually do as they please. The directors rarely know the details of activities and understand less when what is involved are ideological intricacies the nature of which is alien to them. Usually they are selected for their good name and not for their actual activity.

For instance, in the matter of the Institute of Pacific Relations, its chairman, Gerard Swope, makes the point that he is not a Communist, Marxist, or fellow-traveller. Nobody accused him of being anything of the sort. No one has even suspected him. Nor does that particularly matter. The 14 volumes of the McCarran Committee testimony show clearly that the IPR was an instrument of Soviet policy in the United States. Neither Gerard Swope nor anyone else can impeach the testimony before this committee, nor has anyone attempted to do it. A correct approach to the problem would be to confess carelessness in the past and to propose not to be careless again, calling attention publicly to past errors.

The Foreign Policy Association has announced a reorganization under a new president. John W. Nason of Swarthmore College. It has received a substantial grant from the Fund for Adult Education which is a subsidiary of the Ford Foundation. It is important to note how widespread is the use of Ford Foundation money in the institutions and organizations which influence public opinion. Presumably the Ford Foundation will produce a table showing how its funds have moved into these organizations, particularly those dealing out propaganda.

Staff Makeup Important

What is important, in relation to such an organization as the Foreign Policy Association, which is now expanding its service throughout the nation, through FPA branches and local World Affairs Councils, is not who is the chairman of the board or the president or that the money comes from the Ford Foundation, but who is on the staff.

If the staff remains the same as it was when the FPA was interlocked with the IPR, the policies will ultimately be the same, no matter what the board of directors proposes. Experience has shown that directors lay down broad operational policies which in no way affect the workings of these organizations.

John W. Davis, who is an astute lawyer, recently testified concerning the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, that in 1946, Alger Hiss's record, as now known, was unavailable to the distinguished men who composed the board. Yet, the fact is that Hiss's record was available in 1939. The head of the Guggenheim Foundation in another matter also made the point of not knowing of a record that was well-established. The FBI was criticized before the Cox Committee for not being willing to provide such a record, but the State Department or the Department of Justice had it and they could have made it available if they chose.

If the Foreign Policy Association will make their staff public, I am sure that each name can be screened for subversive affiliations.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Too many people — judging by letters and comments — have the impression that General Eisenhower is already operating as President of the United States. They know, of course, that he will not be inaugurated until January 20, but the trip to Korea, the announcement of the names of all the members of the new cabinet and the actual beginning in Washington of conferences between outgoing and incoming officials have produced a rather unusual impression that policies are being made by the President-elect. This isn't the case.

The hazardous journey to Korea has been looked upon by people generally as a move designed to find a solution to the problems of the Far East, but there are some critics who think that, because the President-elect hasn't announced his solution or because he says there is no magic formula, things aren't a bit different from what they have been.

No Drifting For Ike

The real difference is this: The Truman administration has been content to let matters drift. General Eisenhower, by the carefully chosen phrases of the statement he made on his return, indicates he doesn't intend to let matters drift. Nor does he plan to announce exactly what he has in mind so that the Communists will know about it in advance.

There wasn't any question, despite Mr. Truman's "sour grapes" attitude, but that a leader with General Eisenhower's background could learn much from a firsthand look at the Korean situation. It is just the kind of problem that the man who led the Normandy expedition into France in 1944 is capable of analyzing. What the President-elect said on his return is full of significance for those who measure carefully the phrase of a prepared statement. Thus he said.

"I return with renewed confidence that a satisfactory solution in Korea can be speeded."

This means the general thinks something can be done to change the outlook from interminable war to a terminable war based on an honorable truce.

Again he said:

"All of us have long realized that there can be no simple formula for bringing a swift, victorious end to this war. But at the very least that knowledge prepares us for whatever tough tasks lie ahead."

This means that there isn't going to be a complacency toward or acquiescence in the existing situation. Some "tough tasks" ahead suggest ventures in an intensified war to induce a truce. This is illustrated in another sentence:

"For we face an enemy whom we cannot hope to impress by words, however eloquent, but only by deeds — executed under circumstances of our own choosing."

This is a welcome variation from the old theme that America must do nothing because of a fear of enlarging the war. On that subject the general touched, too:

"I believe that the architects of aggression can be made to realize that it would be fateful folly to ignite other conflagrations like the Korean conflict elsewhere in the world."

Warning To Russia

The foregoing is a warning to Soviet Russia of unmistakable clarity. It will be noted in Moscow that Eisenhower isn't timid and isn't afraid to issue a warning that any enlargement of the "cold war" by more Koreas would be a dangerous thing for Russia to try. The whole statement, on the other hand, though full of firmness and resoluteness, is pacific in its nature, as the general concludes:

"This journey marks not the end but the beginning of a new effort to conclude honorably this phase of the global struggle."

The President-elect is being twitted by some who misrepresent and distort his campaign speeches. He didn't promise to end the Korean War overnight. But he did promise to do something—to seek and plan a solution. This he has already started on—a series of steps calculated to bring the Korean War to an end in the not-far-distant future. The results of the Korean trip will be unfolded from time to time after January 20. But it is significant to note the general's comment that "in the strictly military sphere, certain problems of supply have reached rather serious proportions and require only correction."

In due time the world will come to know the meaning of this veiled reference to a stand-still policy which the enemy misunderstood as a willingness to agree to a stalemate. There is, therefore, distinct progress already toward an ultimate solution of the Korean problem.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)—This is an appeal to my friends the war correspondents now serving in Korea, and their editors back home, to lay off a Third Division operations officer named Maj. John Eisenhower. Let him serve his time in peace — if that's the word for Korea — and get rotated out of there like any other man who has done his bit.

Watching father and son tour the fronts recently, posing patiently for tons of pictures, the thought occurred that the son is the most identified man in Korea. Of all the hundreds of thousands of Americans, British, French, Ethiopians, Indians, etc. etc. etc. fighting there, the son of the next President of the United States is the only one whose exact whereabouts must be constantly known to the enemy.

There are times when not even Gen. Mark Clark's full staff knows quite where he is. There are times when Gen. Van Fleet's whereabouts are a mystery. There are times, most times, when every other major and pfc. named John can wrap himself in blessed anonymity — a fine condition for any man hovering around a shooting war.

Not so John Eisenhower. Whatever happens to his old man back in the states, somebody wants John's opinion of it in Korea. Whatever happens to an outfit to which he is attached, John's view of the matter is sought. Let a story come out of the states that one of John's kids has said "goo," and John is tracked down, notified, and his comment printed — or broadcast — even if it's "no comment."

It's not all the fault of the newsgatherers and their alternate brains at home. Maj. John Eisenhower has become the hottest potato in Korea since that newsworthy event of November 4. No commander wants him around for very long. No commander wants him to get hurt or worse while serving under the commander's orders — for reasons too obvious to list.

So young Eisenhower, who is a quiet, competent, studious young man, completely devoted to his life's work, finds himself as homeless as a poker chip. But his transient stops up till now have been faithfully recorded, notably increasing his chances of being captured or ambushed, or even kidnaped. One would have to see some of the ROK army rejects who work around our military installations implications of the latter fate.

The fine young officer just wants to do his duty. He wants no favors. As a matter of fact, he wrote his distinguished father a very stiff letter shortly after election. He had just undergone a transfer from certain work which he enjoyed very much. He suspected that his father might have been behind the move, and was quite sharp with him.

The President-elect, worried as any father with a son in Korea, wrote back the truth: That he knew nothing of the transfer, that he had been in communication with no one about it. The son then asked that the famed father write to the commander who had signed the transfer and get him to take him back. Eisenhower turned this down on the ground that he just was not going to interfere in any way.

It's a tough situation for young Eisenhower, but he keeps his feelings to himself. He has seen more action than even his father knows about. He has enough rank and authority over there to move up work, and he has taken advantage of this. He has done so knowing, as all others know in Korea, that the enemy can at any time isolate a forward U. N. force if the enemy chooses to stand the losses. And the enemy has shown no reluctance in that respect.

This, then, is an appeal to let the fellow alone; to give him the break that others get; anonymity.

ON THE NEWS

BY ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

You Tell 'Em, Kid!

Waited a stretch for General MacArthur's high-angle oratory and finally dialed him at a chew-and-choke.

It was over at the Wagon-Astoria. And a good post-brandial speech too. If Mac is only going to pop off at banquets I'll have to take a winter's option on a tuxedo.

Mac clammed up during Ike's run for the roses during the political equinoxes. While we all waited for him to shill for Ike he never said eep, app or good red herring.

At the televised indoor picnic, Mac Channeled that he has the blue-prints and specifications for cleaning up the Korean police action. That information is as welcome as a point on a pencil.

Mac kind of bugged up the details by getting as coy as a twisted handkerchief. He said he would give out the formula if he was asked.

There's only one guy to ask him and that's Ike. If I asked him or you asked him what would happen? We would suddenly have a speaking engagement with the back of his neck.

Prague And Peacemongers

The current "peace" conference at Vienna appears made to order for Communist propagandists who want to divert attention from the blatant anti-Semitism of the recent Prague trials of Czechoslovak Communists. By speeches and demonstrations protesting the scheduled execution next month of the American atomic spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, the Reds could for the time being at least hide the sties in their own eyes. Similar demonstrations are scheduled by Communists in this country.

But the Communists may have miscalculated in choosing a site for the latest in their long series of peace pow-wows, as the London Economist points out. "As these poets and artists happily fraternize with the North Korean people's choir and the union of Uzbekistan dramatists," suggests the anonymous British editorialist, "let them remember how near they are to Prague. The Communist dove of peace has blood on its claws."

The reference is to the huge white "dove of peace" designed by French artist Picasso, which dominated the congress hall at the Peiping "peace congress" in October. The dove is the symbol of the Vienna meeting also.

The recent Communist peace congresses have by no means taken in all European left-wingers. Laborite Bevan of Great Britain on December 7 called the current Vienna congress "a fake, a clay pigeon." And anti-Communist French artists have displayed their own version of the Picasso dove—with the wings of a military plane and spouting cannon, and underneath the caption, "The dove which goes boum."

However, the frequency with which Moscow stages these international "cultural" conclaves must be taken as some clue to their effectiveness as propaganda. The first was the World Congress of Intellectuals at Wroclaw (Breslau) Poland, in August 1948. Since then meetings have been held under various designations and in various countries. One such, the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace, was held in New York in March 1949.

Many prominent American sponsors withdrew their names when the real purposes of that conference were disclosed. A group calling itself Americans for Intellectual Freedom staged a simultaneous anti-Communist rally.

U. S. atrocities in Korea and UN use of germ warfare were "cited" without dissent from the 14 American delegates at the Peiping congress. The State Department withdrew passports of delegates and said they might face legal action for use of passports in violation of stamped restrictions banning travel to Communist countries.

The State Department in April 1948 refused to issue a passport to a left-wing congressman to attend a Paris conference of adherents of the Greek (Communist) guerrillas. And on the return of Paul Robeson after telling a Paris Congress in 1949 that American Negroes would never go to war against Russia, the State Department lifted the Negro singer's passport. But Robeson, still hot for peace (Moscow style), is reported to have sent recordings of inspirational songs to be played at Vienna.

Europe's Fading Slump

There is some very good news—and it's all the better because it had not been expected this soon—in simultaneous news dispatches from several European capitals to the effect that Europe "is somewhat hesitantly conceding" that it may be on the road to general economic recovery.

The hesitation is more or less natural. Business men and economists and government officials are likely to react to hopeful developments, after a slump, along one pattern. They hate to be too optimistic, lest the rose suddenly fade out of the sky and leave everyone more disturbed and disheartened than ever.

Besides, the data on trade and industry now appearing in Europe cover the first six months of 1952 and they are in unhappy contradiction with current reports of reviving sales and factory output. They confuse the picture and also serve as a reminder that the present upward movement could quickly pause and reverse itself.

Nevertheless, signs of greater activity seem to be unmistakable. In France, Western Germany, Denmark and Switzerland production since the usual summer decline has increased more than seasonally, and this seems to have happened also in The Netherlands and in Sweden. Demand has risen in a number of lines, but most markedly in textiles, clothing, boots and shoes.

Italy and Belgium have had some improvement in textiles and other consumer goods industries, and Britain seems to be approximately in the same category. Recovery has been most noticeable in lines where output fell most sharply earlier in the year.

It looks as if Europe is pulling out of the economic doldrums.

First Flight At Kittyhawk

A 12-months' celebration of the 50th anniversary of the first flight of the Wright Brothers at Kittyhawk, N. C. on Dec. 17, 1903, opens today. General Doolittle is chairman of the national committee advising communities during the 12-month period on how to commemorate the 1903 flight.

In 1896, when Wilbur Wright at 29 and Orville Wright at 25 had established themselves as bicycle makers in Dayton, Ohio, they became seriously interested in flying. They obtained all scientific data on aeronautics that they could get in print and from personal interviews. They began to experiment intensively with box kites, then with kite-like gliders, and tested various wing designs in a home-made air tunnel.

In 1900 and again in 1902 the Wright boys conducted glider experiments on Kill Devil Hill, near Kittyhawk on the North Carolina seacoast, a site recommended by the U. S. Weather Bureau. In 1903 they were ready to try out the motor-powered heavier-than-air machine they had built, with its 12 h. p. motor they also had made.

Orville made the first flight, lying prone upon the center panel alongside the motor. The plane took off by means of a catapult arrangement, made a forward speed of 33 miles an hour against the wind, stayed aloft for 12 seconds, landed 120 feet from the take-off point. On the same day three more flights were made, the last of which lasted 59 seconds and covered 852 feet. Only five spectators were on hand, and only a handful of newspapers credited the story of the flights sufficiently to print it, but modern aviation had been born.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Improved Cure Of Syphilis

There has been a letdown in the campaign against syphilis and as a result many persons believe that the disease is on the wane. This is not entirely true. On the other hand, because of modern treatment, the disorder is not as terrifying as in day's gone by.

Some one has circulated the rumor that syphilis can be cured for $5. This is a slight exaggeration even tho the cost of medical care today is only a fraction of what it was in the past. Prior to the advent of penicillin, it took a minimum of five years to treat the condition. Such a prolonged undertaking was expensive and many patients spent $5 a week for months and years on injections containing bismuth or the arsenicals before they were out of the woods. Nowadays, 85 to 90 per cent of all victims of syphilis can be cured with a daily injection of penicillin for seven to eight days. Should relapse occur, the same regimen is used over again.

The ease and efficacy with which early cases are treated is becoming so well known that few afflicted persons hesitate to seek care. Consequently, syphilis of the brain and heart seldom will be encountered in the future. This is another change for the better because such complications were common at one time, with many institutional beds occupied by victims of general paresis and tabes dorsalis (locomotor ataxia). Syphilitic heart disease formerly ranked high among the agents affecting the old ticker.

When syphilis is acquired, the causative spirochete finds its way into the blood stream and a few weeks before the appearance of the initial lesion (chancre) the parasite sets up nests of infection throughout the body. In this respect the disease is well established by the time the patient becomes aware of the infection. If neglected, the chancre lasts two to three weeks and with its disappearance comes the secondary stage, with sores on the skin and mucous membranes.

These lesions heal ultimately even without treatment but the process is slow. During this interval the disease is extremely contagious. When the body has manufactured enough protective antibodies to chase the spirochetes out of the blood stream, cure follows in some instances. Other patients maintain a focus of infection somewhere in the body that never comes to life, hence does no harm. Many of these individuals have positive blood tests but have no recollection of a primary or secondary lesion. In a third group (25 per cent) the disease continues to smolder and in the pre-penicillin era, these were the men and women who went on to develop syphilis of the brain and heart.

The protective antibodies are known as reagins. The numerous syphilis tests now available aim at detecting these substances that circulate in the blood rather than to determine the presence or absence of the causative organisms. The results give indirect evidence of the presence of syphilis at some time during the life of the individual.

TOMORROW: Heart gains over 25 years.

FISSURED LIPS

B. V. writes: Could itching and cracking at the corners of the mouth be due to scabies?

REPLY

No. Scabies rarely attacks the face. The lesions you describe usually are traceable to a fungous infection or to a vitamin B deficiency. Other possible causes of cracking include sensitivity to cosmetics or drugs, and exposure to wind, cold, or sun.

VITAMINS AND SKIN ERUPTIONS

E. E. G. writes: Which vitamin deficiencies cause dermatitis of the hands and feet?

REPLY

Too little vitamin A may lead to rough skin; deficiencies in certain parts of the B complex may do the same. This is particularly true of niacin; a shortage may lead to pellagra in which the eruptions of the hands and feet look like gloves and boots. But allergy and ringworm infection are more frequent causes of skin outbreaks on the extremities.

INTERPRETING EKG

G. H. writes: Are the majority physicians able to read electrocardiograms?

REPLY

No. Special training is required, but after this is obtained any physician will be able to interpret the electrocardiogram in relation to the individual case.

NAILING IT DOWN

Mrs. L. writes: Some months ago after extensive hemorrhaging, I was given six transfusions. Then I shed all my finger and toe nails and now new ones are coming in. Could this nail trouble be due to the transfusions?

REPLY

This is a remote possibility, but the cause of your hemorrhages is a more important consideration.

Stevenson Beats Eisenhower To White House; Corruption Issue To Focus Spotlight On Department Of Justice In Ike's Administration

WASHINGTON—At the big White House farewell dinner which President Truman gave for his cabinet, Gov. Adlai Stevenson stood in the reception line alongside the President, shaking hand with the guests.

Spying Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ives, his brother-in-law and sister, Adali said:

"Welcome to the White House. I told you I'd get here before Eisenhower."

"I always knew we'd get to see Adlai in the White House," shot back his sister to President Truman. "But we hoped it would be for more than one evening."

New Justice Department

Most important spotlight in the entire Eisenhower administration will be focused on the Justice Department after Jan. 20. Because of the corruption issue, what Justice does, how it prosecutes, who it appoints will be watched more carefully than any other department.

As a rebuilder of American morale, Justice will also be all-important. For the American public badly needs a restoration of confidence in honesty of government.

One unfortunate byproduct of exposing corruption is that everything about government is dishonest, and no government official is to be trusted. Young men who once wanted to serve in government, shun such service. Conscientious officials already in government become ashamed of their profession.

This is the kind of atmosphere which eventually rots any democratic system, eventually would make for communism.

Present Attorney General James McGranery, after getting off to a slow start, is now doing a good job of cleaning up corruption spots. But much more important is the personnel which will run the Justice Department under Eisenhower.

The man who will pick the personnel and manage it under new Attorney General Brownell is William Rogers, former counsel for the Senate Investigating Committee, now to be deputy attorney general. A Republican who got crime-busting experience under Dewey, Rogers came to Washington when the Republican controlled the Senate in 1946. Taking over direction of the old Truman Committee, he did such a good job that the Democrats continued him when they rewon control of Congress in 1948.

And it was Rogers, working under a Democrat, fair-minded Sen. Clyde Hoey of North Carolina, who exposed a lot of Democratic influence peddling—the deep freezes of General Vaughan, the five-percenters, and confirmed this column's exposes, such as the operations of John Maragon and the scandals of the Tanforan race track.

Rogers not only is honest, but he is diligently honest. Having been practicing law for the past three years, he recently informed his law clients that he could handle no more court arguments for them, not even prior to Jan. 20. Since he does not take office until Jan. 20, there appeared to be nothing wrong with his continuing private law practice until that date.

However, Rogers feared that if he appeared in court, some judges might be influenced by the fact that in the future he will pass on their promotions; so he leaned over backwards, gave up all court appearances.

This is the young Republican who is on the lookout for diligently honest Republicans dedicated to public service, the kind recruited in the Roosevelt administration to operate the Justice Department and U. S. attorney's offices throughout the country.

Upon his operation will partly depend restoration of confidence in government.

New Taft-Hartley

The man who will have a great deal to say about the hottest potato in the new Congress—revision of the Taft-Hartley Act—is a 51-year-old Pennsylvanian, Congressman Sam McConnell, who says:

"I've never ducked a hot potato in my life and I don't intend to start now."

As chairman of the House Labor Committee, McConnell, a Republican, is bound to come into conflict with fellow Republican Bob Taft, who wants to do his own rewriting of the Taft-Hartley Act. McConnell, on the other hand, thinks it better to junk the entire act, write another one.

"We ought to have a simple, understandable law that makes sense to the man in the street," says McConnell. "If that means a completely new bill, then we ought to have a new bill."

McConnell's father was a Methodist minister. McConnell himself is a Presbyterian with a deep religious conviction against unfairness to any group, whether it be a labor union or a racial minority. He favors a "voluntary" FEPC program, administered by a federal commission with power to expose and recommend against employment discrimination because of race, color, or creed.

The Pennsylvanian is against the "compulsory" approach, believes public opinion is sufficient to deal with cases of job bias, provided they are exposed by a federal commission. He got a voluntary FEPC bill through the House in the 81st Congress, only to have it shelved by the Senate. McConnell will try again in the next session.

Still another hot potato will be federal aid to education, which created a religious ruckus in the last Congress. McConnell is opposed to full federal aid to education, but plans to put up a battle for school aid to needy and defense areas, as well as federal funds for school construction.

"I'm against anything that would impose government controls on our schools," says the Pennsylvania congressman, "but will do everything in my power to give every youngster in the United States a decent, safe and healthy school to learn in, as well as decently paid teachers.

"You can't please everybody," McConnell says. "Some folks in my district didn't like it when I took it upon myself, as a Republican, to get the Federal Mine Safety Bill through the last Democratic Congress. But I figured that preventing mine tragedies by stricter inspection was more important than whether people like me or disliked me."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Foreign Policy Association

In its search for a pattern of interlocking relationships among organizations active in influencing the American people concerning its foreign policy, the McCarran Committee noted the very close cooperation between the Institute of Pacific Relations and the Foreign Policy Association. Time after time, before this committee of the Senate, the name of the Foreign Policy Association was entwined with that of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Here is a typical piece of evidence which indicates the intimacy:

"Exhibit No. 1247

Mr. Edward C. Carter,
Institute of Pacific Relations,
129 East 52d Street,
New York, New York.

Dear Mr. Carter:

Thank you for your letter about our Headline Book, 'Russia at War.' I sympathize entirely with your questions on the subject and I am really alarmed at the amount of distrust or, to put it more mildly, questioning of Russia that I find here.

"I think we have done a good job of promoting Mrs. Dean's pamphlet through the regular channels. I had in mind that your work with Russian Relief might have suggested certain new areas of interest which the pamphlet might help consolidate.

Sincerely yours,
ANNE H. JOHNSTONE,
MRS. ANNE HARTWELL JOHNSTONE,

Unfamiliar With Details

Most organizations of the type we are now discussing are managed not by their directors, who are usually very busy men and women, but by the paid staff who take on managerial authority and usually do as they please. The directors rarely know the details of activities and understand less when what is involved are ideological intricacies the nature of which is alien to them. Usually they are selected for their good name and not for their actual activity.

For instance, in the matter of the Institute of Pacific Relations, its chairman, Gerard Swope, makes the point that he is not a Communist, Marxist, or fellow-traveller. Nobody accused him of being anything of the sort. No one has even suspected him. Nor does that particularly matter. The 14 volumes of the McCarran Committee testimony show clearly that the IPR was an instrument of Soviet policy in the United States. Neither Gerard Swope nor anyone else can impeach the testimony before this committee, nor has anyone attempted to do it. A correct approach to the problem would be to confess carelessness in the past and to propose not to be careless again, calling attention publicly to past errors.

The Foreign Policy Association has announced a reorganization under a new president. John W. Nason of Swarthmore College. It has received a substantial grant from the Fund for Adult Education which is a subsidiary of the Ford Foundation. It is important to note how widespread is the use of Ford Foundation money in the institutions and organizations which influence public opinion. Presumably the Ford Foundation will produce a table showing how its funds have moved into these organizations, particularly those dealing out propaganda.

Staff Makeup Important

What is important, in relation to such an organization as the Foreign Policy Association, which is now expanding its service throughout the nation, through FPA branches and local World Affairs Councils, is not who is the chairman of the board or the president or that the money comes from the Ford Foundation, but who is on the staff.

If the staff remains the same as it was when the FPA was interlocked with the IPR, the policies will ultimately be the same, no matter what the board of directors proposes. Experience has shown that directors lay down broad operational policies which in no way affect the workings of these organizations.

John W. Davis, who is an astute lawyer, recently testified concerning the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, that in 1946, Alger Hiss's record, as now known, was unavailable to the distinguished men who composed the board. Yet, the fact is that Hiss's record was available in 1939. The head of the Guggenheim Foundation in another matter also made the point of not knowing of a record that was well-established. The FBI was criticized before the Cox Committee for not being willing to provide such a record, but the State Department or the Department of Justice had it and they could have made it available if they chose.

If the Foreign Policy Association will make their staff public, I am sure that each name can be screened for subversive affiliations.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Too many people — judging by letters and comments — have the impression that General Eisenhower is already operating as President of the United States. They know, of course, that he will not be inaugurated until January 20, but the trip to Korea, the announcement of the names of all the members of the new cabinet and the actual beginning in Washington of conferences between outgoing and incoming officials have produced a rather unusual impression that policies are being made by the President-elect. This isn't the case.

The hazardous journey to Korea has been looked upon by people generally as a move designed to find a solution to the problems of the Far East, but there are some critics who think that, because the President-elect hasn't announced his solution or because he says there is no magic formula, things aren't a bit different from what they have been.

No Drifting For Ike

The real difference is this: The Truman administration has been content to let matters drift. General Eisenhower, by the carefully chosen phrases of the statement he made on his return, indicates he doesn't intend to let matters drift. Nor does he plan to announce exactly what he has in mind so that the Communists will know about it in advance.

There wasn't any question, despite Mr. Truman's "sour grapes" attitude, but that a leader with General Eisenhower's background could learn much from a firsthand look at the Korean situation. It is just the kind of problem that the man who led the Normandy expedition into France in 1944 is capable of analyzing. What the President-elect said on his return is full of significance for those who measure carefully the phrase of a prepared statement. Thus he said.

"I return with renewed confidence that a satisfactory solution in Korea can be speeded."

This means the general thinks something can be done to change the outlook from interminable war to a terminable war based on an honorable truce.

Again he said:

"All of us have long realized that there can be no simple formula for bringing a swift, victorious end to this war. But at the very least that knowledge prepares us for whatever tough tasks lie ahead."

This means that there isn't going to be a complacency toward or acquiescence in the existing situation. Some "tough tasks" ahead suggest ventures in an intensified war to induce a truce. This is illustrated in another sentence:

"For we face an enemy whom we cannot hope to impress by words, however eloquent, but only by deeds — executed under circumstances of our own choosing."

This is a welcome variation from the old theme that America must do nothing because of a fear of enlarging the war. On that subject the general touched, too:

"I believe that the architects of aggression can be made to realize that it would be fateful folly to ignite other conflagrations like the Korean conflict elsewhere in the world."

Warning To Russia

The foregoing is a warning to Soviet Russia of unmistakable clarity. It will be noted in Moscow that Eisenhower isn't timid and isn't afraid to issue a warning that any enlargement of the "cold war" by more Koreas would be a dangerous thing for Russia to try. The whole statement, on the other hand, though full of firmness and resoluteness, is pacific in its nature, as the general concludes:

"This journey marks not the end but the beginning of a new effort to conclude honorably this phase of the global struggle."

The President-elect is being twitted by some who misrepresent and distort his campaign speeches. He didn't promise to end the Korean War overnight. But he did promise to do something—to seek and plan a solution. This he has already started on—a series of steps calculated to bring the Korean War to an end in the not-far-distant future. The results of the Korean trip will be unfolded from time to time after January 20. But it is significant to note the general's comment that "in the strictly military sphere, certain problems of supply have reached rather serious proportions and require only correction."

In due time the world will come to know the meaning of this veiled reference to a stand-still policy which the enemy misunderstood as a willingness to agree to a stalemate. There is, therefore, distinct progress already toward an ultimate solution of the Korean problem.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, (INS)—This is an appeal to my friends the war correspondents now serving in Korea, and their editors back home, to lay off a Third Division operations officer named Maj. John Eisenhower. Let him serve his time in peace — if that's the word for Korea — and get rotated out of there like any other man who has done his bit.

Watching father and son tour the fronts recently, posing patiently for tons of pictures, the thought occurred that the son is the most identified man in Korea. Of all the hundreds of thousands of Americans, British, French, Ethiopians, Indians, etc. etc. etc. fighting there, the son of the next President of the United States is the only one whose exact whereabouts must be constantly known to the enemy.

There are times when not even Gen. Mark Clark's full staff knows quite where he is. There are times when Gen. Van Fleet's whereabouts are a mystery. There are times, most times, when every other major and pfc. named John can wrap himself in blessed anonymity — a fine condition for any man hovering around a shooting war.

Not so John Eisenhower. Whatever happens to his old man back in the states, somebody wants John's opinion of it in Korea. Whatever happens to an outfit to which he is attached, John's view of the matter is sought. Let a story come out of the states that one of John's kids has said "goo," and John is tracked down, notified, and his comment printed — or broadcast — even if it's "no comment."

It's not all the fault of the newsgatherers and their alternate brains at home. Maj. John Eisenhower has become the hottest potato in Korea since that newsworthy event of November 4. No commander wants him around for very long. No commander wants him to get hurt or worse while serving under the commander's orders — for reasons too obvious to list.

So young Eisenhower, who is a quiet, competent, studious young man, completely devoted to his life's work, finds himself as homeless as a poker chip. But his transient stops up till now have been faithfully recorded, notably increasing his chances of being captured or ambushed, or even kidnaped. One would have to see some of the ROK army rejects who work around our military installations implications of the latter fate.

The fine young officer just wants to do his duty. He wants no favors. As a matter of fact, he wrote his distinguished father a very stiff letter shortly after election. He had just undergone a transfer from certain work which he enjoyed very much. He suspected that his father might have been behind the move, and was quite sharp with him.

The President-elect, worried as any father with a son in Korea, wrote back the truth: That he knew nothing of the transfer, that he had been in communication with no one about it. The son then asked that the famed father write to the commander who had signed the transfer and get him to take him back. Eisenhower turned this down on the ground that he just was not going to interfere in any way.

It's a tough situation for young Eisenhower, but he keeps his feelings to himself. He has seen more action than even his father knows about. He has enough rank and authority over there to move up work, and he has taken advantage of this. He has done so knowing, as all others know in Korea, that the enemy can at any time isolate a forward U. N. force if the enemy chooses to stand the losses. And the enemy has shown no reluctance in that respect.

This, then, is an appeal to let the fellow alone; to give him the break that others get; anonymity.

Baering Down

ON THE NEWS

BY ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

You Tell 'Em, Kid!

Waited a stretch for General MacArthur's high-angle oratory and finally dialed him at a chew-and-choke.

It was over at the Wagon-Astoria. And a good post-brandial speech too. If Mac is only going to pop off at banquets I'll have to take a winter's option on a tuxedo.

Mac clammed up during Ike's run for the roses during the political equinoxes. While we all waited for him to shill for Ike he never said eep, app or good red herring.

At the televised indoor picnic, Mac Channeled that he has the blue-prints and specifications for cleaning up the Korean police action. That information is as welcome as a point on a pencil.

Mac kind of bugged up the details by getting as coy as a twisted handkerchief. He said he would give out the formula if he was asked.

There's only one guy to ask him and that's Ike. If I asked him or you asked him what would happen? We would suddenly have a speaking engagement with the back of his neck.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Shocking is the name of the color that, brilliant, sparkling and festive, you see in the fashion windows on the avenues of all our great cities right now. And it's perfect as any holiday hue could be!

But how perfect is it on you? Will this hot, high pink defeat your own personal coloring? Not if you heed the advice that follows. There are ways and ways to wear it, and a right one for all!

Shocking With Flattery

Is your skin fair? Then you'd be right in thinking that even a touch of shocking could fade your complexion, particularly if your hair is blond or any mutation thereof. But it won't if you wear an entire dress of it and—this is most important—use a strong pink lipstick and brown eyeshadow. Be daring with the lipstick and subtle with the eyeshadow, blending the latter carefully.

Should you be one of the rare fair with jet tresses, your innate senses have probabaly already told you that this color and make-up combination are as flattering as could be devised.

Is yours a brunet complexion? With light or dark locks, either a little or a lot of shocking is apt to sallow creamy, golden or olive skin. To prevent this calamity, see to it that your powder base is as dark as your skin and that it has an underlying trace of pink. And here's your dramatic note—wear a true-red lipstick! Amazing as it may seem, true-red lipstick worn with shocking pink is one of the perfect enhancements for brunets—the kind that the dusky always are seeking but seldom find. Try it!

Redheads And Silver Tops

Can a redhead wear shocking? Indeed yes, if her locks are on the Titian side! But otherwise, shocking will "kill" her own color. To be safe, test with a deep pink lipstick. If it flatters you, so will shocking. But don't attempt a whole costume of this color—instead, wear just a touch of it with matching lipstick. The two with a dark costume will make a real stunner!

For silver tops, shocking is a highly sophisticated color and a most becoming one as well when a blue-red lipstick is used against a fair skin or a clear red when the skin is dark. Just picture a silver-haired woman in a charcoal velvet dinner suit with a long swathe of shocking chiffon trailing from its pocket. There's true distinction if ever it's found!

Abide by these counsels and you and shocking will go together like tinsel and the tree—and look just as wondrous!

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

This Cock-Eyed World

The bride was young and beautiful, the husband old, lonely and famous. They were on their honeymoon in Palm Beach, Fla., when Grantland Rice and I met them. He was an old friend and she was a new entry, his third wife, who wasn't hard to take. We asked them to have lunch with us at the Bath and Tennis Club.

John Wheeler

"I've got a couple of guys with me," said the man. He introduced them.

"Who are they?" I asked her when I had a chance.

"Oh," she responded, "he surprised me when they showed up on the train. He brought them along to play gin rummy with him."

This seemed to be an astounding arrangement, so Mr. Rice and I escorted the bride to Bradley's, a fashionable gambling joint, one evening. To be sure you lost your money in style, the boss had a rule you couldn't enter unless you looked like you had on at least a dinner jacket. My friend was all right, except for his shoes which were white. We had all the croupiers in the place taking off their black ones to try to find a pair to fit, but no luck. He finally gave up and went to the hotel to put on his own.

They let him in all right when he got back, and this move eventually cost him $264, if I remember correctly. The young lady claimed she enjoyed her honeymoon after she met us. I guess her husband, the gin-rummy enthusiast, figured we were safe escorts, and he was right.

A debutante stopped to see us on the way to the hunt ball, looking very pretty and fluffy in an off-the-shoulder evening dress.

"I've told my beau he has to buy me champagne tonight—that's all I like," she announced.

"Better not be too fussy," I advised her.

It reminded me of one time several years ago, when my wife and I were at the races at Tia Juana and not doing too well financially. I walked into the bar and met Jack Dempsey, the champ, there, talking to two pretty young ladies who turned out to be moving picture actresses and very decorative.

"Will you have a drink?" I asked them.

"We'll take champagne," they responded in chorus.

Dempsey spoke up firmly.

"You'll take beer and like it," he said.

I had always admired him as a fighter and now I had great respect for him as a man and friend.

Connie Mack, the veteran manager, started a young pitcher several years ago. With men on first and second, he took a big windup, and each easily stole a base. When he came into the bench after the inning, Connie asked him gently,

"Why did you do that?"

"I didn't know there was anybody on," he answered.

The manager then called his ball team around him and said,

"Boys, after this I want you to tell him. There are no secrets on this club."

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—They call it the legitimate theater, probably as a snide crack at movies and other forms of show business, and when you get right down to it, it's a pretty minor segment of life in New York. A handful of musty old showhouses, an annual collection of new plays which are more bad than good, an art medium that in most ways is inferior to the films—and yet withal, it has a tremendous impact on entertainment all over the world. A hit show on Broadway becomes a four-million-dollar movie, it is produced later in Britain, Sweden or Australia, it makes new stars overnight. Occasionally it can jam Shakespeare down the masses' throats, thus improving their culture. The Broadway show has its uses.

The $64 question in the legitimate theater, always, is: will it be a hit? Today I talked a little with the person who, probably above all others, has the divining-rod ability to tell if it will be or not. Her name is Helen Thompson and she runs the Play of the Month Guild, which picks out shows for 20,000 members throughout the East and as far off as Wisconsin, Texas and the Virgin islands, and supplies them with tickets for these shows at box-office prices. Plus a 10-buck yearly service fee.

The pleasant, prematurely gray Miss Thompson, who has overcome the handicap of having been a Vassar student, picks out the shows for her clients many months before they open on Broadway. Thus, Guild clinets will be seeing the Bea Little show this month or next, but Helen saw it long ago, on the summer theater circuit. When she saw it in some out-of-they-way straw showhouse, she decided it was going to be a hit in the big town. There were some differences of opinion about the show's worth—even now I'm inclined to string along with the opposition—but Helen went out on a limb and booked it for the Guild. She was right.

She picks them out by reading them, seeing them in the summer theaters, attending out-of-town tryouts, going to readings and rehearsals and even turning up at "auditions," which is what they call the brief run-through of a show before an audience of skeptical souls who are inclined to invest in it. Helen has plays running out of her ears.

Once in a while, but not often, she misses. She picked "The Gambler" this year and it missed fire. More often, she has stuck by her guns about plays that looked dubious in manuscript or rehearsal, and it has paid off.

She saw Shirley Booth's "The Time Of The Cuckoo" in Wilmington, Del., read the Wilmington critics' far from enthusiastic reviews, and decided in a genteel way, the heck with them. She made it a Guild play, and today it is likely the most attractive serious drama on Broadway.

Helen uses everything but witchcraft to pick a hit. She mediates, deduces, subtracts and psychoanalyzes. When Leonard Sillman produced "New Faces Of 1952," for instance, she had no real way of knowing whether it would be successful, because musicals are extremely difficult to figure—but she used common sense and decided that Sillman, who had missed with his last show, had benefited by experience and would come up with a good one this time. He was too good a producer, she figured, to have two busts in a row.

By now the producers are so aware of the Guild's presence that many of them come to her with their scripts and plans, beforehand, to interest her. It's a good, intelligent, word-of-mouth clientele she produces for them, 80 per cent of them coming from New York. Richard Rodgers was so pleased with going out on a limb for the revival of "Pal Joey" that he urged Howard Lindsay and Buck Crouse to turn over the whole first night house for their next show to her. They did—but she turned it down. It was "One Bright Day," something less than a roaring success.

Miss Thompson has the brains not always to pick shows that she herself likes, although she does try to offer Guild subscribers the best theater. I asked her what one show she'd like to see over. She wouldn't be pinned down, but she did say that she doubted she could do better than Laurence Olivier's "Oedipus Rex." Then I asked her if she had a surefire formula for picking a hit. She grinned.

"Any Rodgers and Hammerstein show," she said.

$53,000 Damage Suits Filed In Circuit Court

Three suits were filed in Circuit Court today in which damages of $53,000 are asked as a result of a highway crash last August 31 on the McMullen Highway in which five men were killed.

The main suit is for $50,000 and was filed by the State of Maryland for the use of Genevieve Y'Vonne Kalbaugh, widow of Charles Lee Kalbaugh, and Sandra Joyce Kalbaugh, Charles Lee Kalbaugh Jr., and Karen J. Kalbaugh, minor children of the deceased, against James Moran of Westernport, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran.

The declaration states that Richard Moran was the owner of a car, which was driven by the late Timothy M. Gilmore in a reckless manner and at an excessive rate of speed causing it to crash into another machine parked along the highway.

Fatally injured in the crash besides Moran, Kalbaugh and Gilmore were Earl Kalbaugh, and Richard A. Michael.

Earl C. Kalbaugh filed suit as the administrator of the estate of Earl Kalbaugh against James Moran, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran. This suit asks $1,500 for medical and funeral expenses.

All three court actions were docketed by Horace P. Whitworth Jr., attorney for the plaintiffs.

County To Give Long Holiday

In order to give employes of the Court House a long holiday over the Christmas week end Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday ordered the building be closed December 26 and 27 in addition to Christmas Day.

This will give Court House attaches four days holiday. The Allegany County Board of Commissioners and Orphans Court will hold their sessions next week on Monday and Tuesday, December 22 and 23.

Workers in the County Roads Department will also get the long holiday with the understanding that in case of an emergency such as a heavy snowfall they can be called out on any of the holidays at straight pay.

Total Of 6,000 County Students Buy Insurance

The demand for the scholastic accident insurance obtained for Allegany County students has been so great policies are being made available after the Christmas holidays, school officials announced today.

Approximately 6,000 students, teachers, principals, supervisors and Board of Education staff members took out the insurance when it was offered during October.

A deadline for policies was set during that month, but affiliation will again be possible in January.

According to Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of transportation for the Board of Education, the insurance costs $1 per person for each school year.

The policy will cover the insured on the way to, during and from school. Coverage is provided for pupils while participating in school sponsored activities such as bands, glee clubs debating teams, etc. This includes travel to and from these events.

Those participating in all athletic activities except interscholastic football also are covered, even after school hours. It does not apply to spectators, Ramey pointed out.

The insurance provides for hospital confinement, doctor's services, nursing costs, and ambulance fees up to $1,000 as well as dental services up to $200.

Dismemberment of both hands and both feet will result in a $7,500 payment. Loss of one eye and one hand or foot will bring a $5,000 payment. Loss of an eye brings $1,000. Accidental death payment is $1,000.

Two Wills Admitted To Probate Here

Two wills were admitted to probate yesterday morning in Orphans Court.

The will of Virgil T. Wolford, this city, names his son, Ernest VanDyke Wolford, 731 Bedford Street, executor and beneficiary. He died December 11 at the age of 86 years. He served part of one term as a judge in Orphans Court of Allegany County in the early 1930's.

The will of Martha J. Thomas, of Frostburg, who died December 12, named her sister Alice Kearsing as executor. Mrs. Kearsing died during the same week as her sister so the will provided that Mrs. Augusta Matteson, a friend, is to be executor.

Repairs Made To Power Unit

Repairs have been completed on the power generating unit at the River Plant of Potomac Edison and operations are again normal.

H. W. Price, district manager, stated that while the big generating unit was undergoing a periodic inspection a loose thrust collar on the turbine shaft was disclosed.

The repairing of this collar and the rebabbiting of a bearing required two weeks' work. While this was being done, Price said repair crews also performed necessary maintenance work on the high pressure boiler.

During the time the River Plant was not operating, service to customers in this area was maintained by using current from the new Potomac Edison generating unit at the Albright Plant in Preston County.

Albright's 75,000-kilowatt unit is Potomac Edison's biggest steam-electric generating installation, having almost twice the capacity of the Cumberland unit.

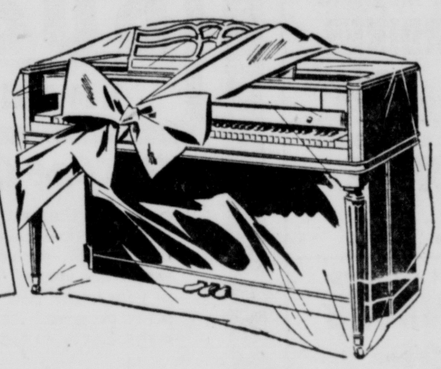

The Albright unit went on the PE system's lines the latter part of November with power being routed to customers via a million-dollar transmission line which connects Albright and Ridgeley.

Marcos de Niza, a Franciscan friar, is thought to have been the first white man to enter what now is Arizona.

Earl C. Kalbaugh filed suit as the administrator of the estate of Earl Kalbaugh against James Moran, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran. This suit asks $1,500 for medical and funeral expenses.

A similar suit for $1,500 was filed by Genevieve Y'Vonne Kalbaugh, administrator of the estate of Charles Lee Kalbaugh against James Moran, administrator of the estate of Richard Moran, for medical and funeral expenses.

All three court actions were docketed by Horace P. Whitworth Jr., attorney for the plaintiffs.

Housing Unit To Be Named Benjamin Banneker Homes

The Cumberland Housing Authority announced yesterday that the 30-unit Negro housing project on Frederick Street will be known officially as the "Benjamin Banneker Homes."

James B. Raines, executive director and secretary, said the name was selected indirectly by Earle L. Bracey, principal of Carver High School adjoining the project, and member of the housing authority.

According to Bracey, "the project had to be named after an individual who's dead." Several outstanding Negroes were considered by Carver teachers and students but Banneker, born out of slavery in Maryland some 221 years ago, was chosen.

Made First Clock

Banneker, noted astronomer and mathematician of his time, was the first American to assemble a clock. He also is credited with publishing one of the first series of almanacs in the United States.

Born November 9, 1731 of a free mother and slave father, Banneker never served in bondage and had many of the privileges accorded white people. At the age of six he began to record various events while residing in Baltimore County with his grandmother, an English dairymaid who came to America.

His father, an African known as Robert, was taken in by a white family, baptized and given the name of Banneker.

Banneker became a farmer and mathematician after the death of his father. He married and, at the age of 38, was known as an inventor, astronomer and surveyor. He wrote a number of books.

Laid Out Washington

In his childhood, Banneker's education was aided by the George Ellicott family of Baltimore County.

For meritorious achievement, he was received by many notables including President Thomas Jefferson, who named him to the commission that surveyed and laid out Washington in the District of Columbia, and Vice President James McHenry.

Banneker, an advocate of peace, had pointed out that while the U. S. Constitution in 1787 made provisions for war, it suffered from the glaring defect of not doing at least as much to promote peace. He recommended establishment of the office of Secretary of Peace in the cabinet of the President.

The exact date of his death is not known. However, one paper stated he died October 28, 1806.

Ground on the Frederick Street project, the city's second low-rent undertaking, was broken November 11. The John I. Vandegrift Company was awarded the contract with a bid of $265,000.

Power Off Today

Changes in electric lines in rural sections near Cumberland will cause power there to be off today from 1 to 4 p. m. for users of the Potomac Edison system.

As a result, the shutdown will affect service of Potomac Valley Television Company during that time.

Success, Failure Of New Administration May Depend On Handful Of Congressmen

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A few men, possibly a half dozen, will wield the power in the new Congress that will possibly determnie success or failure for the first Republican administration in 20 years.

As the 83rd Congress prepared to convene Jan. 3, it became steadily apparent that the most important man on Capitol Hill during the next two, and possibly four, years is "Mr. Republican" himself, Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio.

His counterpart in the House will be Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the next speaker, a quiet man, in contrast to the dynamic Taft, but one who wields great influence among his fellow Republicans.

While Taft will be the undisputed leader of the Senate, regardless of what official title he actually holds, there will be others who, because of their positions, will wield great power in determining the course of major legislation and congressional activities.

Among them are Senator Styles Bridges, New Hampshire, present Republican floor leader who is expected to become chairman of the powerful Senate appropriations committee; Senator Eugene Millikin, Colorado, chairman of the Republican Conference, the GOP caucus, and new head of the Senate finance committee; Senator Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin, prospective chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Joseph McCarthy, Wisconsin, who will head the potent investigative Senate government operations committee.

In the House a similar situation exists. There, Rep. Charles Halleck, Indiana, will be an important wheel in the Republican machine in his positions as majority floor leader.

Others in important positions who will help determine the course of legislation are Reps. Leo Allen, Illinois, who will head the House rules committee, with its life-and-death control over bills; John Taber, New York, new chairman of the appropriations committee, with its control over the nation's purse strings; Daniel Reed, New York, prospective head of the ways and means committee, where all revenue legislation (including tax cuts) originates, and Jesse Wolcott, Michigan, who will lead the banking and currency committee, with its jurisdiction over economic controls.

The committee chairmen make up what might be called the second echelon of power in the new Congress. The top echelon, the group that will actually determine major policy, will consist of the following:

In the Senate, Taft, Bridges and Millikan. In the House, Martin, Halleck and Allen.

While the others will have important decisions to make on legislation, their course will be largely determined by the policies established by the top echelon. If they fail to heed the wishes of the GOP leadership, the latter is usually in a position to block action on their bills.

There are some "mavericks" who may cause the Republican leadership trouble, among them Joseph McCarthy, the controversial junior senator from Wisconsin. McCarthy's chairmanship of the Senate government operations committee will place him in a position where he can direct extensive and sweeping investigations.

While the Democrats will be in a minority, there will be a few men among them who will nevertheless wield considerable influence in the Republican Congress, because the GOP majority in each chamber consists of only a few votes.

Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia, will be looked to by the Republican leadership to swing over southern support in the event of defections on the GOP side. Senator Richard Russell, Georgia, as unofficial head of the Senate minority, will be much sought after also by the Republicans. Senator Lyndon Johnson, Texas, will be the Democratic floor leader.

In the House, two potent southern Democrats are expected to work closely with the Republicans on important legislation, as they have in the past. They are Reps. Howard Smith, Virginia, and E. E. Cox, Georgia, undisputed leaders of the southern wing.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, Texas, will step down in the new Congress and probably become Democratic floor leader. He will be assisted by Rep. John McCormack, Massachusetts, the present majority leader. Rayburn commands great respect among his colleagues, but does not always influence the voting of the southern members.

Vice President-elect Richard Nixon will be important in the new Congress in the event of a Senate tie. In his position as the Senate's presiding officer, he will be able to break it. However, he is not expected to wield great influence otherwise unless General Eisenhower gives him additional duties.

General Eisenhower will have to depend in great measure for the success or failure of his legislative program upon two men who did not support him in his fight for the Republican nomination.

Martin favored the nomination of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, while Taft was Eisenhower's strongest contender for the honor.

Success, Failure Of New Administration May Depend On Handful Of Congressmen

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A few men, possibly a half dozen, will wield the power in the new Congress that will possibly determnie success or failure for the first Republican administration in 20 years.

As the 83rd Congress prepared to convene Jan. 3, it became steadily apparent that the most important man on Capitol Hill during the next two, and possibly four, years is "Mr. Republican" himself, Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio.

His counterpart in the House will be Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, the next speaker, a quiet man, in contrast to the dynamic Taft, but one who wields great influence among his fellow Republicans.

While Taft will be the undisputed leader of the Senate, regardless of what official title he actually holds, there will be others who, because of their positions, will wield great power in determining the course of major legislation and congressional activities.

Among them are Senator Styles Bridges, New Hampshire, present Republican floor leader who is expected to become chairman of the powerful Senate appropriations committee; Senator Eugene Millikin, Colorado, chairman of the Republican Conference, the GOP caucus, and new head of the Senate finance committee; Senator Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin, prospective chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Joseph McCarthy, Wisconsin, who will head the potent investigative Senate government operations committee.

In the House a similar situation exists. There, Rep. Charles Halleck, Indiana, will be an important wheel in the Republican machine in his positions as majority floor leader.

Others in important positions who will help determine the course of legislation are Reps. Leo Allen, Illinois, who will head the House rules committee, with its life-and-death control over bills; John Taber, New York, new chairman of the appropriations committee, with its control over the nation's purse strings; Daniel Reed, New York, prospective head of the ways and means committee, where all revenue legislation (including tax cuts) originates, and Jesse Wolcott, Michigan, who will lead the banking and currency committee, with its jurisdiction over economic controls.

The committee chairmen make up what might be called the second echelon of power in the new Congress. The top echelon, the group that will actually determine major policy, will consist of the following:

In the Senate, Taft, Bridges and Millikan. In the House, Martin, Halleck and Allen.

While the others will have important decisions to make on legislation, their course will be largely determined by the policies established by the top echelon. If they fail to heed the wishes of the GOP leadership, the latter is usually in a position to block action on their bills.

There are some "mavericks" who may cause the Republican leadership trouble, among them Joseph McCarthy, the controversial junior senator from Wisconsin. McCarthy's chairmanship of the Senate government operations committee will place him in a position where he can direct extensive and sweeping investigations.

While the Democrats will be in a minority, there will be a few men among them who will nevertheless wield considerable influence in the Republican Congress, because the GOP majority in each chamber consists of only a few votes.

Senator Harry Byrd, Virginia, will be looked to by the Republican leadership to swing over southern support in the event of defections on the GOP side. Steele, Turner, Rank, Hoffman Chalk Up 51 Against Somerset Hi

Allegany High School's basketeers cut loose with a 31-goal barrage to trounce the Somerset High School Eagles last night at Campobello before a gathering of 500 persons. The score was 71-52.

The victory was the second for Coach Walter L. Bowers' Campers who opened with a 54-51 at Piedmont last week.

Allegany flashed top shooting form and all-around good teamwork.

It was nip and tuck during the first six minutes of play but the Campers grabbed a 15-11 lead at the quarter and stayed out in front the rest of the way. The score was 39-24 at the halfway mark and 55-32 at the close of the third stanza.

Four Allegany players accounted for 51 points. Dave Steele headed the procession with 15, Bill Turner and Jim Hoffman collected 13 each and Dick Rank tossed in 10.

Bob Lape, Somerset's lanky guard, garnered seven field goals and 18 points and was easily the Eagles' outstanding player. Marsh, Somerset forward, thrilled with four goals on mid-floor shots in the first half, and took runner-up honors with 11 tallies.

Bill Lape, Somerset center, was ejected on personal fouls in the final period. The lineups:

Miami U. President Dies

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP)—Dr. Bowman Ashe, president of the University of Miami, died today at Doctors Hospital in suburban Coral Gables.

He was 67, and a native of Scottsdale, Pa.

Rome, in the time of Julius Caesar, contained about 1,200,000 persons.

Grid Coach Dies

JIMMY KITTS, former head football coach at Rice Institute, is dead at El Paso, Tex., at the age of 52. Kitts suffered an internal hemorrhage. He coached Rice to the Southwest Conference crowns in 1934 and 1937. (International)

As You Were

(This is the 28th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This lady often is referred to as the "Annie Oakley of West Virginia" because of her proficiency with firearms. She was the top woman gunner in the Mountain State for about 10 years. At the Grand American Handicap Shoot in Vandalia, Ohio, she won the "Champion of Champions" race by defeating women from 47 other states. On two occasions she and her husband romped off with the husband and wife title and another time they lost out by a single target. Her dad, who died in 1948, was called the "Father of Trapshooting in West Virginia" and was the founder of a well known gun club in the 1920s. He and his brother brought to West Virginia the first herd of Angus cattle to come east of the Mississippi and they encouraged the breeding of thoroughbred cattle in a nearby county. What is this lady's name?

Followers of trapshooting all know Mrs. John "Bunny" Sanders of New Creek near Keyser, W. Va. Her father, the late J. Sloan Arnold, was a stockman, orchardist, promoter of wild life and founded the Meadow Lark Gun Club which was built on his property. He was connected with trapshooting for 25 years. This photo of "Bunny" was taken in the 1930s.

As You Were

(This is the 28th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This lady often is referred to as the "Annie Oakley of West Virginia" because of her proficiency with firearms. She was the top woman gunner in the Mountain State for about 10 years. At the Grand American Handicap Shoot in Vandalia, Ohio, she won the "Champion of Champions" race by defeating women from 47 other states. On two occasions she and her husband romped off with the husband and wife title and another time they lost out by a single target. Her dad, who died in 1948, was called the "Father of Trapshooting in West Virginia" and was the founder of a well known gun club in the 1920s. He and his brother brought to West Virginia the first herd of Angus cattle to come east of the Mississippi and they encouraged the breeding of thoroughbred cattle in a nearby county. What is this lady's name?

Followers of trapshooting all know Mrs. John "Bunny" Sanders of New Creek near Keyser, W. Va. Her father, the late J. Sloan Arnold, was a stockman, orchardist, promoter of wild life and founded the Meadow Lark Gun Club which was built on his property. He was connected with trapshooting for 25 years. This photo of "Bunny" was taken in the 1930s.

Incoming Congressmen Call For Cuts In U. S. Foreign Aid

BY CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Incoming congressmen are sounding a heavy chorus of calls to cut United States foreign aid programs.

In an Associated Press survey, 90 per cent of senators and representatives willing to take a stand wanted to reduce American assistance to free world allies in the battle against communism.

Some protested hotly against what they called waste and poor results in the outpouring of 87 billion dollars during the past 12 years. Some others defended it as providing the most defense per dollar.

Suggestions included (1) a complete new study to appraise the whole program, (2) making loans instead of outright grants, (3) a shift in emphasis from Europe to the Middle and Far East, (4) doing away with economic aid grants but keeping military assistance and the Point Four program of technical know-how to help backward nations help themselves.

The almost solid lineup for economy in foreign aid may confront President-elect Eisenhower with one of his first and toughest problems in dealing with the Republican-controlled Congress.

Only six months ago Eisenhower was commander of mutual security forces in Europe. He said then that cuts below $6,900,000,000 in foreign aid appropriations this fiscal year ending June 30 might "endanger the proposed military buildup . . . which I consider essential in the interest of U. S. security."

After bitter battles, Congress finally appropriated six billion for the year. President Truman's budget had asked for eight billion. Counting funds left over from previous years, actual spending this year may run from six to seven billion.

Extension of the aid program is one of the first items on the agenda for the new Congress, convening Jan. 3. And it's sure to kick up a big debate.

Because of his experience in this field and the prestige of his political triumph, Eisenhower will have strong influence. But even Eisenhower, if he tries, may have trouble holding back some Republicans and Southern Democrats who led slashing attacks on foreign aid in the past and who seem primed for another try.

Six House members called for no new appropriations for foreign aid. And replies from 143 urged cuts — many of them using language such as "severely . . drastically . . . to the limit."

Only 16 representatives, 13 Democrats and three Republicans, indicated support for anything like the present program. Forty-two made non-commital replies, perhaps waiting for some cue from Eisenhower.

Thirty-one senators, including some of the most influential Republicans, joined the lineup in favor of foreign aid cuts while Sen. Langer (R-ND) pronounced flatly, "Nothing for foreign aid."

Four senators indicated a willingness to hold out against reductions and some of them had reservations such as "if needed for security."

Replies from 22 senators showed no pronounced leanings now — again indicating some lawmakers may be waiting for word from Eisenhower. Sen.-elect Beall (R-Md), referring to Eisenhower and Secretary of State-designate Dulles, said "I should cheerfully follow their expert lead."

The only hint from the new President's administration has been word from Harold E. Stassen, incoming mutual security administrator, that mutual security is a "cornerstone" in Eisenhower's foreign policy.

Tulsans 'Adopt' Needy Children For Christmas

By MARIAN ROGERS
Central Press Correspondent

TULSA, Okla. — Sometimes it doesn't take much to make a Christmas miracle—just the tears of lonely people, some ragged slum tykes and a man like Chauncey Moore who has a heart as big as Santa's pack.

Moore, a Tulsa probation officer, is the founder of Holiday Children, Inc., a new kind of "corporation" which adopts needy youngsters into foster homes for Christmas. It is run from a file cabinet, has no charter and its stockholders are couples who long for a child's laughter on Christmas morning.

The plan reaps a golden harvest. Slum kids find dolls, fire trucks and college educations under the Christmas tree. Unemployed fathers get jobs and tired, overworked mothers believe again in Christmas angels. Most of all, it's everybody's program. "Adopting" parents include millionaires, office clerks, physicians, oil men, carpenters and people from all walks of life.

Each year Moore wraps up the old Christmas story in shining new hope and makes the cynical feel an inner glow that they thought was forever lost. The genial, silver-haired probation officer finds the children, okays the Christmas visit and handles the details.

Since 1947 Moore has given "dream" Christmases to 325 needy youngsters. Last year a bumper crop of 73 was harvested and Moore expects more under-privileged children to participate this year.

Moore's Christmas career began in December, 1947. He was chatting with a couple in his office while a Tulsa World reporter waited outside to see him. Moore remarked with a heavy sigh that children of parents on probation from prison sentences generally grow up under tragic conditions—evil companions, filthy, disease-infected homes and neglect.

Listening to Moore, the woman felt sick at heart. She and her husband were childless and had tried for years to adopt a child. Impulsively she plucked at Moore's sleeve. "Please," she said. "Please get us a child like that." The tears blurred the words.

Now Chauncey Moore is a big Scots-Irishman with a heart as soft as melted custard. Also childless, he knew how his friends felt but he also knew the rigid structure of present adoption laws. How could he help?

Maybe the angels whispered in Moore's ear. Suddenly he wondered why a needy child couldn't be placed in the couple's home—just for Christmas.

Moore outlined his plan and offered to supply the child. "Show him what a real Christmas can be like," he suggested. "Buy toys. Stuff him with turkey. Make a real spree out of it!"

The idea caught the couple's fancy. Eagerly they agreed. After they left the office, Moore sat at the desk, thinking rapidly. He forgot about the waiting reporter who had heard every word. Already worried about his promise, Moore grinned wryly at reporter John Ammon when he walked into the room.

"I've stuck my neck out, John," Moore said. "It'll be just looking for a needle in a haystack," Moore groaned. The newsman shook his head. "No, it won't, Chauncey," he remarked cheerfully. "I'll write up a story. Maybe some needy family will help us out.

That night John Ammon wrote up the story. The city editor read it and then stared into space, thinking of the new bicycle he'd bought for his boy. Then he carefully gave the story a front-page spot and sent it to the composing room.

Next morning Moore found himself in the role of Christmas stork. The story had touched a big town's heart, turning it inside out. In no time, the original couple got a child for their Christmas and Moore was in the Yuletide "lend-lease" business.

This December will mark the sixth year of Moore's Christmas adoption program. Moore and his secretary are bracing themselves for the stampede.

Once more newspapers will help out with a new series of feature articles. Tulsans will read anew the account of this modern miracle and grow misty-eyed over it. Radio broadcasts will put a lump in listeners' throats.

Possibly the angels themselves will smile over it and bend a little closer to the earth. It's just the kind of thing that would make an angel glad.

Tulsa loves Holiday Children, Inc. It is a gift that is wrapped in tears and tied with laughter. It comes from the lonely and is given to the needy. Any American city could do the same thing. Only you have to find a good man like Chauncey Moore who loves little children.

The human heart will do the rest.

The idea caught the couple's fancy. Eagerly they agreed. After they left the office, Moore sat at the desk, thinking rapidly. He forgot about the waiting reporter who had heard every word. Already worried about his promise, Moore grinned wryly at reporter John Ammon when he walked into the room.

"I've stuck my neck out, John," Moore said. "It'll be just looking for a needle in a haystack," Moore groaned. The newsman shook his head. "No, it won't, Chauncey," he remarked cheerfully. "I'll write up a story. Maybe some needy family will help us out.

That night John Ammon wrote up the story. The city editor read it and then stared into space, thinking of the new bicycle he'd bought for his boy. Then he carefully gave the story a front-page spot and sent it to the composing room.

Next morning Moore found himself in the role of Christmas stork. The story had touched a big town's heart, turning it inside out. In no time, the original couple got a child for their Christmas and Moore was in the Yuletide "lend-lease" business.

This December will mark the sixth year of Moore's Christmas adoption program. Moore and his secretary are bracing themselves for the stampede.

Once more newspapers will help out with a new series of feature articles. Tulsans will read anew the account of this modern miracle and grow misty-eyed over it. Radio broadcasts will put a lump in listeners' throats.

Possibly the angels themselves will smile over it and bend a little closer to the earth. It's just the kind of thing that would make an angel glad.

Tulsa loves Holiday Children, Inc. It is a gift that is wrapped in tears and tied with laughter. It comes from the lonely and is given to the needy. Any American city could do the same thing. Only you have to find a good man like Chauncey Moore who loves little children.

The human heart will do the rest.

Maxim Defends Title Tonight Against Moore

14,000 Are Expected To See Light-Heavy Match In St. Louis

BY MURRAY ROSE

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—At the ripe old age of 36, Archie Moore finally gets his long sought crack at the light-heavyweight title tomorrow night when he clashes with Champ Joey Maxim in a 15-rounder at the Arena.

An 8 to 5 favorite, Moore, if he wins ,will become the oldest 175-pound king since Ruby Bob Fitzsimmons grabbed the crown at the age of 41.

A crowd of some 14,000 was expected by the International Boxing Club to pay about $85,000. The 10 p. m. (EST) bout will be broadcast and telecast by CBS.

With over $60,000 in the till, a new gate receipts record for a St. Louis fight already has been set. The old record was the $56,905 paid by 11,115 fans for the Jan. 16, 1950 Willie Pep-Charley Riley featherweight title scrap.

Joey Guaranteed $75,000

In addition, the radio TV sponsor was reported chipping in a minimum of $50,000 to the purse for the air rights. Maxim has been guaranteed $75,000 for his third defense of the crown he won nearly three years ago from England's Freddie Mills. Moore is getting his chance at the title and nothing much else. His end may just about cover his training expenses.

"That's not important," said the Toledo Negro who has been hammering at the doors of champions for over five years. "The main thing is that I'm finally getting my shot. I know I can beat Maxim. I'm going to knock him out."

If he does, he will be the second man ever to turn the trick against the steel-chinned Cleveland cutey. Curtis Sheppard bombed out Maxim in the first round on March, 1942. Maxim whipped the Hatchetman a month later. Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott never floored Maxim.

Nettled By Prediction

The 30-year-old champion, nettled by Moore's prediction of a knockout victory, said "there's an old saying "string along with the champions! Well, I'm the champ and I'll still be the champion when the fight is over."

To do so, the clever titleholder will have to look much better against Moore than he did against Middleweight Champion Ray Robinson in New York's Yankee Stadium June 25. Until he collapsed from the oppressive 103-degree heat, Robinson was far ahead of the light heavyweight boss.

Moore has piled up a 55 per cent knockout record—71 kayos in 127 bouts—over 16 years. Apparently he is adding power with age. In his last 28 fights over a 3½ year stretch he dropped one decision and scored 19 knockouts.

Maxim, in 100 fights in 12 years, has a 78-18-4 record with 21 kayos.

Fordham Loses $50,000 On Grid Sport In 1952

To Make Decision Following Survey

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Fordham University is surveying its football program to decide whether to continue its present setup, drop football or adopt a middle course of de-emphasis on a "back to the campus" basis.

The Rev. Vincent Hart, director of university development, revealed the football situation was up for review. He said no decision could be expected "for months."

Fordham lost approximately $50,000 in the 1952 season and some $200,000 over a seven-year period. In the season just completed, Fordham won two games, tied one and lost five. A nine-game schedule for 1953 recently was announced.

Surveys Being Taken

"We are taking surveys on the amount of student interest in so-called big time football," said Father Hart. "The alumni body and other groups also are being considered. Does football still appeal to New York fans? Does television of a game-of-the-week basis satisfy that appeal?

"We are beginning to feel that football as presently played in the big time isn't as important as we thought it was. Our two big rivals —Georgetown and New York University—either have given it up or deemphasized completely.

Many Work On Saturdays

"In one group of students we found that 80 per cent of the boys worked on Saturdays. They wanted football but they just couldn't attend our games. The total number of boys working while going to school is far beyond what it was 20 years ago when our football appeared to have greater importance.

"It seems you can't be reasonable about football. Either you've got to win or they say 'Why don't you drop it?' They don't act that way about other sports."

Allie Reynolds Most Effective Pitcher In AL

Has ERA Of 2.07, Wins Six Shutouts

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Righthander Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees and Southpaw Bobby Shantz of the Philadelphia A's were the most effective American League pitchers in 1952, according to official statistics released today.

Reynolds, 33-year-old veteran of 10 major league seasons, took earned run honors with a 2.07 average. He permitted only 56 earned tallies in 244 innings to compile the lowest ERA since Hal Newhouser's 1.94 in 1946.

The Yankee ace also lead the league in strikeouts with 160 and with Mike Garcia of Cleveland was the pace-setter in shutouts, each with six whitewashings.

Shantz was No. 1 in games won, 24, and in winning percentage, .774. The dimunitive lefty, who received the circuit's most valuable player award, only lost seven games. Bobby was third in the earned run ratings with 2.48, a shade back of Garcia's 2.37 slate.

Cleveland's Bob Lemon came away with the most complete Games, 28 and the most innings pitched, 310. Lemon won 22 games.

Early Wynn who captured 23 victories for the Indians, gave up the most bases on balls, 132, and was tagged for the most home runs, 23.

Art Houtteman of the Detroit Tigers lost 20 games to lead in that department. The hard-luck Bengal won eight games.

Interstate League To Operate In '53

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 16 (AP)—The Class B Interstate Baseball League today made plans to operate during the 1953 season as either an eight or six team circuit.

"The league will operate," President Gerald P. Nugent, said following a three-hour closed session.

"We have seven teams who have assured us they will operate next season and one available franchise," Nugent said. "We don't want to freeze anyone out. We want to add a member."

The special meeting was called to plot the future of the 14-year-old minor loop that has produced dozens of baseball's top stars.

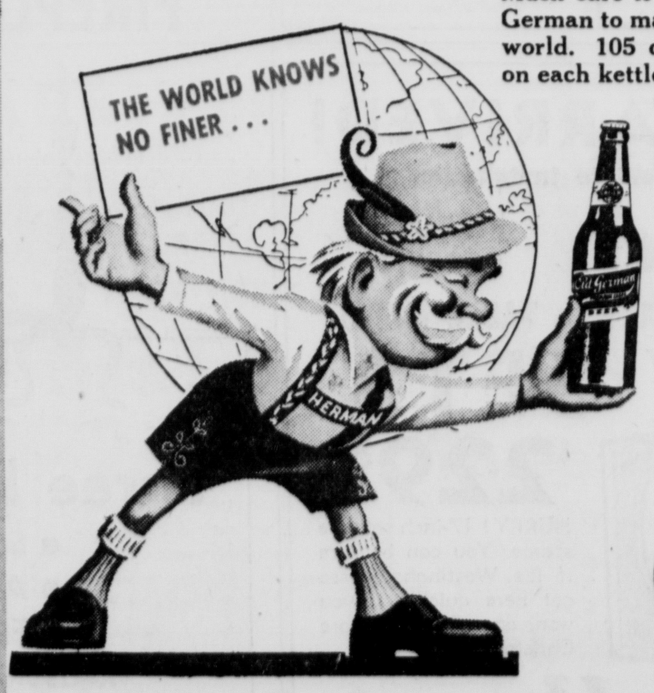

Before the meeting, Allentown, Hazleton, Sunbury all in Pennsylvania and Salisbury, Md., were considered in the "doubtful" category. Only Lancaster and York, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md., had secured 1953 working agreements

Allie Reynolds Most Effective Pitcher In AL

Has ERA Of 2.07, Wins Six Shutouts

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Righthander Allie Reynolds of the New York Yankees and Southpaw Bobby Shantz of the Philadelphia A's were the most effective American League pitchers in 1952, according to official statistics released today.

Reynolds, 33-year-old veteran of 10 major league seasons, took earned run honors with a 2.07 average. He permitted only 56 earned tallies in 244 innings to compile the lowest ERA since Hal Newhouser's 1.94 in 1946.

The Yankee ace also lead the league in strikeouts with 160 and with Mike Garcia of Cleveland was the pace-setter in shutouts, each with six whitewashings.

Shantz was No. 1 in games won, 24, and in winning percentage, .774. The dimunitive lefty, who received the circuit's most valuable player award, only lost seven games. Bobby was third in the earned run ratings with 2.48, a shade back of Garcia's 2.37 slate.

Cleveland's Bob Lemon came away with the most complete Games, 28 and the most innings pitched, 310. Lemon won 22 games.

Early Wynn who captured 23 victories for the Indians, gave up the most bases on balls, 132, and was tagged for the most home runs, 23.

Art Houtteman of the Detroit Tigers lost 20 games to lead in that department. The hard-luck Bengal won eight games.

Interstate League To Operate In '53

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 16 (AP)—The Class B Interstate Baseball League today made plans to operate during the 1953 season as either an eight or six team circuit.

"The league will operate," President Gerald P. Nugent, said following a three-hour closed session.

"We have seven teams who have assured us they will operate next season and one available franchise," Nugent said. "We don't want to freeze anyone out. We want to add a member."

The special meeting was called to plot the future of the 14-year-old minor loop that has produced dozens of baseball's top stars.

Before the meeting, Allentown, Hazleton, Sunbury all in Pennsylvania and Salisbury, Md., were considered in the "doubtful" category. Only Lancaster and York, Pa., and Hagerstown, Md., had secured 1953 working agreements with major league teams.

Nugent appointed a four-man committee to screen "a number of cities who have expressed interest in purchasing the defunct Harrisburg franchise." He would not identify the cities.

Fordham Loses $50,000 On Grid Sport In 1952

To Make Decision Following Survey

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Fordham University is surveying its football program to decide whether to continue its present setup, drop football or adopt a middle course of de-emphasis on a "back to the campus" basis.

The Rev. Vincent Hart, director of university development, revealed the football situation was up for review. He said no decision could be expected "for months."

Fordham lost approximately $50,000 in the 1952 season and some $200,000 over a seven-year period. In the season just completed, Fordham won two games, tied one and lost five. A nine-game schedule for 1953 recently was announced.

Surveys Being Taken

"We are taking surveys on the amount of student interest in so-called big time football," said Father Hart. "The alumni body and other groups also are being considered. Does football still appeal to New York fans? Does television of a game-of-the-week basis satisfy that appeal?

"We are beginning to feel that football as presently played in the big time isn't as important as we thought it was. Our two big rivals —Georgetown and New York University—either have given it up or deemphasized completely.

Many Work On Saturdays

"In one group of students we found that 80 per cent of the boys worked on Saturdays. They wanted football but they just couldn't attend our games. The total number of boys working while going to school is far beyond what it was 20 years ago when our football appeared to have greater importance.

"It seems you can't be reasonable about football. Either you've got to win or they say 'Why don't you drop it?' They don't act that way about other sports."

Bell Tower Of St. George's Episcopal Church Will Be Dedicated Saturday

MT. SAVAGE—Final plans have been completed for the dedication of the newly constructed bell tower at St. George's Episcopal Church by Rt. Rev. Noble C. Powell, bishop of Maryland, and the vestry of the church.

The ceremony, which is scheduled for Saturday at 1 p. m., will be performed by Bishop Powell and the rector, Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, assisted by other Episcopal clergymen of the area. Civic and fraternal groups will also attend.

The service will include the singing of traditional canticles, appropriate hymns and a solemn Te Deum. Rev. Chesley V. Daniel, vicar of St. Philip's Chapel, Cumberland, will serve as the bishop's chaplain and will carry the Episcopal Crozier or bishop's staff as the sentences of dedication are read.

As the chimes are dedicated, the bishop and clergy will read the 48th Psalm in procession and the chimes will be struck for the first time by Donald W. King, accompanist for the famous Handel Choir of Baltimore and member of the Chesapeake chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

King will also play a chime recital after the ceremony consisting of a bell fanfare and a program of familiar hymns.

A portable organ unit will occupy a place in the base of the tower and will be played by Miss Margaret Uhl, parish organist, and the choral parts of the service will be by St. George's Choir under the direction of Mrs. Harry O. Porter.

The chimes, 15 in all, were cast by a Baltimore Bell Foundry and weigh about five tons. They are tubular and range from 10½ feet down to 38 inches. The largest weighs more than 500 pounds. They will be operated by a keyboard near the organ for hymn playing and a Westminster clock installed in the tower will cause them to peal the hour chime.

While the actual stone work on the tower was done by qualified stone masons, all of the labor for incidental operations was furnished voluntarily by the men of the parish.

Built of native sandstone, the building measures 15 feet by 15 feet and rises to a height of 50 feet.

The very top course of stone consists of a representative stone from each of the 48 states, most of which were donated and shipped by state officials.

These have been squared to a near uniform size and range from the hardest of Texas granite to the porous coquina stone from Florida. They also lend occasion for a study in color because of certain geological conditions, each state produces stones of various hues.

The Beaver Dam marble of Maryland holds a place of prominence and stands out in striking contrast to the ebony slate of Maine.

Most of the local stone was procured from foundations of abandoned houses and barns, some of which were estimated to be more than 100 years old, and in most cases the origial weathered faces have been preserved.

Some of the more choice stones came from an ancient slave quarters of one of the original homeplaces of the area.

Timbers from some of these structures have also been recovered, tested and built into the structure for roof and floor supports. Many of these are hand hewn and give the building a medieval character.

Work on the tower was begun in April of this year and the cornerstone was laid by Bishop Powell in June. A gift for its construction was made by Charles F. Barth, Flint, Mich., a former communicant and the chimes are being paid for by gifts from the members and friends of the congregation.

Bell Tower Of St. George's Episcopal Church Will Be Dedicated Saturday

MT. SAVAGE—Final plans have been completed for the dedication of the newly constructed bell tower at St. George's Episcopal Church by Rt. Rev. Noble C. Powell, bishop of Maryland, and the vestry of the church.

The ceremony, which is scheduled for Saturday at 1 p. m., will be performed by Bishop Powell and the rector, Rev. G. Stanley Schwind, assisted by other Episcopal clergymen of the area. Civic and fraternal groups will also attend.

The service will include the singing of traditional canticles, appropriate hymns and a solemn Te Deum. Rev. Chesley V. Daniel, vicar of St. Philip's Chapel, Cumberland, will serve as the bishop's chaplain and will carry the Episcopal Crozier or bishop's staff as the sentences of dedication are read.

As the chimes are dedicated, the bishop and clergy will read the 48th Psalm in procession and the chimes will be struck for the first time by Donald W. King, accompanist for the famous Handel Choir of Baltimore and member of the Chesapeake chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

King will also play a chime recital after the ceremony consisting of a bell fanfare and a program of familiar hymns.

A portable organ unit will occupy a place in the base of the tower and will be played by Miss Margaret Uhl, parish organist, and the choral parts of the service will be by St. George's Choir under the direction of Mrs. Harry O. Porter.

The chimes, 15 in all, were cast by a Baltimore Bell Foundry and weigh about five tons. They are tubular and range from 10½ feet down to 38 inches. The largest weighs more than 500 pounds. They will be operated by a keyboard near the organ for hymn playing and a Westminster clock installed in the tower will cause them to peal the hour chime.

While the actual stone work on the tower was done by qualified stone masons, all of the labor for incidental operations was furnished voluntarily by the men of the parish.

Built of native sandstone, the building measures 15 feet by 15 feet and rises to a height of 50 feet.

The very top course of stone consists of a representative stone from each of the 48 states, most of which were donated and shipped by state officials.

These have been squared to a near uniform size and range from the hardest of Texas granite to the porous coquina stone from Florida. They also lend occasion for a study in color because of certain geological conditions, each state produces stones of various hues.

The Beaver Dam marble of Maryland holds a place of prominence and stands out in striking contrast to the ebony slate of Maine.

Most of the local stone was procured from foundations of abandoned houses and barns, some of which were estimated to be more than 100 years old, and in most cases the origial weathered faces have been preserved.

Some of the more choice stones came from an ancient slave quarters of one of the original homeplaces of the area.

Timbers from some of these structures have also been recovered, tested and built into the structure for roof and floor supports. Many of these are hand hewn and give the building a medieval character.

Work on the tower was begun in April of this year and the cornerstone was laid by Bishop Powell in June. A gift for its construction was made by Charles F. Barth, Flint, Mich., a former communicant and the chimes are being paid for by gifts from the members and friends of the congregation.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16 (INS)—Who could be better than Thelma Ritter to play the woman justice in "Justice Brown," an original Leonard Goldstein will produce for 20th. The story is by George W. George and George F. Slavin—and you may be interested to know that George W. George is the son of Rube Goldberg. He changed his name on account of Pa's name.

The woman justice is described as a Daniel Webster without a law degree and a Will Rogers with a New England background.

So intrigued is Goldstein that he tells me he'll probably do a series. His "Ma and Pa Kettle" cleaned up at Universal-International, and "Justice Brown" with Thelma Ritter could be just as big a success.

Right from the horse's mouth (if you'll pardon my vulgarity) I am told that Jean Simmons will get the coveted role of Diane in "The Robe." Frank Ross has succeeded in his negotiations with her.

Richard Burton, the young Englishman who, I told you, was the most likely to play Marcellus, is all set.

Any question as to whether or not Gene Tierney is remaining in Europe was fore or less settled a few days ago when woman Producer Joan Harrison flew back to Hollywood with news of an independent movie she has on the fire for Gene in London.

Joan, who is houseguesting with the Alfred Hitchcocks, came home for the express purpose of arranging Hollywood financing and a release for the movie.

Methinks Miss Harrison is not at all averse to spending time in Europe herself. While in Paris, recently, she saw a lot of her former flame, Clark Gable.

Tomorrow night, the whole town of San Bernardino, plus some Hollywood stars, turns out to honor Korean War Medal of Honor Hero Lt. Joseph Charles Rodriguez.

First, there is the world premiere of the story of his heroism, "Medal of Honor—the Story of Lt. Joseph C. Rodriguez" (produced by W. R. Frank) at the California Theatre donated by Charles Skouras.

Then, the citizens of San Bernardino present the home town hero with $15,000 so he can buy a home for his bride.

Lynn Bowers, who wrote the screenplay, tells me that the Medal of Honor feature will show on the same bill with "Stars and Stripes Forever" and there to take a bow will be Debra Paget, Robert Wagner, Casey Adams and others.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

It was Lex Barker whom Lana Turner telephoned first after she obtained her divorce in Reno.

Ruby Keeler's husband, John Lowe, who was so severely injured in an automobile accident, underwent surgery at the California Hospital.

Peggy Lee trains back Sunday to spend Christmas with her daughter Vicki and to attend the world premiere of "The Jazz Singer." Oh, yes, indeed, Brad Dexter will meet her train.

When George Jessel was wheeled into surgery early Sunday morning he said, "Call Harry Brand and tell him if I come out a girl to get me one of Sophie Tucker's dresses." Lou Cooper, who visted him, says Georgie is in fine fettle.

After Bob Waterfield won his last game with the Rams he and Jane Russell celebrated at Sportsmen's Lodge. Bob was given quite an ovation.

The "Queen for a Day" winner on the show closest to the inauguration gets a ticket to Washington, a wardrobe to wear at the big event, and all expenses paid—an idea of Producer Jim Morgan.

Marion Carr, who has just finished "Bridal Suite," a TV film, for Tim Whelan, is sure to be one of our up and coming TV stars. Marion formerly was married to Fred Levy, former head of Blum's candy stores.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

SCS reports rapid growth in Soil Conservation Districts

CONSERVATION DISTRICTS INCREASE—Rapid growth of soil conservation districts is shown by the chart and 1952 map above. One farmer or rancher out of every five in the United States is now developing or carrying out a soil and water conservation plan as a co-operator with one of the nearly 2,500 locally organized and managed soil conservation districts. Districts now include 84 per cent of the nation's farm and ranch land. Farms and ranches of active district co-operators represent more than one-fourth of all our agricultural land. The Soil Conservation Service in 1952 helped these district farmers and ranchers apply seven per cent more permanent-type soil conservation practices on the land than in any previous year.

Father Phelan Made Monsignor

A priest formerly assigned to St. Peter's Catholic Church in Westernport has received the title of monsignor from Pope Pius XII.

He is the Very Rev. Msgr. Russell A. Phelan, 47, who is pastor of the Church of the Annunciation in Washington. He is also director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in the Archdiocese of Washington.

A native of Philadelphia, Msgr. Phelan was ordained in 1931 and has also served in other posts in Washington.

Wilt Is Sentenced In Minors Case

George Wilt, 36, of Valley Road, was given a two-year prison sentence yesterday in Juvenile Court after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Magistrate Alban C. Thompson remanded him to the County Jail for a mental examination.

Seven boys testified for the prosecution. Wilt was accused of making improper advances at various places, including a local theater.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 16 (INS)—Who could be better than Thelma Ritter to play the woman justice in "Justice Brown," an original Leonard Goldstein will produce for 20th. The story is by George W. George and George F. Slavin—and you may be interested to know that George W. George is the son of Rube Goldberg. He changed his name on account of Pa's name.

The woman justice is described as a Daniel Webster without a law degree and a Will Rogers with a New England background.

So intrigued is Goldstein that he tells me he'll probably do a series. His "Ma and Pa Kettle" cleaned up at Universal-International, and "Justice Brown" with Thelma Ritter could be just as big a success.

Right from the horse's mouth (if you'll pardon my vulgarity) I am told that Jean Simmons will get the coveted role of Diane in "The Robe." Frank Ross has succeeded in his negotiations with her.

Richard Burton, the young Englishman who, I told you, was the most likely to play Marcellus, is all set.

Any question as to whether or not Gene Tierney is remaining in Europe was fore or less settled a few days ago when woman Producer Joan Harrison flew back to Hollywood with news of an independent movie she has on the fire for Gene in London.

Joan, who is houseguesting with the Alfred Hitchcocks, came home for the express purpose of arranging Hollywood financing and a release for the movie.

Methinks Miss Harrison is not at all averse to spending time in Europe herself. While in Paris, recently, she saw a lot of her former flame, Clark Gable.

Tomorrow night, the whole town of San Bernardino, plus some Hollywood stars, turns out to honor Korean War Medal of Honor Hero Lt. Joseph Charles Rodriguez.

First, there is the world premiere of the story of his heroism, "Medal of Honor—the Story of Lt. Joseph C. Rodriguez" (produced by W. R. Frank) at the California Theatre donated by Charles Skouras.

Then, the citizens of San Bernardino present the home town hero with $15,000 so he can buy a home for his bride.

Lynn Bowers, who wrote the screenplay, tells me that the Medal of Honor feature will show on the same bill with "Stars and Stripes Forever" and there to take a bow will be Debra Paget, Robert Wagner, Casey Adams and others.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

It was Lex Barker whom Lana Turner telephoned first after she obtained her divorce in Reno.

Ruby Keeler's husband, John Lowe, who was so severely injured in an automobile accident, underwent surgery at the California Hospital.

Peggy Lee trains back Sunday to spend Christmas with her daughter Vicki and to attend the world premiere of "The Jazz Singer." Oh, yes, indeed, Brad Dexter will meet her train.

When George Jessel was wheeled into surgery early Sunday morning he said, "Call Harry Brand and tell him if I come out a girl to get me one of Sophie Tucker's dresses." Lou Cooper, who visted him, says Georgie is in fine fettle.

After Bob Waterfield won his last game with the Rams he and Jane Russell celebrated at Sportsmen's Lodge. Bob was given quite an ovation.

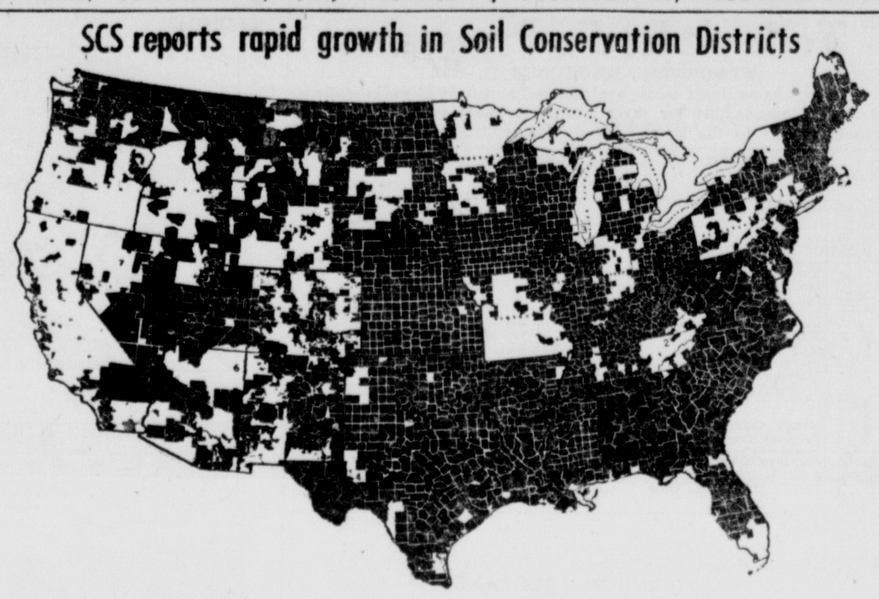

Met Jack Dempsey at La Rue and he tells me he'll probably do a TV show for Adams hats. Jack has slimmed down, looks wonderful. He'll spend Christmas with his daughters Joan and Barbara.

The "Queen for a Day" winner on the show closest to the inauguration gets a ticket to Washington, a wardrobe to wear at the big event, and all expenses paid—an idea of Producer Jim Morgan.

Marion Carr, who has just finished "Bridal Suite," a TV film, for Tim Whelan, is sure to be one of our up and coming TV stars. Marion formerly was married to Fred Levy, former head of Blum's candy stores.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

SCS reports rapid growth in Soil Conservation Districts

CONSERVATION DISTRICTS INCREASE—Rapid growth of soil conservation districts is shown by the chart and 1952 map above. One farmer or rancher out of every five in the United States is now developing or carrying out a soil and water conservation plan as a co-operator with one of the nearly 2,500 locally organized and managed soil conservation districts. Districts now include 84 per cent of the nation's farm and ranch land. Farms and ranches of active district co-operators represent more than one-fourth of all our agricultural land. The Soil Conservation Service in 1952 helped these district farmers and ranchers apply seven per cent more permanent-type soil conservation practices on the land than in any previous year.

Three State Police Are Assigned Here

Three additional troopers will be assigned to the LaVale Barracks of the State Police effective December 22, according to Lieut. W. E. O'Hara, commanding officer.

All three troopers are natives of Allegany County. They are Trooper Joseph V. Stakem, a brother of Trooper Patrick Stakem Jr., from Midland; Trooper James F. Lewis, this city, and Trooper Lynwood Clark, of McCoole. Stakem and Lewis have been stationed at Frederick while Clark is at Waterloo.

The three new troopers will bring the State Police complement at the LaVale Barracks to 19 men, Lieut. O'Hara said.

Father Phelan Made Monsignor

A priest formerly assigned to St. Peter's Catholic Church in Westernport has received the title of monsignor from Pope Pius XII.

He is the Very Rev. Msgr. Russell A. Phelan, 47, who is pastor of the Church of the Annunciation in Washington. He is also director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in the Archdiocese of Washington.

A native of Philadelphia, Msgr. Phelan was ordained in 1931 and has also served in other posts in Washington.

Wilt Is Sentenced In Minors Case

George Wilt, 36, of Valley Road, was given a two-year prison sentence yesterday in Juvenile Court after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

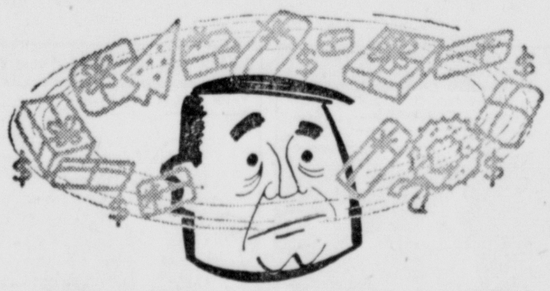

Magistrate Alban C. Thompson remanded him to the County Jail for a mental examination.

Seven boys testified for the prosecution. Wilt was accused of making improper advances at various places, including a local theater.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

The Laugh, Clown, Laugh Girl

Pathos always sold well on radio, largely dished out on soap opera. The future of the soaps on television is still pretty uncertain but the pathos vein is being worked over extensively. I suppose the leading contender in this line of work is "Strike It Rich" where they dig up the victims of the most heart-rending current sob stories, splash them with sympathy and load them down with money.

John Crosby

Close behind "Strike It Rich" in the pathos department is "This Is Your Life" which is presided over by Ralph Edwards. Edwards is described at the outset of the program as "your warm-hearted host." Well, he's that all right, a warm-hearted host with a keen sense of double entry bookkeeping. Early in the television sweepstakes Edwards came out with a TV version of his renowned radio show "Truth Or Consequences" where audience participants underwent the most surprising humiliations with great good nature. This sort of thing apparently either baffled or outraged the television audience, however, and "Truth or Consequences" fell by the wayside, one of the happiest casualties in my memory.

Mr. Edwards turned to the pathos dodge. "This Is Your Life" reconstructs somebody's life from front to back. By some manic ingenuity, Mr. Edwards lures on stage an individual who has no idea what is in store. Let's say the individual is (as it was last week) Sara Berner, the girl who plays most of the dialect parts on radio. Miss Berner had been enticed down there ostensibly to take part in some monkeyshines about a commercial for Hazel Bishop lipstick. To be specific, she smothered Mr. Edwards in kisses to demonstrate that Hazel Bishop doesn't smear. (It doesn't.)

That part of Miss Berner's career out of the way, Mr. Edwards told her it was her life that was on the fire that night. She was, to put it mildly, overcome. "This is a story of courage and comedy, and the tears behind that comedy," trumpted Mr. Edwards, overflowing with warm-heartedness. "How many of you really know Sara Berner—the 'Laugh, Clown, Laugh, girl—the girl who dreamed of stardom but settled for supporting roles."

In the heartbreak department, Miss Berner's career which was then unfolded backwards, didn't live up to its advance billing. It seemed in retrospect a very pleasant succession of minor triumphs, marred by occasional tragedy (the death of her mother and her first husband). Mr. Edwards, whose staff is a wizard at collecting friends and relatives of his lifers, trotted out Miss Berner's present husband, who said that "marriage is the one place where Sara is the star," Spike Jones with whom she recorded, her dramatic teacher in Tulsa and an old girl friend, June Robbins, whom she hadn't seen in 10 years. Jack Benny—Miss Berner plays the Brooklyn telephone operator from time to time on his shows—called to say how much he admired her.

Miss Berner dabbed away at her eyes during all this, exclaiming at one point: "This doesn't happen until—God forbid—you pass on." The freshets of tears grew stronger as the incidents and people dredged up by Edwards receded in time, receded fay back to her childhood when she was winning auditions to appear on Major Bowes' amateur hour. At the end, Mr. Edwards in his own words took her "through the archway of your life" into a replica of the kitchen of her Oklahoma home where Mr. Edwards had given refuge to Miss Berner's brothers and sister and father who fell on her with happy cries. "The girl that made millions laugh while she was crying," declared Mr. Edwards. I don't quite dig this statement since Miss Berner hadn't appeared to have done much crying until she got on this show where she did plenty.

Actually, Sara Berner is an awfully cute trick, a born comic, and a girl who seems to have had a hell of a good time out of this vale of tears. But the customers want pathos and Mr. Edwards, I suppose, had to manufacture it. "The program," says a press release, "has substantiated Edwards' belief that truth is not only stranger but also vastly more powerful than fiction." Well, anyhow, it seels more Hazel Bishop lipstick.

If you're a great one for family reunions, this is your dish of tea. It isn't mine.

WHICH IS NECESSARY?

IT DOESN'T take long for the average player to learn the advisability of taking a first trick with one of his top honors, before finessing the jack in a suit topped by the A-K-J. That protects himself against loss to a singleton queen in the hand which plays last to the finessing trick. But there are times when the luxury of that safety play can not be afforded, since it would consume an entry which is absolutely necessary if the finesse loses.

	♠ 5 3 ♥ A 7 4 ♦ A 8 6 3 ♣ A 7 6 2
♠ Q 8 7 ♥ Q 2 ♦ K Q J 9 2 ♣ 10 5 4	N W E S	♠ 10 6 2 ♥ K J 10 9 5 ♦ 10 5 ♣ J 9 8
	♠ A K J 9 4 ♥ 8 6 3 ♦ 7 4 ♣ K Q 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

It was almost funny to see both Souths, in a team game, make that same third bid of spades. In its normal meaning, that advertises a six-card suit, so that two trumps opposite it would be enough to furnish a sound place to play the hand. But it was pathetic to see both declarers make the same playing mistake, preventing the making of their contracts.

Both Wests led the diamond K, which the A won. And both declarers then decided to take one high spade, as protection against a singleton Q in the West. Then came the only variation. One of them led to the heart A so the spade J could be finessed. When West won this trick, he scored his diamond J, then led his heart Q for the K and 9 to take the setting tricks.

The other declarer, after the spade A trick, led to the club A, then finessed the spade J to the Q. That West scored his diamond J, then led the heart Q to knock out dummy's A. South was able to clear trumps and score his top clubs, but had no entry left to dummy to use the fortunately-established thirteener for a heart discard. He therefore lost two tricks there to be set.

This was one situation in which the declarer should have finessed the spade J on the first round, as soon as he won the opening trick in dummy. He needed his entries there for protection against a much more likely danger than a singleton spade Q in the West. He even would have played more soundly if he had avoided the finesse altogether, striving to drop a doubleton spade Q. This would have given him the extra chance of a heart discard if the clubs luckily broke evenly, as they did.

Radio And Television

The Laugh, Clown, Laugh Girl

Pathos always sold well on radio, largely dished out on soap opera. The future of the soaps on television is still pretty uncertain but the pathos vein is being worked over extensively. I suppose the leading contender in this line of work is "Strike It Rich" where they dig up the victims of the most heart-rending current sob stories, splash them with sympathy and load them down with money.

John Crosby

Close behind "Strike It Rich" in the pathos department is "This Is Your Life" which is presided over by Ralph Edwards. Edwards is described at the outset of the program as "your warm-hearted host." Well, he's that all right, a warm-hearted host with a keen sense of double entry bookkeeping. Early in the television sweepstakes Edwards came out with a TV version of his renowned radio show "Truth Or Consequences" where audience participants underwent the most surprising humiliations with great good nature. This sort of thing apparently either baffled or outraged the television audience, however, and "Truth or Consequences" fell by the wayside, one of the happiest casualties in my memory.

Mr. Edwards turned to the pathos dodge. "This Is Your Life" reconstructs somebody's life from front to back. By some manic ingenuity, Mr. Edwards lures on stage an individual who has no idea what is in store. Let's say the individual is (as it was last week) Sara Berner, the girl who plays most of the dialect parts on radio. Miss Berner had been enticed down there ostensibly to take part in some monkeyshines about a commercial for Hazel Bishop lipstick. To be specific, she smothered Mr. Edwards in kisses to demonstrate that Hazel Bishop doesn't smear. (It doesn't.)

That part of Miss Berner's career out of the way, Mr. Edwards told her it was her life that was on the fire that night. She was, to put it mildly, overcome. "This is a story of courage and comedy, and the tears behind that comedy," trumpted Mr. Edwards, overflowing with warm-heartedness. "How many of you really know Sara Berner—the 'Laugh, Clown, Laugh, girl—the girl who dreamed of stardom but settled for supporting roles."

In the heartbreak department, Miss Berner's career which was then unfolded backwards, didn't live up to its advance billing. It seemed in retrospect a very pleasant succession of minor triumphs, marred by occasional tragedy (the death of her mother and her first husband). Mr. Edwards, whose staff is a wizard at collecting friends and relatives of his lifers, trotted out Miss Berner's present husband, who said that "marriage is the one place where Sara is the star," Spike Jones with whom she recorded, her dramatic teacher in Tulsa and an old girl friend, June Robbins, whom she hadn't seen in 10 years. Jack Benny—Miss Berner plays the Brooklyn telephone operator from time to time on his shows—called to say how much he admired her.

Miss Berner dabbed away at her eyes during all this, exclaiming at one point: "This doesn't happen until—God forbid—you pass on." The freshets of tears grew stronger as the incidents and people dredged up by Edwards receded in time, receded fay back to her childhood when she was winning auditions to appear on Major Bowes' amateur hour. At the end, Mr. Edwards in his own words took her "through the archway of your life" into a replica of the kitchen of her Oklahoma home where Mr. Edwards had given refuge to Miss Berner's brothers and sister and father who fell on her with happy cries. "The girl that made millions laugh while she was crying," declared Mr. Edwards. I don't quite dig this statement since Miss Berner hadn't appeared to have done much crying until she got on this show where she did plenty.

Actually, Sara Berner is an awfully cute trick, a born comic, and a girl who seems to have had a hell of a good time out of this vale of tears. But the customers want pathos and Mr. Edwards, I suppose, had to manufacture it. "The program," says a press release, "has substantiated Edwards' belief that truth is not only stranger but also vastly more powerful than fiction." Well, anyhow, it seels more Hazel Bishop lipstick.

If you're a great one for family reunions, this is your dish of tea. It isn't mine.

WHICH IS NECESSARY?

IT DOESN'T take long for the average player to learn the advisability of taking a first trick with one of his top honors, before finessing the jack in a suit topped by the A-K-J. That protects himself against loss to a singleton queen in the hand which plays last to the finessing trick. But there are times when the luxury of that safety play can not be afforded, since it would consume an entry which is absolutely necessary if the finesse loses.

	♠ 5 3 ♥ A 7 4 ♦ A 8 6 3 ♣ A 7 6 2
♠ Q 8 7 ♥ Q 2 ♦ K Q J 9 2 ♣ 10 5 4	N W E S	♠ 10 6 2 ♥ K J 10 9 5 ♦ 10 5 ♣ J 9 8
	♠ A K J 9 4 ♥ 8 6 3 ♦ 7 4 ♣ K Q 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

It was almost funny to see both Souths, in a team game, make that same third bid of spades. In its normal meaning, that advertises a six-card suit, so that two trumps opposite it would be enough to furnish a sound place to play the hand. But it was pathetic to see both declarers make the same playing mistake, preventing the making of their contracts.

Both Wests led the diamond K, which the A won. And both declarers then decided to take one high spade, as protection against a singleton Q in the West. Then came the only variation. One of them led to the heart A so the spade J could be finessed. When West won this trick, he scored his diamond J, then led his heart Q for the K and 9 to take the setting tricks.

The other declarer, after the spade A trick, led to the club A, then finessed the spade J to the Q. That West scored his diamond J, then led the heart Q to knock out dummy's A. South was able to clear trumps and score his top clubs, but had no entry left to dummy to use the fortunately-established thirteener for a heart discard. He therefore lost two tricks there to be set.

This was one situation in which the declarer should have finessed the spade J on the first round, as soon as he won the opening trick in dummy. He needed his entries there for protection against a much more likely danger than a singleton spade Q in the West. He even would have played more soundly if he had avoided the finesse altogether, striving to drop a doubleton spade Q. This would have given him the extra chance of a heart discard if the clubs luckily broke evenly, as they did.

In a contract of 7-No Trumps, how should North play after the diamond 6 lead?

World Becoming Vast Movie Studio As Number Of Location Films Zooms

By ARMAND ARCHERD
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—The most interesting pictures in the next few years will be made away from Hollywood and in remote and unusual places. That's what Burt Lancaster says.

Burt is, of course, slightly prejudiced. Last year he travelled to the Island of Ischia, off the southern tip of Italy for The Crimson Pirate. In 1952, his studio dropped him in the South Pacific, 1,000 miles below the equator, for His Majesty O'Keefe. Now he's ogling his Atlas to find another exotic spot for the movie camera to explore.

"Of course," he adds cautiously, "you've got to find the story to go with the background. It's not only the scenery and the natives who help make a picture interesting and provocative, but the 'feel' of the place itself is immediately evident on the screen."

He insists his last film could never have been made anywhere but Fiji. The only natives who look like the Fijians are the Fijians themselves and the best make-up department in the world couldn't reproduce them in Hollywood.

"You'll never find South Seas scenery at Santa Monica beach," he insists.

There is no reason, says Burt, why movie companies shouldn't reach every part of the globe for new backgrounds thanks to the improved transportation and communications systems in a modern world.

"Every part of the free world, that is," he says. "There's nothing behind the Iron Curtain that I wouldn't rather see photographed on Stage One in Hollywood."

In the same vein of thought, Burt believes Hollywood can do a lot of good on these safaris by spreading the good will of America and democracy around the world.

"Not only that," he continues, "but we did a lot to raise their standard of living. And we can do the same all over."

He concedes there were many difficulties to film making in places remote from the wonderful facilities of Hollywood. But the advantages in the results far outnumber the disadvantages, he said.

"There were times," Burt admits about the Fiji location, "when the only thing idyllic about it was the Nandi airport where fast and comfortable planes took off in a northeasterly direction for Hollywood."

In Fiji, Burt found the natives nothing but helpful, generous and good friends "whom we, as Americrans, will always have." It was the same last year in Italy.

"Both Italians and the Fijians—two widely divergent races—showed the same interest in learning more about the American way of life, aside from the business of film-making," Burt declares.

The same goes for the American movie-going public. Every film made in a different part of the world, Lancaster continues, brings the world a little closer together and gives the audience a closer feeling of one-worldness.

He requested all native girls wearing grass skirts be supplied with some sort of bloomers underneath to give them confidence. In addition they issued a statement that bosoms be covered at all times.

Hollywood, most anxious to keep world conditions as peaceful as possible, complied with the chief's request.

Letters To Santa Bring Chuckles And Tear Or Two

NEW YORK—(AP)—Those wonderful, sad sweet dreams of childhood are with us again, just as they are every Christmas time.

What a chuckle some of them bring. And, sometimes, a tear or two.

They are the letters from all over the world that find their way to the New York general postoffice about this time every year—letters to Santa Claus.

A committee of postal employes does what it can to provide toys and gifts for the most deserving cases.

The names of the little folk who scrawl their dreams on notepaper are never made public.

One little boy in Canada wrote his letter to Santa some time ago. But his sudden afterthought arrived a few days ago—an Ontario road map so Santa won't have any trouble finding the lad's home.

A 13-year-old boy in the Bronx wrote:

"Dear Santa Claus: I am wrighting (sic) this letter to let you know that I have a sick father and we have nothing for Christmas and we are five children in the family, four boys and one girl. Please Santa, see what you can do for us on Christmas Day. I hope you get this letter and think of us. I thank you. George."

A 5-year-old boy in Malden, Mass., has a kind thought for Santa, rather than just an outstretched palm. He wrote:

"Dear Santa: Hope you keep in good health. I'd like you to leave me whatever you'd like to give me. I'll leave a snack for you to eat when you visit me. Dickie."

A little girl of somewhat uneven allegiance wrote from England that she'd like Santa to bring her mother a big house and for her father—"a big cigar."

And then another tug at the heart from a little New Yorker:

"Santa Clause, North Pole: I am 11 and my brother is 14 and my sisters are 2 and 3 and my daddy is sick and mommie said you will not come to us. Will you please come and bring us sum (sic) toys and clothes and candie. Thank you. Tommie."

Wanta bet Santa won't cum to Tommie's?

Homemakers Hold Christmas Party

FROSTBURG — The Eckhart Homemakers Club held its annual Christmas dinner and jingle party recently at Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, with 33 members present.

The program included a monologue by Mrs. Royal Skidmore, "Psychology Through Your Hat," vocal selections by "The Two Annie's," and Christmas carols by the group.

Groceries that will be used in the Christmas baskets to be given needy families are to be left at Dudley's Store no later than December 22.

Girl Scouts Plan For Coming Year

PIEDMONT—A swimming party and skating party for January and February were decided upon at the recent meeting at the Piedmont Library of the Lone Troop Association of Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Verda Haywood, retiring president, was presented with a gift in appreciation of her services for the past two years. The Senior Scout Leaders invited the leaders of the other troops and their husbands to attend the Senior Scout anniversary and Christmas party at the Italian Lodge hall, West Hampshire Street, Tuesday, December 30.

Woman's Organization Will Meet Tonight

WESTERNPORT — Woman's Work Organization of the Church of the Brethren will meet at the church at 7 o'clock tonight for its regular business meeting.

A Christmas party will follow and the husbands are invited to be guests. Gifts will be exchanged.

Experts Believe Jets Still Far Off On Ocean Routes

By BRUCE WINTERS
Central Press Correspondent

KEW GARDENS, N. Y. — Pan-American World Airways' announcement that in 1956 it would receive delivery of jet airplanes from Britain brought the ever-growing controversy between jets and piston engines for commercial travel into sharp focus.

PAA's Comet jetliner will be the third series of the plane now making the London-to-Johannesburg run for the British Overseas Airways corporation.

The Comet III will carry a bigger pay load over a greater distance than the present Comet I.

Most American observers feel, however, it will be a long time before jets replace piston engine craft on the blue ribbon transatlantic crossing. Non-stop flying time for jets will have to be greatly increased, they say.

Britain's "jump" on American manufacturers in the field of commercial jet airliners can be stated in hard, financial terms.

It would cost American builders a good deal more to produce the first jet than to improve on piston engine types. After the war, British manufacturers decided they could not compete with U. S. industry on that score and, so to speak, put all their eggs in one basket.

The result was the Comet I, the first four-jet transport to be used anywhere on a commercial basis.

It is already obsolete, however. The Comet II will make its appearance shortly and the Comet III, which PAA has contracted for, will be ready in early 1956.

Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of BOAC, eloquently states the case for the Comet and all jetliners of the future.

Admittedly the range of the Comet is nowhere near that of the big Boeing Stratocruiser. But because of its speed, the Comet can make many more runs in a given time than a propeller-driven airliner, thus earning more money.

In addition, Sir Miles points out, the Comet's jet engines burn a cheap, low grade fuel rather than expensive, high octane gasoline.

But when stacked up against the double-decker Stratocruiser, used by virtually all companies for oceanic crossings (and, incidentally, by BOAC, also) the Comet's disadvantages show clearly.

The Stratocruiser carries 80 or more paying patrons non-stop for over 4,000 miles, whereas the Comet's 36 to 48 passengers are hauled only 2,000 miles without a stop.

Cruising speed for the Stratocruiser is 300 m.p.h. The Comet moves along at close to 500 m.p.h., living up to Sir Miles' theory of more paying trips per unit of time.

One of the big selling points for the Comet is not statistical. Some passengers who have flown long distances in piston engine airliners complain about vibration and noise. In the Comet, both have been eliminated.

Once off the ground all the Comet's passengers hear is a steady hiss like air escaping from a large balloon. Once leveled off, it is reputed that a full jigger of Scotch whisky will not spill a drop.

But still many American manufacturers privately feel that before the Comet can economically replace propeller-driven craft on the ocean crossing they will have to carry at least 75 first-class passengers or 100 to 110 tourist class.

There seems little doubt that American builders could produce a prototype of the Comet. But who would buy it, they ask?

The domestic airlines, whose fleets are larger than the international companies, do not feel the need for jet transports. The status quo in America is making money.

There is every reason to believe that if domestic lines needed jets as badly as the international companies, U. S. industry might produce them sooner.

The practical answer to all these questions, however, will have to wait until 1956 when PAA inaugurates the first transatlantic crossing by a jetliner flying American colors.

Market Runs Into Selling Trouble And Turns Down

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—The stock market ran into a little bit of selling trouble today and turned down.

Railroads suffered most but no major division escaped the inroads of minus signs. Losers were more frequent in steels, oils, airlines, and chemicals, while rubber issues did quite well along with many coppers and a few motors and utilities.

The biggest excitement was caused by Alleghany and Missouri Pacific.

Alleghany common, the day's most active issue closed up ⅛ at 5 after hitting a new high for the year of 5¼. The preferred closed up 4 at 149 after establishing a new high of 152. Mopac preferred added 1⅛ at 47⅝ after getting up to a new high of 49⅛.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 10 cents at $114.30. The industrial and utility components of the average closed unchanged and the railroads lost 30 cents.

Atlantic Coast Line lost 1¼ at 117½. In a letter to stockholders it was stated that "earnings thus far in 1952, and prospective earnings for the foreseeable future, measured against needs of the railroad property for improvements, do not, in the judgment of the board of directors, warrant an increase in the regular quarterly rate of dividend."

Atlantic Refining was second most active with a close at 32 off ¼. Canadian Pacific was third up ⅝ at 34¼, and it was followed by New York Central off ⅛ at 22, and Baltimore & Ohio up ½ at 25⅝.

Army Develops Nearly Invisible Non-Metal Mine

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Army today announced development of a tiny but powerful new land mine, non-metallic and almost invisible.

The Army added that the new weapon soon will be in use in Korea.

British Philosopher Weds For Fourth Time

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP)—At the age of 80, white-haried philosopher Bertrand Russell was married today to an American woman, 59-year-old Edith Finch.

She became his fourth wife, his second American wife and, by virtue of the brief civil ceremony in the Chelsea Registry Office, she became a countess.

The philosopher is the third Earl Russell of the United Kingdom, and by rules governing precedent in the British peerage his wife is automatically a countess.

World Becoming Vast Movie Studio As Number Of Location Films Zooms

By ARMAND ARCHERD
Central Press Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—The most interesting pictures in the next few years will be made away from Hollywood and in remote and unusual places. That's what Burt Lancaster says.

Burt is, of course, slightly prejudiced. Last year he travelled to the Island of Ischia, off the southern tip of Italy for The Crimson Pirate. In 1952, his studio dropped him in the South Pacific, 1,000 miles below the equator, for His Majesty O'Keefe. Now he's ogling his Atlas to find another exotic spot for the movie camera to explore.

"Of course," he adds cautiously, "you've got to find the story to go with the background. It's not only the scenery and the natives who help make a picture interesting and provocative, but the 'feel' of the place itself is immediately evident on the screen."

He insists his last film could never have been made anywhere but Fiji. The only natives who look like the Fijians are the Fijians themselves and the best make-up department in the world couldn't reproduce them in Hollywood.

"You'll never find South Seas scenery at Santa Monica beach," he insists.

There is no reason, says Burt, why movie companies shouldn't reach every part of the globe for new backgrounds thanks to the improved transportation and communications systems in a modern world.

"Every part of the free world, that is," he says. "There's nothing behind the Iron Curtain that I wouldn't rather see photographed on Stage One in Hollywood."

In the same vein of thought, Burt believes Hollywood can do a lot of good on these safaris by spreading the good will of America and democracy around the world.

"Not only that," he continues, "but we did a lot to raise their standard of living. And we can do the same all over."

He concedes there were many difficulties to film making in places remote from the wonderful facilities of Hollywood. But the advantages in the results far outnumber the disadvantages, he said.

"There were times," Burt admits about the Fiji location, "when the only thing idyllic about it was the Nandi airport where fast and comfortable planes took off in a northeasterly direction for Hollywood."

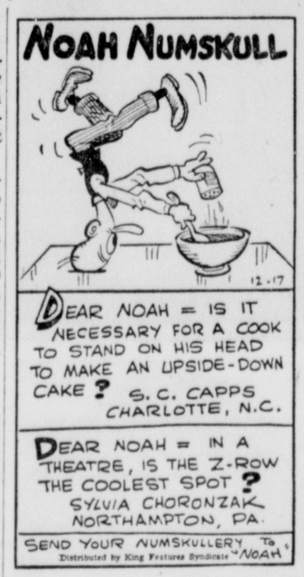

In Fiji, Burt found the natives nothing but helpful, generous and good friends "whom we, as Americrans, will always have." It was the same last year in Italy.

"Both Italians and the Fijians—two widely divergent races—showed the same interest in learning more about the American way of life, aside from the business of film-making," Burt declares.

The same goes for the American movie-going public. Every film made in a different part of the world, Lancaster continues, brings the world a little closer together and gives the audience a closer feeling of one-worldness.

He requested all native girls wearing grass skirts be supplied with some sort of bloomers underneath to give them confidence. In addition they issued a statement that bosoms be covered at all times.

Hollywood, most anxious to keep world conditions as peaceful as possible, complied with the chief's request.

Letters To Santa Bring Chuckles And Tear Or Two

NEW YORK—(AP)—Those wonderful, sad sweet dreams of childhood are with us again, just as they are every Christmas time.

What a chuckle some of them bring. And, sometimes, a tear or two.

They are the letters from all over the world that find their way to the New York general postoffice about this time every year—letters to Santa Claus.

A committee of postal employes does what it can to provide toys and gifts for the most deserving cases.

The names of the little folk who scrawl their dreams on notepaper are never made public.

One little boy in Canada wrote his letter to Santa some time ago. But his sudden afterthought arrived a few days ago—an Ontario road map so Santa won't have any trouble finding the lad's home.

A 13-year-old boy in the Bronx wrote:

"Dear Santa Claus: I am wrighting (sic) this letter to let you know that I have a sick father and we have nothing for Christmas and we are five children in the family, four boys and one girl. Please Santa, see what you can do for us on Christmas Day. I hope you get this letter and think of us. I thank you. George."

A 5-year-old boy in Malden, Mass., has a kind thought for Santa, rather than just an outstretched palm. He wrote:

"Dear Santa: Hope you keep in good health. I'd like you to leave me whatever you'd like to give me. I'll leave a snack for you to eat when you visit me. Dickie."

A little girl of somewhat uneven allegiance wrote from England that she'd like Santa to bring her mother a big house and for her father—"a big cigar."

And then another tug at the heart from a little New Yorker:

"Santa Clause, North Pole: I am 11 and my brother is 14 and my sisters are 2 and 3 and my daddy is sick and mommie said you will not come to us. Will you please come and bring us sum (sic) toys and clothes and candie. Thank you. Tommie."

Wanta bet Santa won't cum to Tommie's?

Experts Believe Jets Still Far Off On Ocean Routes

By BRUCE WINTERS
Central Press Correspondent

KEW GARDENS, N. Y. — Pan-American World Airways' announcement that in 1956 it would receive delivery of jet airplanes from Britain brought the ever-growing controversy between jets and piston engines for commercial travel into sharp focus.

PAA's Comet jetliner will be the third series of the plane now making the London-to-Johannesburg run for the British Overseas Airways corporation.

The Comet III will carry a bigger pay load over a greater distance than the present Comet I.

Most American observers feel, however, it will be a long time before jets replace piston engine craft on the blue ribbon transatlantic crossing. Non-stop flying time for jets will have to be greatly increased, they say.

Britain's "jump" on American manufacturers in the field of commercial jet airliners can be stated in hard, financial terms.

It would cost American builders a good deal more to produce the first jet than to improve on piston engine types. After the war, British manufacturers decided they could not compete with U. S. industry on that score and, so to speak, put all their eggs in one basket.

The result was the Comet I, the first four-jet transport to be used anywhere on a commercial basis.

It is already obsolete, however. The Comet II will make its appearance shortly and the Comet III, which PAA has contracted for, will be ready in early 1956.

Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of BOAC, eloquently states the case for the Comet and all jetliners of the future.

Admittedly the range of the Comet is nowhere near that of the big Boeing Stratocruiser. But because of its speed, the Comet can make many more runs in a given time than a propeller-driven airliner, thus earning more money.

In addition, Sir Miles points out, the Comet's jet engines burn a cheap, low grade fuel rather than expensive, high octane gasoline.

But when stacked up against the double-decker Stratocruiser, used by virtually all companies for oceanic crossings (and, incidentally, by BOAC, also) the Comet's disadvantages show clearly.

The Stratocruiser carries 80 or more paying patrons non-stop for over 4,000 miles, whereas the Comet's 36 to 48 passengers are hauled only 2,000 miles without a stop.

Cruising speed for the Stratocruiser is 300 m.p.h. The Comet moves along at close to 500 m.p.h., living up to Sir Miles' theory of more paying trips per unit of time.

One of the big selling points for the Comet is not statistical. Some passengers who have flown long distances in piston engine airliners complain about vibration and noise. In the Comet, both have been eliminated.

Once off the ground all the Comet's passengers hear is a steady hiss like air escaping from a large balloon. Once leveled off, it is reputed that a full jigger of Scotch whisky will not spill a drop.

But still many American manufacturers privately feel that before the Comet can economically replace propeller-driven craft on the ocean crossing they will have to carry at least 75 first-class passengers or 100 to 110 tourist class.

There seems little doubt that American builders could produce a prototype of the Comet. But who would buy it, they ask?

The domestic airlines, whose fleets are larger than the international companies, do not feel the need for jet transports. The status quo in America is making money.

There is every reason to believe that if domestic lines needed jets as badly as the international companies, U. S. industry might produce them sooner.

The practical answer to all these questions, however, will have to wait until 1956 when PAA inaugurates the first transatlantic crossing by a jetliner flying American colors.

Market Runs Into Selling Trouble And Turns Down

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—The stock market ran into a little bit of selling trouble today and turned down.

Railroads suffered most but no major division escaped the inroads of minus signs. Losers were more frequent in steels, oils, airlines, and chemicals, while rubber issues did quite well along with many coppers and a few motors and utilities.

The biggest excitement was caused by Alleghany and Missouri Pacific.

The railroad is making money now and is seeking to get out of a reorganization into which it was thrown by the depression. Alleghany owns the bulk of the road's unlisted common stock.

Alleghany common, the day's most active issue closed up ⅛ at 5 after hitting a new high for the year of 5¼. The preferred closed up 4 at 149 after establishing a new high of 152. Mopac preferred added 1⅛ at 47⅝ after getting up to a new high of 49⅛.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 10 cents at $114.30. The industrial and utility components of the average closed unchanged and the railroads lost 30 cents.

Atlantic Coast Line lost 1¼ at 117½. In a letter to stockholders it was stated that "earnings thus far in 1952, and prospective earnings for the foreseeable future, measured against needs of the railroad property for improvements, do not, in the judgment of the board of directors, warrant an increase in the regular quarterly rate of dividend."

Atlantic Refining was second most active with a close at 32 off ¼. Canadian Pacific was third up ⅝ at 34¼, and it was followed by New York Central off ⅛ at 22, and Baltimore & Ohio up ½ at 25⅝.

Army Develops Nearly Invisible Non-Metal Mine

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Army today announced development of a tiny but powerful new land mine, non-metallic and almost invisible.

"Because of its neutral color and small size, an invisible mine field can be laid quickly," the Army's announcement said.

"Since it is non-metallic, the new mine, officially designated the M14, cannot be located by mine detectors."

The Army added that the new weapon soon will be in use in Korea.

British Philosopher Weds For Fourth Time

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP)—At the age of 80, white-haried philosopher Bertrand Russell was married today to an American woman, 59-year-old Edith Finch.

She became his fourth wife, his second American wife and, by virtue of the brief civil ceremony in the Chelsea Registry Office, she became a countess.

The philosopher is the third Earl Russell of the United Kingdom, and by rules governing precedent in the British peerage his wife is automatically a countess.

All of Russell's previous marriages ended in divorce.

Tucker Jury Indicts Wise For Homicide

Accused In Double Slaying At Parsons

A Tucker County (W. Va.) Grand Jury yesterday, returned two homicide indictments against Boyd Wise, 45, of Davis, who is being held in Parsons in connection with the slaying of his sister-in-law and her husband November 18.

Wise was arrested four days after his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucille Damiano, 37, and her 55-year-old husband, Antonio Damiano, were cut down by a hail of 22-caliber bullets as they left a doctor's office in Davis.

Mrs. Damiano died instantly and her husband died early the next day in a Thomas hospital after telling authorities Wise had done the shooting. Wise has insisted that he does not own a gun and is not guilty of the double murder. There were no witnesses to the shooting and, as yet, police have not found the murder weapon.

Charged With Arson

The Grand Jury also returned two felony indictments against Ivan Dale Taylor, 39-year-old auto mechanic of Grafton, who is charged with setting fires on government property last month.

Taylor was arrested in Thomas early in November by Conservation Officer Lester Miller on charges of arson. Authorties said he confessed to igniting several forest fires in nearby counties.

Taylor is now serving a one-year jail term in Grant County after he pleaded guilty of setting fires in Grant County forests.

Tucker County Grand Jury returned a indictment for each of two fires Taylor is charged with starting in that county. One blaze was started in the Monongahela National Forest.

A joint grand larceny indictment was returned yesterday against Kenneth Carr, 19, and Richard White, 18, both of Dry Fork.

Goods Reported Stolen

Police said the two youths had stolen four tires and wheels from a truck last week. The stolen goods were valued at $150. They are also accused of stealing four other tires, 10 gallon of gasoline, two five-gallon milk cans and a half case of motor oil, valued at $200 last Wednesday night.

Authorities said the pair took the tires and wheels from a truck jeep Friday night. The stolen articles were valued at $75. When Sheriff Crosten apprehended the youths Saturday, he found four of the stolen wheels had been installed on the boys' auto.

Judge Elected

Judge Ernest A. See, of Keyser, was not present at the Circuit Court yesterday because of illness. At his request, the Tucker County Bar Association elected Attorney Wayne K. Pritt to act as special judge.

Prosecuting Attorney D. E. Cuppett, Thomas, said the court docket will be set this morning and that the court will probably convene about January 5.

Members of the Grand Jury are Gilbert Smith, foreman; J. K. Lambert, Robert Raese, John B. Auvil, Denver Smith, Abe DiBacco, Fred Keister.

Guard To Mark Recognition Of Local Companies

Event Scheduled For Tonight At Armory

Headquarters and C Company, Maryland National Guard, will celebrate the sixth anniversary of the federal recognition of the two local companies tonight at the State Armory.

The event, the first celebration of its kind in this area, will be held at 7:30 p. m. with doors being opened to guests at 7 p. m. Local Guard officials said they plan to make the affair an annual celebration.

They explained the local Guard plans to expand the scope of the event and add additional features such as selecting an "outstanding athletic player" of the year and awarding him a scholarship.

Inspection Planned

Tonight's event will begin with a formal inspection of the company members in ranks by Capt. James C. Welch, battalion Army instructor, and Major Robert C. Matlick, battalion commander.

Following the inspection and review, Miss Sarah Clapp, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Carl H. Clapp, who was recently named "Miss National Guard" for this area, will be presented with a watch. The watch to be presented to the local Fort Hill High School senior will bear the inscription, "Miss National Guard of 1952."

Guests and relatives of Guard members will be afforded a chance to see Guardsmen in actual training classes. Tonight, members of both companies will be instructed in the use of individual weapons, including the .45 pistol, the carbine and M-1 rifles. Instructors will demonstrate the current "buddy system" of instruction which allows each man to act as coach as his partner fires.

War Demonstration

Next on the schedule, guests will be shown a demonstration of an Army platoon in the defense. It will show how the platoon takes up positions against an enemy and will review the co-ordination between the different supporting weapons including the "bazooka," 57mm recoiless rifle, the 60 mm mortar and the light machine gun. In addition the men will demonstrate alternate positions as the enemy shifts its angle of attack.

Also included in the demonstration will be the chain of command throughout the unit, the responsibility in leadership, and how communication is maintained from headquarters to front lines. All proceedings will be narrated over a public address system.

Following the demonstrations, refreshments will be served to guests and Guard members. Hosts will be Capt. John D. Hensel, commander of Headquarters Company; and Lt. John R. Jackle, commander of C Company.

Others on the committee are Warrant Officer Joseph Jolley and Lt. Thomas F. Conlon, Jr.

Invitations have been sent out to the mayor and council of Cumberland and officials of surrounding communities, local and state officials, officers of the Maryland Military District, and others.

Charles Deal Is Struck By Auto On Eckhart Flat

Beall High Student Admitted To Hospital

A 17-year-old student of Beall High School at Frostburg suffered shock and a possible injury to his right leg when struck by an auto yesterday afternoon near Stadium Inn on Eckhart Flat, along Route 40.

The youth was identified by Frostburg Police Officer Donald Griffith as Charles Deal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deal, Borden Mines. He was admitted to Miners Hospital for observation and X-rays.

Deal, who had been dismissed from afternoon classes was said to have darted in front of an auto driven by Mrs. Natalie P. Wolfe, College Park. She was travelling toward St. Louis to join her husband who was recently discharged from the U. S. Army.

No charges were preferred against Mrs. Wolfe, police said.

In another traffic accident, an 11-year-old Cumberland boy escaped injury Monday night when he walked in front of a car on Henderson Avenue.

C. A. Dye, 36, of 1413 Bedford Street, told City Police he was driving west on Henderson Avenue at 5:50 p. m. Monday when Dean Allen Harper, 11, of 216 Decatur Street, stepped from between two parked cars and was struck by Dye's automobile. The boy refused medical attention, he said.

No charges were filed.

Wall Is Slightly Scorched By Blaze

South End firemen were called to the home of J. M. Chambers, 878 Maryland Avenue, at 12:10 p. m. yesterday when a flash fire slightly damaged a kitchen wall.

Firemen said the fire was caused by gas which remained in the line to a kitchen range when it was disconnected to be moved. A spark set off the gas, but the blaze was out when firemen arrived.

The same company answered a call at 2:55 a. m. at the home of R. L. Roeder when a flue caught fire. There was no damage.

Six County Women Will Set Precedent As Jurors

Six Allegany County women will establish a precedent next month when they serve as grand or petit jurors during the January term of Circuit Court, starting Monday, January 5.

Two of them, Clara W. Walters of Corriganville and Margaret Hepburn of Lonaconing, were drawn for grand jury duty yesterday. The other four, Elizabeth D. Van Newkirk, Grace Herath and Mary E. Holmes, all of this city, and Gertrude L. Eilbeck of Lonaconing, will serve on the petit jury.

Oddly, despite the fact that the names of 44 women were placed in the jury box of 200 names, it was not until the 12th name was drawn that the first woman, Mrs. Walters, was selected.

William W. Sluss Jr., a Frostburg grocer, was named foreman of the grand jury.

Walters Urges County Support For C&O Parkway

A letter from W. R. Walters, 134 Virginia Avenue, urging support for the C&O Canal Parkway project was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Walters suggested that Allegany and Garrett Countians should not be bluffed out of supporting the plan simply because it has the opposition of some influential persons in Hagerstown.

The Virginia Avenue man was sent a letter by the commissioners acknowledging receipt of his communication.

State Board Opposes C&O Parkway Plan

Opinion Is Voiced In Minority Report

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Board of Natural Resources said today it would recommend to the General Assembly that the state refrain from buying land adjacent to the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal for use in the development of a federal parkway.

In a report to be submitted to the Legislature next month, the board also urged that the federal project be scrapped and the 5,156 acres owned by the National Park Service be returned to the state.

Two members of the Resources Board were on a committee appointed by the 1951 Legislature to study the proposed parkway. The State Roads Commission and the State Planning Commission were also named to the committee.

A joint report, not yet publicized, had been drafted by the committee. The Resources Board does not concur in the recommendations, so a "minority" report was written.

Total Cost $17 Million

The Park Service wants Maryland to buy about 11,000 acres along the canal, which runs from Great Falls to Cumberland, and cede it to the federal government.

The Senate Finance Committee in 1950 pigeon-holed a bill to accomplish that and asked for the joint study.

The cost of buying up the extra land was originally estimated at $1 million, but now ranges up to $4 million. The Park Service figured the entire parkway development would cost some $17 million.

The board's chief objection to the project is that new industries would be denied access across the parkway to the Maryland-owned Potomac River. The danger to fish and wildlife was also cited in the report.

Hits Federal "Charity" Idea

If the land were returned to the state, the board pointed out, the area would be staffed and administered at no extra cost to the taxpayers.

Several board members said the federal government has neglected the area already and would be in "bad shape" if Maryland conservation departments did not lend a helping hand.

The board also voiced opposition to the political philosophy of accepting huge hand-outs from the federal government. If states accept charity, the report said, federal expenditures will continue to be excessive and states will continue to surrender authority.

The Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of Forests and Parks said they had plans to use 11 areas along the canal if the land is returned. They would set up parks, picnic areas, fishing sites and other recreational projects.

City Favors Parkway

Cumberland, which figures the parkway would bring it business, has been a supporter of the project.

In other action today, the board:

1. Appointed a committee to continue the exploration on the disposition of state property at the Matapeake Ferry Terminal abandoned when the Chesapeake Bay Bridge opened.

The property consists of 80 acres of land, a $110,000 shop, waiting rooms and a large frame building. The Board of Public Works has asked the board for recommendations on disposition.

2. Failed to make any recommendations on revising present laws applying to the capture of commercial fish and crabs as requested by the Legislative Council. The board decided there was insufficient time to delve into the matter before the start of the General Assembly.

3. Discussed a plan by R. V. Truitt, director of the Department of Research and Education, on the reorganization of the Resources Board. The matter was referred to a committee for future action.

School Locker Bids Accepted

Two local firms will share the contract for lockers for the new Central High School at Lonaconing, Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced yesterday.

The Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street, was awarded the contract to supply 749 corridor lockers at $17.25 each, a total of $12,920.25. The firm also had offered a credit of $1,000 for 110 lockers bought previously for the new Mt. Savage School but not needed there, lowering the cost to $11,920.25.

The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street, was awarded the contract for 114 gymnasium lockers at a cost of $59.57 each, a total of $6,790.98.

Bids on the lockers were submitted Tuesday, November 25.

News In Brief

Former Lonaconing Girl Will Help Light White House Tree

A former Lonaconing girl will be in the national limelight for a few moments on Christmas Eve when President Truman lights the Christmas tree on the White House lawn.

She is Miss Nancy Smith, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Smith, 3 Walker Avenue, Gaithersburg.

A native of Lonaconing, Nancy moved to Gaithersburg with her parents in 1948 and is now a junior at Gaithersburg High School, where she is a member of the Student Council.

Nancy was chosen for the Christmas program over other members of three senior Girl Scout troops in the Gaithersburg area. Each year, the girl who gives the Christmas greeting to the First Lady is selected from a different area of the U. S.

The program at the White House will run from 4:30 to 5 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

Miss Smith is active in Girl Scout work, in extracurricular school activities, and in Methodist Church groups. She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Porter, formerly of Lonaconing, and grand-niece of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gardner of Lonaconing.

Crews Lay Force Main For Sewage Ejector Station

Shortage Of Parts Will Delay Project

The Street Department has completed installation of a force main for the Bedford Street Sewage Ejector Station.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, said the work included the laying of 2,803 feet of sewage line from the station and hooking it to existing sewer lines on Frederick Street.

Work on the station, designed to lift sewage from the Bedford Road area within the city limits and force it to a point where it will be carried off by gravity, is now at a standstill.

Pumps To Be Delayed

Officials said the project may not be completed until spring, due to a delay in the delivery of pumps for the station.

The $24,316.75 project was awarded to the George Construction Company early in the fall.

Still to be completed, in addition to the installation of equipment in the pumping station, is the laying of sewage lines on Bedford Road from Miller Avenue to the city limits.

The city is financing the project from the sale of a $60,000 bond issue.

Oher Work Delayed

This work would become part of the improvements planned for Frederick and Bedford Streets under a proposed federal aid project which would make the streets part of U. S. Route 220.

Similar delays in the delivery of materials is delaying the completion of additional filters at the Lake Gordon filtration plant.

The Hazelwood Construction Company has been held up on that $237,000 job since the end of October for lack of heavy pipes, fittings and valves.

Improvements underway by the LaVale Sanitary Commission will be delayed until spring due to lack of a 250,000 gallon water tank and certain vital fittings.

John T. Mason Reelected Head Of Dairy Group

Improvement Unit Holds Annual Meeting

John T. Mason of Cresaptown last night was reelected president of the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association at the group's annual meeting in the office of County Agent Ralph F. McHenry at the Court House.

Others, all reelected, are Mineral County (W. Va.) Agent Joseph E. Prettyman, secretary-treasurer; Andrew A. Schuller, Keyser, W. Va.; J. G. Shumaker, Rawlings, and Harry H. Delbrook, Mt. Savage, directors. Harry E. Miller and Wheeler W. Arnold will continue to serve as supervisors in 1953.

Association members were told that greater emphasis will be made during the coming year on the production records compiled by cows which are products of artificial breeding. The monthly reports listing the 10 big butterfat producers in the association will single out "artificial" cows in the roll.

Mason reported that the association has added another dairyman in the past year bringing to 29 the number of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania dairymen in the association.

The supervisors' report for the 12 months ending in July shows that the average cow's production was 7,624 pounds of milk and 311 pounds of butterfat with the butterfat averaging 4.08 per cent.

PMA Chairman Cites County

Citing Allegany County's record, James A. Cottman, acting chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, said yesterday that enrollment in the 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program in the state will be considerably higher than this year.

Cottman said that counties which have nearly completed their farm-to-farm contacts report substantial gains over previous years. Then he noted that Allegany County's enrollment is up from this year's 304 to 652 for next year. Baltimore County had 743 farmers enrolled this year and already has 1,351 lined up for next year.

Last week the State PMA Committee extended the closing date for enrollment from December 15 to December 27. Approvals of practices will be mailed by County PMA Committees January 2.

"This will allow every Maryland farmer taking part in the 1953 program to know before he starts his program just what practices are approved and what assistance he can expect from PMA," Cottman asserted.

OPS Obtains Order To Get Kelly Prices

Burke Denies Agency Charge

The Office of Price Stabilization yesterday obtained a court order in an effort to investigate prices charged by Kelly-Springfield Tire Company of Cumberland.

The order, signed by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut in Baltimore Federal District Court, gives the company until next Monday to show cause why OPS agents should not be given access to its records.

Twice "Rebuffed"

A spokesman for the Maryland branch of the OPS said the federal agency went into court after the firm twice rebuffed its efforts to check Kelly-Springfield prices.

But Edmund S. Burke of Cumberland, president of the firm, countered with an emphatic denial that the tire company had "rebuffed" OPS requests.

Burke said his company "always has been glad to comply with any OPS requests. To my knowledge, we've never refused to fulfill any reasonable request."

The OPS said Kelly officials had turned down its request to examine all the firm's records for 1952 several weeks ago, and had ignored a subpoena for the records since December 8.

Burke Denies

Burke denied that his firm had ignored the subpoena. He said Kelly officials had informed the OPS office that they would not be able to have all the company's records in Baltimore in the time allowed by the subpoena. Burke said this time limit was less than a week.

The OPS, said Burke, refused to grant an extension of time, as the company had requested, and instead went into court to get action.

The company president said the OPS had demanded that it produce "voluminous" records in too short a time. He said the company expects to file an answer in court by next Monday to explain its position.

Webster Seeks State Grant For School Jobs

County Is Entitled To Over $927,000

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster yesterday morning obtained permission from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to seek an additional state grant to assist in the county's current school construction program.

Webster informed the commissioners that some $1,300,000 in county money already has been spent on the new Central High School at Lonaconing. For having disbursed that amount, the county is entitled to receive more than $430,000 in a state grant.

The state is providing some funds for school construction on a one-to-three ratio. For every $3 a county spends on school buildings, the state provides $1 in assistance.

From the entire $2,800,000 bond issue floated to finance construction of Mt. Savage, Lonaconing and Ellerslie Schools, the county is scheduled to get $927,180 in state funds.

The Mt. Savage job, costing over $1,600,000, has been completed and is being occupied. The Lonaconing project is more than three-fourths complete. A bid on the new Ellerslie Elementary School for $59,552 from the George F. Hazelwood Company was accepted by the County Board of Education last month.

Fairgo Resident Gets Brazil TV Show

A second area resident has reported viewing a television program from Rio de Janeiro on Saturday afternoon.

Virgil D. McKenzie, Fairgo, said he picked up the program from 3:30 to 4 p. m. The telecast, in Spanish, was received over Channel 4. McKenzie said the reception was "clear as could be" and scenes of Madrid, Spain, were on the program as well as a home cooking demonstration. He said the announcing was in Spanish and although he was unable to understand it his wife could. Edgell Hockaday, Short Gap, also reported receiving the same program.

Tucker Jury Indicts Wise For Homicide

Accused In Double Slaying At Parsons

A Tucker County (W. Va.) Grand Jury yesterday, returned two homicide indictments against Boyd Wise, 45, of Davis, who is being held in Parsons in connection with the slaying of his sister-in-law and her husband November 18.

Wise was arrested four days after his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucille Damiano, 37, and her 55-year-old husband, Antonio Damiano, were cut down by a hail of 22-caliber bullets as they left a doctor's office in Davis.

Mrs. Damiano died instantly and her husband died early the next day in a Thomas hospital after telling authorities Wise had done the shooting. Wise has insisted that he does not own a gun and is not guilty of the double murder. There were no witnesses to the shooting and, as yet, police have not found the murder weapon.

Charged With Arson

The Grand Jury also returned two felony indictments against Ivan Dale Taylor, 39-year-old auto mechanic of Grafton, who is charged with setting fires on government property last month.

Taylor was arrested in Thomas early in November by Conservation Officer Lester Miller on charges of arson. Authorties said he confessed to igniting several forest fires in nearby counties.

Taylor is now serving a one-year jail term in Grant County after he pleaded guilty of setting fires in Grant County forests.

Tucker County Grand Jury returned a indictment for each of two fires Taylor is charged with starting in that county. One blaze was started in the Monongahela National Forest.

A joint grand larceny indictment was returned yesterday against Kenneth Carr, 19, and Richard White, 18, both of Dry Fork.

The youths was arrested Saturday by Sheriff D. E. Crosten, after the boys' car was stopped by snow on a nearby highway.

Goods Reported Stolen

Police said the two youths had stolen four tires and wheels from a truck last week. The stolen goods were valued at $150. They are also accused of stealing four other tires, 10 gallon of gasoline, two five-gallon milk cans and a half case of motor oil, valued at $200 last Wednesday night.

Authorities said the pair took the tires and wheels from a truck jeep Friday night. The stolen articles were valued at $75. When Sheriff Crosten apprehended the youths Saturday, he found four of the stolen wheels had been installed on the boys' auto.

Judge Elected

Judge Ernest A. See, of Keyser, was not present at the Circuit Court yesterday because of illness. At his request, the Tucker County Bar Association elected Attorney Wayne K. Pritt to act as special judge.

Prosecuting Attorney D. E. Cuppett, Thomas, said the court docket will be set this morning and that the court will probably convene about January 5.

Members of the Grand Jury are Gilbert Smith, foreman; J. K. Lambert, Robert Raese, John B. Auvil, Denver Smith, Abe DiBacco, Fred Keister.

Frank Colabrese, Percy Bell, Charles Milkint, Lloyd Poling, Charles H. Reed, Clyde Hady and Elmer White.

Guard To Mark Recognition Of Local Companies

Event Scheduled For Tonight At Armory

Headquarters and C Company, Maryland National Guard, will celebrate the sixth anniversary of the federal recognition of the two local companies tonight at the State Armory.

The event, the first celebration of its kind in this area, will be held at 7:30 p. m. with doors being opened to guests at 7 p. m. Local Guard officials said they plan to make the affair an annual celebration.

They explained the local Guard plans to expand the scope of the event and add additional features such as selecting an "outstanding athletic player" of the year and awarding him a scholarship.

Inspection Planned

Tonight's event will begin with a formal inspection of the company members in ranks by Capt. James C. Welch, battalion Army instructor, and Major Robert C. Matlick, battalion commander.

Following the inspection and review, Miss Sarah Clapp, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Carl H. Clapp, who was recently named "Miss National Guard" for this area, will be presented with a watch. The watch to be presented to the local Fort Hill High School senior will bear the inscription, "Miss National Guard of 1952."

Guests and relatives of Guard members will be afforded a chance to see Guardsmen in actual training classes. Tonight, members of both companies will be instructed in the use of individual weapons, including the .45 pistol, the carbine and M-1 rifles. Instructors will demonstrate the current "buddy system" of instruction which allows each man to act as coach as his partner fires.

War Demonstration

Next on the schedule, guests will be shown a demonstration of an Army platoon in the defense. It will show how the platoon takes up positions against an enemy and will review the co-ordination between the different supporting weapons including the "bazooka," 57mm recoiless rifle, the 60 mm mortar and the light machine gun. In addition the men will demonstrate alternate positions as the enemy shifts its angle of attack.

Also included in the demonstration will be the chain of command throughout the unit, the responsibility in leadership, and how communication is maintained from headquarters to front lines. All proceedings will be narrated over a public address system.

Following the demonstrations, refreshments will be served to guests and Guard members. Hosts will be Capt. John D. Hensel, commander of Headquarters Company; and Lt. John R. Jackle, commander of C Company.

Others on the committee are Warrant Officer Joseph Jolley and Lt. Thomas F. Conlon, Jr.

Invitations have been sent out to the mayor and council of Cumberland and officials of surrounding communities, local and state officials, officers of the Maryland Military District, and others.

Charles Deal Is Struck By Auto On Eckhart Flat

Beall High Student Admitted To Hospital

A 17-year-old student of Beall High School at Frostburg suffered shock and a possible injury to his right leg when struck by an auto yesterday afternoon near Stadium Inn on Eckhart Flat, along Route 40.

The youth was identified by Frostburg Police Officer Donald Griffith as Charles Deal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deal, Borden Mines. He was admitted to Miners Hospital for observation and X-rays.

Deal, who had been dismissed from afternoon classes was said to have darted in front of an auto driven by Mrs. Natalie P. Wolfe, College Park. She was travelling toward St. Louis to join her husband who was recently discharged from the U. S. Army.

No charges were preferred against Mrs. Wolfe, police said.

In another traffic accident, an 11-year-old Cumberland boy escaped injury Monday night when he walked in front of a car on Henderson Avenue.

C. A. Dye, 36, of 1413 Bedford Street, told City Police he was driving west on Henderson Avenue at 5:50 p. m. Monday when Dean Allen Harper, 11, of 216 Decatur Street, stepped from between two parked cars and was struck by Dye's automobile. The boy refused medical attention, he said.

No charges were filed.

Wall Is Slightly Scorched By Blaze

South End firemen were called to the home of J. M. Chambers, 878 Maryland Avenue, at 12:10 p. m. yesterday when a flash fire slightly damaged a kitchen wall.

Firemen said the fire was caused by gas which remained in the line to a kitchen range when it was disconnected to be moved. A spark set off the gas, but the blaze was out when firemen arrived.

The same company answered a call at 2:55 a. m. at the home of R. L. Roeder when a flue caught fire. There was no damage.

Six County Women Will Set Precedent As Jurors

Six Allegany County women will establish a precedent next month when they serve as grand or petit jurors during the January term of Circuit Court, starting Monday, January 5.

Two of them, Clara W. Walters of Corriganville and Margaret Hepburn of Lonaconing, were drawn for grand jury duty yesterday. The other four, Elizabeth D. Van Newkirk, Grace Herath and Mary E. Holmes, all of this city, and Gertrude L. Eilbeck of Lonaconing, will serve on the petit jury.

County voters at the November 4 general election voted overwhelming in favor of a referendum giving women the right to serve as jurors.

The total panel, selected under the direction of Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, included 23 grand jurors and 25 petit jurors.

Oddly, despite the fact that the names of 44 women were placed in the jury box of 200 names, it was not until the 12th name was drawn that the first woman, Mrs. Walters, was selected.

William W. Sluss Jr., a Frostburg grocer, was named foreman of the grand jury.

Other members of the grand jury are Francis R. Torrington, city; William F. Sullivan, Frostburg; Francis W. Sweene, city; Harold E. Nixon, city; William B. McGee, Westernport; Otha Simms, city; Edgar L. Harvey, Frostburg; H. Carroll McCracken, city; William W. Cadwallader, city; John L. Durst, Frostburg.

Holmes H. Cessna, city; Walter Duncan, Shaft; Carson J. Thomas, Vale Summit; William O. Jones, Lonaconing; Thomas A. Hewitt, city; Frank C. Trozzo, city; Lloyd L. Stevens, Frostburg; Ernest E. DeVore, Ellerslie; Nathaniel Dunn, Midland, and Emory L. White, city.

Those selected on the petit jury are C. Arthur Lancaster, Ernest T. Storer, John W. Harbaugh, Jean N. Bourekel, Walter H. Hare, Henry Gardner, G. Bernard Miltenberger, Edward A. Cosgrove, Jeremiah T. Defibaugh, Sydney H. Storer Sr., Ronald W. Pitcher, John W. Robosson, all of Cumberland.

Other jury members are John L. Mansfield, Westernport; Dale Mann, Orleans; Harry Lane, Lonaconing; John Porter, Barton; James P. Laffey, Westernport; Fred W. Boettner, Frostburg; John A. Hughes, Robert Flynn and Charles F. Schelble, all of Mt. Savage.

Walters Urges County Support For C&O Parkway

A letter from W. R. Walters, 134 Virginia Avenue, urging support for the C&O Canal Parkway project was received yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Walters suggested that Allegany and Garrett Countians should not be bluffed out of supporting the plan simply because it has the opposition of some influential persons in Hagerstown.

The Virginia Avenue man was sent a letter by the commissioners acknowledging receipt of his communication.

State Board Opposes C & O Parkway Plan

Opinion Is Voiced In Minority Report

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Board of Natural Resources said today it would recommend to the General Assembly that the state refrain from buying land adjacent to the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal for use in the development of a federal parkway.

In a report to be submitted to the Legislature next month, the board also urged that the federal project be scrapped and the 5,156 acres owned by the National Park Service be returned to the state.

Two members of the Resources Board were on a committee appointed by the 1951 Legislature to study the proposed parkway. The State Roads Commission and the State Planning Commission were also named to the committee.

A joint report, not yet publicized, had been drafted by the committee. The Resources Board does not concur in the recommendations, so a "minority" report was written.

Total Cost $17 Million

The Park Service wants Maryland to buy about 11,000 acres along the canal, which runs from Great Falls to Cumberland, and cede it to the federal government.

The Senate Finance Committee in 1950 pigeon-holed a bill to accomplish that and asked for the joint study.

The cost of buying up the extra land was originally estimated at $1 million, but now ranges up to $4 million. The Park Service figured the entire parkway development would cost some $17 million.

The board's chief objection to the project is that new industries would be denied access across the parkway to the Maryland-owned Potomac River. The danger to fish and wildlife was also cited in the report.

Hits Federal "Charity" Idea

If the land were returned to the state, the board pointed out, the area would be staffed and administered at no extra cost to the taxpayers.

Several board members said the federal government has neglected the area already and would be in "bad shape" if Maryland conservation departments did not lend a helping hand.

The board also voiced opposition to the political philosophy of accepting huge hand-outs from the federal government. If states accept charity, the report said, federal expenditures will continue to be excessive and states will continue to surrender authority.

The Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of Forests and Parks said they had plans to use 11 areas along the canal if the land is returned. They would set up parks, picnic areas, fishing sites and other recreational projects.

City Favors Parkway

Cumberland, which figures the parkway would bring it business, has been a supporter of the project.

In other action today, the board:

1. Appointed a committee to continue the exploration on the disposition of state property at the Matapeake Ferry Terminal abandoned when the Chesapeake Bay Bridge opened.

The property consists of 80 acres of land, a $110,000 shop, waiting rooms and a large frame building. The Board of Public Works has asked the board for recommendations on disposition.

2. Failed to make any recommendations on revising present laws applying to the capture of commercial fish and crabs as requested by the Legislative Council. The board decided there was insufficient time to delve into the matter before the start of the General Assembly.

3. Discussed a plan by R. V. Truitt, director of the Department of Research and Education, on the reorganization of the Resources Board. The matter was referred to a committee for future action.

School Locker Bids Accepted

Two local firms will share the contract for lockers for the new Central High School at Lonaconing, Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster announced yesterday.

The Ankeney Company, 27 North Centre Street, was awarded the contract to supply 749 corridor lockers at $17.25 each, a total of $12,920.25. The firm also had offered a credit of $1,000 for 110 lockers bought previously for the new Mt. Savage School but not needed there, lowering the cost to $11,920.25.

The Marquis Company, 128 Bedford Street, was awarded the contract for 114 gymnasium lockers at a cost of $59.57 each, a total of $6,790.98.

Former Lonaconing Girl Will Help Light White House Tree

A former Lonaconing girl will be in the national limelight for a few moments on Christmas Eve when President Truman lights the Christmas tree on the White House lawn.

She is Miss Nancy Smith, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Smith, 3 Walker Avenue, Gaithersburg.

Nancy has been chosen to give Christmas greetings from the Girl Scouts of America to Mrs. Truman before a nation-wide radio and television audience.

A native of Lonaconing, Nancy moved to Gaithersburg with her parents in 1948 and is now a junior at Gaithersburg High School, where she is a member of the Student Council.

Nancy was chosen for the Christmas program over other members of three senior Girl Scout troops in the Gaithersburg area. Each year, the girl who gives the Christmas greeting to the First Lady is selected from a different area of the U. S.

The program at the White House will run from 4:30 to 5 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

Miss Smith is active in Girl Scout work, in extracurricular school activities, and in Methodist Church groups. She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Porter, formerly of Lonaconing, and grand-niece of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gardner of Lonaconing.

Crews Lay Force Main For Sewage Ejector Station

Shortage Of Parts Will Delay Project

The Street Department has completed installation of a force main for the Bedford Street Sewage Ejector Station.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, said the work included the laying of 2,803 feet of sewage line from the station and hooking it to existing sewer lines on Frederick Street.

Work on the station, designed to lift sewage from the Bedford Road area within the city limits and force it to a point where it will be carried off by gravity, is now at a standstill.

Pumps To Be Delayed

Officials said the project may not be completed until spring, due to a delay in the delivery of pumps for the station.

The $24,316.75 project was awarded to the George Construction Company early in the fall.

Still to be completed, in addition to the installation of equipment in the pumping station, is the laying of sewage lines on Bedford Road from Miller Avenue to the city limits.

The city is financing the project from the sale of a $60,000 bond issue.

Oher Work Delayed

This work would become part of the improvements planned for Frederick and Bedford Streets under a proposed federal aid project which would make the streets part of U. S. Route 220.

Similar delays in the delivery of materials is delaying the completion of additional filters at the Lake Gordon filtration plant.

The Hazelwood Construction Company has been held up on that $237,000 job since the end of October for lack of heavy pipes, fittings and valves.

Improvements underway by the LaVale Sanitary Commission will be delayed until spring due to lack of a 250,000 gallon water tank and certain vital fittings.

John T. Mason Reelected Head Of Dairy Group

Improvement Unit Holds Annual Meeting

John T. Mason of Cresaptown last night was reelected president of the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association at the group's annual meeting in the office of County Agent Ralph F. McHenry at the Court House.

Others, all reelected, are Mineral County (W. Va.) Agent Joseph E. Prettyman, secretary-treasurer; Andrew A. Schuller, Keyser, W. Va.; J. G. Shumaker, Rawlings, and Harry H. Delbrook, Mt. Savage, directors. Harry E. Miller and Wheeler W. Arnold will continue to serve as supervisors in 1953.

Association members were told that greater emphasis will be made during the coming year on the production records compiled by cows which are products of artificial breeding. The monthly reports listing the 10 big butterfat producers in the association will single out "artificial" cows in the roll.

Mason reported that the association has added another dairyman in the past year bringing to 29 the number of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania dairymen in the association.

The supervisors' report for the 12 months ending in July shows that the average cow's production was 7,624 pounds of milk and 311 pounds of butterfat with the butterfat averaging 4.08 per cent.

PMA Chairman Cites County

Citing Allegany County's record, James A. Cottman, acting chairman of the Maryland Production and Marketing Administration State Committee, said yesterday that enrollment in the 1953 Agricultural Conservation Program in the state will be considerably higher than this year.

Cottman said that counties which have nearly completed their farm-to-farm contacts report substantial gains over previous years. Then he noted that Allegany County's enrollment is up from this year's 304 to 652 for next year. Baltimore County had 743 farmers enrolled this year and already has 1,351 lined up for next year.

Last week the State PMA Committee extended the closing date for enrollment from December 15 to December 27. Approvals of practices will be mailed by County PMA Committees January 2.

"This will allow every Maryland farmer taking part in the 1953 program to know before he starts his program just what practices are approved and what assistance he can expect from PMA," Cottman asserted.

OPS Obtains Order To Get Kelly Prices

Burke Denies Agency Charge

The Office of Price Stabilization yesterday obtained a court order in an effort to investigate prices charged by Kelly-Springfield Tire Company of Cumberland.

The order, signed by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut in Baltimore Federal District Court, gives the company until next Monday to show cause why OPS agents should not be given access to its records.

Twice "Rebuffed"

A spokesman for the Maryland branch of the OPS said the federal agency went into court after the firm twice rebuffed its efforts to check Kelly-Springfield prices.

But Edmund S. Burke of Cumberland, president of the firm, countered with an emphatic denial that the tire company had "rebuffed" OPS requests.

Burke said his company "always has been glad to comply with any OPS requests. To my knowledge, we've never refused to fulfill any reasonable request."

The OPS said Kelly officials had turned down its request to examine all the firm's records for 1952 several weeks ago, and had ignored a subpoena for the records since December 8.

Burke Denies

Burke denied that his firm had ignored the subpoena. He said Kelly officials had informed the OPS office that they would not be able to have all the company's records in Baltimore in the time allowed by the subpoena. Burke said this time limit was less than a week.

The OPS, said Burke, refused to grant an extension of time, as the company had requested, and instead went into court to get action.

The company president said the OPS had demanded that it produce "voluminous" records in too short a time. He said the company expects to file an answer in court by next Monday to explain its position.

Webster Seeks State Grant For School Jobs

County Is Entitled To Over $927,000

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster yesterday morning obtained permission from the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to seek an additional state grant to assist in the county's current school construction program.

Webster informed the commissioners that some $1,300,000 in county money already has been spent on the new Central High School at Lonaconing. For having disbursed that amount, the county is entitled to receive more than $430,000 in a state grant.

The state is providing some funds for school construction on a one-to-three ratio. For every $3 a county spends on school buildings, the state provides $1 in assistance.

From the entire $2,800,000 bond issue floated to finance construction of Mt. Savage, Lonaconing and Ellerslie Schools, the county is scheduled to get $927,180 in state funds.

The Mt. Savage job, costing over $1,600,000, has been completed and is being occupied. The Lonaconing project is more than three-fourths complete. A bid on the new Ellerslie Elementary School for $59,552 from the George F. Hazelwood Company was accepted by the County Board of Education last month.

He said the announcing was in Spanish and although he was unable to understand it his wife could. Edgell Hockaday, Short Gap, also reported receiving the same program.
